Sand Sculpting Festival returns to Beach July 26 through 28

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

American's First Beach is an appropriate landing pad for the 2019 Revere Beach Partnership's 16th International Sand Sculpting Festival with an overall theme of the 50th landing on the moon by Apollo 11.

"This year's theme is the 50th anniversary of the moon landing. I can't wait to see what our master sculptors come up with," said John Hamel, a director on the Revere Beach Partnership Board. "This year we also have a drone show planned for the opening ceremony on July 26."

There will also be food trucks, live entertainment, local vendors and exhibitors, fireworks and much more.

HARD WORK PAYS OFF

Vanessa Biasella returns to college for master's degree

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

Not everyone takes the conventional road to advanced education, but one Revere woman did and is now hoping to make it back to the school system that she graduated from — this time as a teacher.

At 42 years-old, the mother of four and wife whose husband works as a carpenter, Vanessa Biasella of Robert Street was proud to finally earn her master's degree in education from Salem State University in May. Actually, Biasella credits Salem State's four plus one program — four years for a bachelor's degree plus one for a master's instead of two.

"You double-up on undergrad and grad courses," she said, explaining there were day and night classes and three summers of six classes. On the home front, she said it was a team effort with her two older sons watching the two younger ones."

She added that nothing puts a strain on a family like the idea of looming college tuition and having to figure out childcare at the same time.

Another source of help came from the women who work at Adventures of Learning, 200 Winthrop Ave.

"Without them there were days I thought I would have lost my mind," she said.

Bobby McKenna rescues switchbox after vandalism

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

When life gives you lemons, it's time to make lemonade and that's what artist and Marine veteran Bobby McKenna did when one of his pieces of art — an intricately designed switchbox at Washington and Sargent streets — was tagged sometime last week with black paint.

McKenna had spent eight hours a day for three weeks painting the switchbox, and now it will take another week to repair. McKenna found out about the act of vandalism through a friend. When he went to see it for himself he was beyond devastated.

"I immediately started thinking how hard it would be to get the paint off," he explained since there is a clear coat covering every layer of paint. McKenna said luckily where the person had painted — he was able to clean off a lot and ended up using the black graffiti paint as shading for some other artwork.

"I couldn't have figured out a better way to do it myself," he said.

According to Elle Baker, City of Revere Project Planner in the Office of Strategic Planning and Economic Development, said the city received a grant to artistically paint the switchboxes around the city. McKenna completed one on Beaumont last year. The Beaumont box is replica of an old-fashioned radio.

Baker said McKenna's switchbox was not the only one tagged in the city. Four boxes have been hit.

"These artists do so much it's disheartening those who are tagging have no regard," Baker said.

The box at Washington and Sargent streets is a walk-through Revere's history, from the glory days at the beach to the recent ending of horse racing at Suffolk Downs. There's Slade Spices, Madeline Berlo and her Diving Girls, the Cyclone, High-Diving Horses, Revere Beach 1883, crossroads to Wonderland (one of the parks Walt Disney was inspired by.) There are also crossroad signs pointing to the countries residents of Revere come from such as Italy, Morocco, Brazil, Columbia,

Man pulled out of water at Revere Beach

At approximately 2:55 p.m. on Tuesday, July 16, Massachusetts State Police-Revere received a call for an adult male unresponsive in the water at Revere Beach, in the area of the bandstand.

Bystanders pulled the man, later identified as a 58-year-old, from the water, but the victim was unresponsive and not breathing. CPR was initiated. State Police patrols cleared traffic from Revere Beach Boulevard to expedite ambulance transport.

The victim was transported to the Whidden Hospital. As of press time, the victim was still alive, and still undergoing emergency lifesaving efforts.

Sand Sculpting // CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

The fireworks are planned for Saturday night after 9 p.m.

This year's festival will also feature an opportunity for 30 amateur sculpting teams to try their hand at some serious sand sculpting. Each team will have three hours, starting at 11 a.m. to sculpt their masterpiece. Before the competition starts there will be a live demonstration from a master sculptor who will also offer tips as the competition goes on. The top three teams take home part of a pool prize valued at up to $2,000.

"The amateur competition allows for a more community inclusive portion of our three-day extravaganza," Hamel said. "Amateur teams get a chance to showcase their talents and receive some great tips from master sculptors."

Sand Sculpture Traffic Advisory

Police Chief James Guido encourages people planning to go to the Sand Sculpting Festival to take public transportation since there is no designated parking area for the festival. There will be no parking at Suffolk Downs or at Wonderland and no shuttle busses bringing spectators to the beach.

"I expect huge traffic delays on North Shore Road. Revere Beach Boulevard will be partially closed," Guido said.

He advises people to take public transportation, Uber, Lyft or have a friend drop you off at the beach.

Guido reminds drivers not to block intersections near the beach and Bell Circle will be used to keep traffic moving north. Traffic flow is expected to be heavy.

"My goal is to keep traffic moving," Guido said.

"Finding Shiva" by Sue McGrew of Tacoma, Washington was was one of the many amazing entries from last year's competition.

Biasella has earned her teaching license for history in Grades 5-12 and is also a certified maritime archeologist --- and very interested in the "Diana" and the Battle of Chelsea Creek.

Biasella has spread her application all over, but she really wants to work at Revere High School.

"Growing up, I felt like going to college wasn't encouraged. We didn't have the money. It wasn't expected -- I was going to be a secretary or a housewife the rest of my life," Biasella said.

Prior to obtaining her associates degree from Bunker Hill Community College, Biasella worked in daycare where she was able to also include her kids.

"I love learning and I want to keep going," she said

Biasella is also a member of the Board of Directors for the Revere Society for the Cultural and Historical Preservation, the City of Revere Cultural Council and vice president of the Revere Alumni Association.

Biasella is no stranger to working in public schools such as Saugus High School and the Browne Middle School in Chelsea.

Reflecting on her teaching goal, she said, "Who better to teach Revere kids than a Revere kid?"

Michael and Joseph with mom Vanessa.

Turkey and Ireland. You'll also find references to the Battle of Chelsea Creek and yes, even Harry Potter and "Game of Thrones."

"We are all angered and disappointed that thoughtless individuals would so maliciously damage public property," said Mayor Brian Arrigo. "This flagrant conduct destroys the colorful and pleasing artwork that decorates utility boxes and was the result of hours of diligence by talented artists. We are equally outraged that anyone could be so inclined to destroy property anywhere in our city. We take this affront to our sensibilities seriously, and Revere Police will investigate and take proper action against any individuals found responsible for such reprehensible behavior."

Police Chief James Guido said the culprit could face a charge of malicious destruction of property, a fine and even restitution.

YES, DRUGS ARE BAD, BUT ALCOHOL IS STILL THE WORST

We've all become aware of the opioid epidemic that has spread throughout the country in recent years and that has been responsible for about 60,000 premature deaths annually in the United States.

The dangerous and deadly drug fentanyl, which often is laced into heroin, chiefly has been responsible for the rise in opioid overdoses.

However, we should not lose sight of the fact that alcohol abuse still rates as the number one health problem in the country, as it has for decades.

Here are a few statistics:

It is estimated that excessive drinking is responsible for 88,000 deaths per year in the United States, about one in 10 deaths among working-age adults. The cost in 2010 was almost $250 billion.

And drinking is a serious problem among adolescents. More than nine percent of those 12 to 17 years drink alcohol, and almost five percent engaged in binge drinking in the last month. Drinking in the teen years makes a person five times more likely to become an alcoholic than if they had waited to take their first drink after the age of 21.

For men, risky drinking is more than four drinks on any day or more than 14 drinks in any week, according to the National Institute for Alcohol Abuse. And for women, it's more than three drinks on any day or more than seven drinks in any week. (The institute defines a drink as 12 ounces of beer, 5 ounces of wine, or 1.5 ounces of spirits.)

Among people aged 15 to 49, alcohol use is the single most common risk factor for death and disability. In 2016, alcohol accounted for 6.8 percent of male and 2.2 percent of female deaths.

Finally, alcoholic beverages are classified by the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) as a Group 1 carcinogen (carcinogenic to humans) -- the same category as asbestos -- with 3.6% of all cancer cases and 3.5% of cancer deaths worldwide being attributable to consumption of alcohol.

So here are a few ways to ensure that neither we nor our friends and loved ones become one of those statistics this summer:

1) If you are planning on going out for a night, leave the car at home and have your cell phone programmed to call an Uber. Drunk-driving lawyers say their business is way down thanks to Uber use by millennials -- so be smart and plan ahead while you're still sober and before you leave your house!

2) Friends don't let friends drive drunk -- take their keys and drive them home yourself or get them an Uber.

3) Do not drink and captain a boat -- it IS against the law (just like drinking and driving a car) -- and the risks to your passengers and other boaters on the water are huge if you are captaining under the influence.

SUMMER FUN HAS BEGUN

ReBooting Recycling Part 2: The Dos and Don'ts

Last week we reflected on some 30 years of recycling in Revere, from the early days when residents had to separate recyclable paper, metal, and glass and place it in small green or red bins. It was a chore, but residents quickly adapted to the process and appreciated its benefits.

Over the years, recycling has changed dramatically. Revere began single-stream recycling in the early 2000s, so that all recyclable materials can be placed into one container, and that made the environmentally-beneficial recycling process so much easier.

But new regulations, along with the response of the worldwide marketplace to accepting and processing recyclable materials, requires everyone to carefully reconsider the way we go about our recycling. In Revere, we are "re-booting" our recycling efforts because, frankly, we are doing a terrible job of it right now. A full 100 per cent of our recycling is contaminated, mostly because residents are not following the new rules and requirements of recycling. In simple terms, we flunk recycling.

It's important to realize how much money it costs for the City to conduct weekly curbside collection of trash and recyclable materials. At $3.8 million for the current fiscal year, it is one of the largest line items in our municipal budget. Worse, when residents do not recycle in compliance with state and federal regulations, recycling costs 30 per cent more per ton to dispose. That amounts to thousands of dollars every year that taxpayers must spend unnecessarily.

For sure, Revere is not alone when it comes to the high cost of trash disposal. Every business and every community in the country is striving to foster recycling programs that will reduce waste, aid the environment, and, ultimately, save taxpayers millions of dollars.

The point is, people earnestly want to recycle properly, so our objective here is to help residents learn the right way to go about it.

Your best source of information is the City of Revere website, revere.org/recycling which has all the details about the City's trash collection and recycling. You also can easily download the City of Revere Trash/Street sweeping app through Google Play or the App Store on your mobile phone.

Here is a quick summary of our recycling rules:

DO RECYCLE:

First and foremost, DO NOT place plastic trash bags filled with recyclable materials into your brown recycling bin. If you store your recyclable materials in plastic bags, be sure to empty the recyclable materials loosely into the recycling bin. You do not need to sort the materials, but do not enclose them in a plastic bag. You can place in your recycling bin:

- Rinsed glass bottles, jars and similar containers.
- Clear rinsed plastic microwave trays and containers. It's OK if the labels and caps are still on the container, but rinse the inside. BUT DO NOT recycle black plastic "take-out" containers.

- Plastic bottles, jugs, and containers, empty and rinsed.
- Aluminum and steel cans (i.e. soda, food cans) but make sure they are empty and rinsed.

• Corrugated cardboard—flatten boxes to 3x3 feet and less than a foot in height. You can put torn up cardboard into a paper bag or cardboard box, and if it doesn't fit in your recycle bin, place the bag or box next to your recycle bin.

• Clean cardboard of all types, cereal and snack boxes with the plastic liners removed. Egg cartons and similar containers provided they are clean.

• Paper: Newspaper and glossy inserts, magazines, brochures, junk mail, envelopes, telephone books, and brown paper bags. But NO shredded paper!

• Clothing and cloth materials: Revere is contracted with SimpleRecycling.com, a nationwide collector of cloth and clothing for recycling. You can obtain a free Pink plastic bag at the Mayor's office at Revere City Hall, or visit the SimpleRecycling.com website. Once you have your Pink bag, fill it with cloth items such as bed sheets, blankets, drapes, curtains, pillows, sleeping bags. Fill it with clothing, jackets, hats, sneakers, shoes, and even small tools and household appliances. Place the Pink bag next to your brown recycling bin on your regular recycling day, and you will help keep tons of disposed items out of the trash stream, again saving the City of Revere taxpayers thousands of dollars. You can even obtain a receipt for your Pink Bag disposal for tax deduction purposes.

DON'T RECYCLE:

Place the following items in your regular blue trash bin, not in your recycling bin:

- Containers that are stained or contain food scrap, such as pizza boxes.
- Disposable plastic cups of any color and straws; clear plastic cups may be recycled.
- Plastic bags, plastic wrap, plastic packaging materials such as bubble wrap of any type.
- Shredded paper.
- Black plastic takeout containers—but the clear plastic covers may be recycled.

This summer, the City is partnered with the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection to improve our recycling habits. Inspectors are out checking the contents of Recycling bins and will issue warning stickers so that residents can better understand the proper ways and materials to recycle.

Keeping our city clean, whether it's through trash disposal or recycling efforts, requires everyone's cooperation. But we all will enjoy the direct benefit of these efforts: a cleaner city. And your efforts will play a major role in combating rodent problems in the City, also.

So let's change Revere from a recycling failure to a recycling leader. This is one way every resident can play a personal role in our city's overall prosperity.

LETTER to the Editor

SUPPORTING CAPOCCIA

Dear Editor,

Last week, I had the pleasure of attending the kick-off party for Bob Capoccia as he begins his campaign for Revere City Councillor at-Large. The room was filled to capacity with many people, like myself, who know and admire Bob. He spoke of the values that guide his daily life: respect, pride, and teamwork. As a longtime friend who has spent time with Bob both socially and professionally, I can vouch for the fact that he is a man of his word. The values that guide his daily life will undoubtedly drive his campaign. Bob loves this city. He sees the increasing costs of taxes and water as a problem, but rather than add to the problem by complaining, he has chosen to work to become part of the solution. I hope the voters of Revere will join me in supporting Bob Capoccia by pledging one of their five votes for him in his bid for a seat as Councillor at-Large.

Respectfully,
Michael and Lenore DiLiegro

A NICE TIME

Dear Editor,

Just a note to say what a nice time we had at Bob Capoccia's Councillor at-Large campaign kick-off party. Bob (my cousin) spoke without blame, about many things that are bothering him, and in doing so, he echoed some of the same concerns and fears that many of us have.

Seeing him and his words so well received by a full room (what a great turnout) was wonderful.

So good luck, Bob!

Sincerely,
Lorna Petrilli King

POLICE NEWS

THREE ARRESTED ON DRUG OFFENSES

Three East Boston residents were arrested for heroin trafficking on July 9 in two separate cases by Revere Police.

Around 4 p.m. on July 9, Revere Police arrested the first man after a narcotics investigation that ended on Cushman Avenue.

Edward Alcantara-Mendez, 32, of East Boston, was charged with two counts of distribution of a Class A drug.

About an hour later, another long narcotics investigation led to the arrest to two different Eastie men for trafficking heroin and Fentanyl.

Police made the arrests on Furlong Drive.

Carlos Francisco Valenzuela-Alvelais, 39, of East Boston, was charged with trafficking in 200 grams or more of heroin, trafficking in more than 10 grams of Fentanyl, and conspiracy.

Danilo Lopez-Pineda, 46, of East Boston, was charged with conspiracy.

FAKE 9-1-1 CALLS

An Endicott Avenue man was summonsed to court for repeatedly making false 9-1-1 calls to Revere Police.

On July 10, the man called police around 7:30 p.m. and reported that he had observed a boat sinking down by the beach. Police determined the call was false soon after, and an investigation showed he had made 10 other false calls to police recently.

Theodore Silverman, 54, of 174 Endicott Ave., was charged with making false 9-1-1 calls, subsequent offense.

FIREWORKS ARREST

A Proctor Avenue man was arrested for illegal fireworks on July 6 as part of what was an ongoing narcotics investigation.

Police were running an investigation on Amasa Street and Oakwood Avenue around 1:30 p.m. when they made the arrest.

The man was discovered allegedly with the fireworks and in possession of marijuana.

Anthony DiPietro, 20, of 500 Proctor Ave., was charged with possession to distribute a Class D drug and possession of unlawful fireworks.

THANK GOODNESS FOR TRAFFIC

A Swampscott woman allegedly driving drunk tried to make a run for it on July 10, but got bogged down in Broadway traffic – preventing a getaway and getting charged.

Around 5:44 p.m., police had a report of a driver that had hit a wall at Blanchard's Liquors and tried to flee. The police arrived quickly, and saw the driver head down Revere Street and try to get away on Broadway.

However, traffic was heavy and the congestion bogged down the getaway plan.

Police moved in and, after an investigation, determined the woman to be intoxicated.

Christine Ann Montemara, 54, of Swampscott, was charged with operating under the influence of liquor (second offense), negligent operation, failing to stop for police, and operating recklessly.

TROOPER AT REVERE BARRACKS EARNS TROOP A 'ROOKIE OF THE YEAR' AWARD

During the first day of orientation for members of the recently graduated 84th Recruit Training Troop, Major Pasquale Russolillo, commander of Troop A of the Massachusetts State Police, recognized the accomplishments of a young state trooper from the previous recruit class who is currently assigned to the Revere Barracks. Major Russolillo presented Trooper Jessica Falzone, a member of the 83rd Recruit Training Troop assigned to State Police-Revere, with the Troop A "Rookie of the Year" Award. "During her first year on the job, Jessica demonstrated a strong work ethic," Major Russolillo said. "She led all Troopers assigned to Troop A from the 83rd RTT in activity. Jessica is also fluent in two languages and has been instrumental with helping other Troopers and local officers with translations." State Police-Revere covers Revere, Chelsea, Lynn, Winthrop, and Nahant.

A WEEKEND AT THE ISLANDS

REVERE SCOUT TROOP 15 HEADS TO LOVELL'S ISLAND FOR CAMPING TRIP

Troop 15 of Revere meets at the American Legion Building on Broadway and recently booked a camping trip on Lovell's island in Boston Harbor for the weekend of July 12-14. Camping spaces are a premium on the 62 acre island in Boston harbor National Recreational Area, but good things go to good people and the weekend was booked. Lovell's Island is located about seven miles out to sea from the City of Boston, the island is named after, Captain William Lovell, an early settler in Dorchester. The only access to the island is by boat, and it seems for a moment this small transportation factor was overlooked. How were these boys and their volunteer leaders to get there and back?

with as they say-a boatload of gear. Well thanks to Revere's Veterans Agent, Marc Silvestri and some really great Revere boaters, three boats were volunteered to bring the boys, and all their gear to and from their destination. Captains, Steve Ferro, Steve Ferro Sr., Carl Svendsen and Bobby Otolto volunteered their time and crafts. They departed the Broad Sound Tuna Club, Friday around 6:30 p.m. and went to pick up the happy campers on Sunday and returned home about noon.

Revere has long been known for its generosity and community service. This is just one of the many reasons Revere stands behind their own, and helped give these boys a weekend they will never forget, and also a lesson of giving back to a community that gives so much. I can add as an Eagle Scout from Revere, that I will never forget the leaders that gave their valuable time to bring me and many other scouts unforgettable memories, and helped make us proud citizens of our city and our country. I'm sure these scouts will feel the same and make Revere proud as they grow within the community.

Eagle Scout Al Terminiello Jr. was on hand to pass along a few tips from past camping experiences, shown with members of Troop 15, (in no order) Dante Faiella, Brodie McNair, Ben Piacentini, Finnigan Baum, Nate Kerin, Ashton Giardinella and Josh Chambers.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Encore delivers a knockout with first boxing show

By Cary Shuman

It didn't take long for Encore Boston Harbor to establish itself as a major player in the New England boxing scene.

A sell-out crowd of 2,300 fans enjoyed an action-packed show Friday night at the recently opened $2.6 billion resort casino located in Everett. The show, promoted by Murphy's Boxing, drew what is believed to be the largest crowd in years for a Boston-area boxing event.

Fans were awed by the ornate, spacious ballroom that was transformed in to a major-league, Las Vegas-style boxing venue. Fans had an unimpeded view of the ring from their seats.

The public address announcing system, lighting, special effects, and four huge, high-definition televisions made it a spectacular sight and sound experience.

The extra touches, like the free photo booth in which fans could pose in different boxing gear and instantly receive a free photo, was welcomed by all who participated in the experience.

Each fighter walked to the ring to the accompaniment of his own personal entry music. Former world champions Tony DeMarco of the North End and Mickey Ward of Lowell were honored with special awards during the show.

Press conference, weigh-in kick off the show

The press conference and weigh-in for the fighters was held one day before the show and that, too, was a special experience as everyone knew that they were part of something historic – the first ticketed event at Encore Boston Harbor.

Robert DiSalvio, president of Encore Boston Harbor, personally welcomed the boxing community and Murphy's Boxing to the five-star resort.

"Good afternoon, everyone, welcome to Encore Boston Harbor," began DiSalvio. "On behalf of the over 5,000 team members that have joined us here, as you know, we are a new facility and one of our main goals that we could present a very diverse lineup of entertainment options and

Meanwhile, in another bout, Luis Arcon Diaz keeps cool after knocking out Argentina's Mario Lozano in the third round during one of the fights on the first-ever boxing event at Encore Boston Harbor on Friday, July 12. Tons of fans flocked to the grand ballroom for what was the first of many sporting events to come at the Everett resort casino.

Undefeated RYBS Flyers Capture 2019 softball crown

By Melissa Moore-Randall

Fireworks rang out well after July 4 at Griswold Fields on Saturday night as the Flyers celebrated winning the 2019 RYBS Softball Championship. On a balmy summer night and in front of a packed crowd, the Flyers defeated the Titans 12-7 to capture their first softball championship and complete an undefeated 19-0 season. The Flyers battled a tough Titans team that included a late rally in the bottom of the sixth inning of Game 1 and powerful bats and aggressive fielding in Game 2.

Throughout the season, the team was led by senior players Gianna Scoppettuolo, Guiliana Micciche, Marcella Bonfardeci, Celia Rocino, and Kaitlyn Hurley. Coach Joe Scoppettuolo credits the undefeated season to these players who he referred to as the "catalyst of the team". Scoppettuolo said the girls showed leadership and stepped up and took the helm throughout the season. Second year player Laila Stroud was part of the winning pitching trio that included Scoppettuolo and Micciche throughout the playoffs. He added that second year players, Danni Hope Randall, Grace Fox, Marisella D'Amelio, and Layla Hiduchick, showed improvement through the season along with first year players Kaylee Reed and Francesca Roper. Scoppettuolo added, Scoppettuolo also gave credit to the Titans who he said battled hard in both games. He gave a special sporting events for our guests that visit the property.

"I can't tell you how pleased we are to have Ken Casey and Murphy's Boxing here for our first championship boxing event," continued DiSalvio. "We feel this is a great way to kick off this new venue."

DiSalvio's appearance and welcoming remarks were much appreciated by the boxers.

"This is awesome," said main event fighter Greg Vendetti of Stoneham. "I'm honored to be part of the first show [at Encore]. Everyone has been really nice."

Vendetti would go on to win a unanimous decision over Michael Anderson and capture the IBA Junior Middleweight World Championship. Interestingly, Vendetti was a linebacker for the Northeast Regional Vocational High School (Wakefield) football team.

Ken Casey, frontman for the Dropkick Murphy's and promoter, also spoke at the press conference.

"This [Encore] is amazing and we're honored to the first ticketed event, that is exciting stuff, that's history right there," said Casey. "We have big plans to bring amazing fights to this casino and hopefully some more world title fights."

Casey also thanked Encore for its hospitality.

"I can't say enough about how great Bob [DiSalvio] and his staff have treated us - it's a first-class venue all around. The set-up [in the boxing venue] is pretty awesome."

Everett fans join large crowd at the show

Boxing fans from Everett joined fans across New England at the show.

City Councillor Michael Marchese, a three-sport athlete at Everett High School who played football for Moody Sarno, said it was exciting to see Everett residents past and present, at the show.

"This is a fantastic venue and there's life back in Everett," said Marchese. "It's good to see people from Everett here and plenty of faces coming back to Everett. The boxing has been outstanding and I look forward to being back here in August for the next event."

Former cruiserweight champion Richie "The Mountain" LaMontagne of Everett drew a warm reception when he was introduced in the ring.

"I'm so proud of Everett - I love this venue for boxing," said LaMontagne. "It's beautiful here. Encore has done a great job. This is great for our city and New England boxing."

Also seen in the crowd was former Everett High tennis star Eric Glassoff, who is now a successful real estate agent.

"I can't believe we're in Everett, it feels like we're in Las Vegas," said Glassoff.

Winthrop School Committee member Tino Capobianco was also on hand for Encore's first-ever show.

"The show has been great," said Capobianco. "There was no traffic getting here. I took the ferry from downtown. Everyone here is having a great time. New England has a great history with boxing with Rocky Marciano, Mickey Ward, Marvin Hagler, and Johnny Ruiz and it's great to see Encore carrying on that tradition."

Murphy's Boxing will hold its next boxing show at Encore on Aug. 23.

Luis Arcon Diaz celebrates with fans as he walks to the ring, led by Boston Police Officer and corner man Matt Ryan.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

ZBA DENIES SPECIAL PERMIT

CHELSEA - In a split decision, the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) denied a request for a special permit and variance for a proposed eight-unit, four-story, market-rate condominium project at 254 Spencer Ave.

In a 2-2 vote, ZBA members Arthur Arsenaault and Marilyn Vega-Torres voted to okay the project, while members Hugo Perdomo and Joseph Mahoney voted to deny approvals, siding with the recommendation of Planning Director John DePriest.

DePriest stated that the conversion of the existing two-family house to eight units was too large for the site, and that the developers did not meet the hardship requirements to gain approval for the special permit and variances.

While the Planning Department recommended no more than five units on the parcel, a number of neighbors and city officials came out in support of the project Tuesday night, much as they had done last month when the project was approved by the Planning Board.

"I would hate to see these units be abandoned, it is kind of an eyesore right now," said District 3 City Councillor Joe Perlatonda.

Perlatonda noted that the City has recently approved larger, affordable housing projects, such as at the old Midas site, and that 254 Spencer Ave. sits next to the 34-unit Acadia affordable housing development.

"The neighbors want this, I want this, and I don't think it should be limited to five units," said Perlatonda. "It's a great project, and I don't see why we wouldn't want it right now."

Richard Lynds, the attorney for developer Ricky Beliveau, said the four-story condo building would fit into the neighborhood by serving as a transition from the taller, five-story Acadia development on one side to the triple-deckers on the other side of 254 Spencer Ave.

To make the project work financially, Lynds said Beliveau needs the eight units at market rate. He said Beliveau would be investing $2.5 million into the project, with units selling for about $500,000 each.

"Ricky believes in the City of Chelsea," said Lynds. "For him to make this type of investment shows where his mind is and where his wallet is."

As the special permit and variance failed to garner the necessary vote, several of the supporters who attended the meeting voiced their displeasure to the board members and DePriest.

"We are going with what the law is in the books," said Mahoney.

After the meeting, Lynds said he and Beliveau will regroup to see what their next steps are for 254 Spencer Ave.

"It's too early to tell what we will do right now," he said. "We will look at all of our options."

Lynds said he was surprised by DePriest's staunch vocal opposition to the project.

"This was an opportunity for good, market-rate units," said Lynds.

JEWISH NURSING HOME TO BE RENAMED

CHELSEA - Chelsea Jewish Lifecare has announced that the Chelsea Jewish Nursing Home, the flagship property of the organization, will be renamed The Katzman Center for Living in honor of Elliot and Donna Katzman.

The Marblehead couple, who made a significant donation to Chelsea Jewish Lifecare, have longstanding ties to the nursing home, the city of Chelsea and to the healthcare organization.

"We are enormously grateful to Elliot and Donna Katzman for such a generous gift," said Chelsea Jewish Lifecare CEO Barry Berman. "I have known the Katzman family for many years and am thrilled to have their name attached to the Chelsea Jewish Nursing Home. Their support and friendship mean the world to us."

Elliot Katzman and Donna (Frangiamone) were classmates at Chelsea High, and will soon celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. Both are Salem State alumni and the proud parents of sons and daughters-in-law Matthew and Katie, and David and Emily. They are even prouder grandparents to granddaughters Nora, Maggie, Julia and Clara. Elliot, a general partner at Commonwealth Capital Ventures, a private venture capital firm, has built some of New England's most successful technology companies.

"Donna and I are truly thankful for the love and kindness that Chelsea Jewish Lifecare has shown our family," said Katzman. "Our involvement began when my grandmother was a resident of the nursing home over forty years ago. Ten years ago my parents moved to the Cohen Florence Levine Estates Assisted Living where today my dad, Myer, still enjoys being a part of this caring community. Donna's mom, Mary Frangiamone, is a resident of the Chelsea Jewish Nursing Home. We want to pay tribute to the mission of the organization's founders and the extraordinary leadership of Barry and Adam Berman."

Adam Berman, Chelsea Jewish Lifecare president, noted that the nursing home has played a significant role in the organization's history.

"The Chelsea Jewish Nursing Home is very near and dear to my heart," said Berman. "We are honored to have Elliot and Donna involved with this special residence and we truly appreciate their substantial contribution."

Founded in 1919, the non-profit Chelsea Jewish Lifecare is one of the largest providers of senior healthcare services in the region. The Chelsea Jewish Nursing Home, soon to be The Katzman Center for Living, underwent a dramatic $16 million renovation in 2016.

COUNCIL VOTES DOWN CHURCH REQUEST

EVERETT - On June 24, Councilors debated at length about the petition of a local church owner to have donation bins on his property.

Council voted against this request by a tally of 7-3.

Pastor Denis Hernandez from Ministerio Monte de Sion (Mount Zion Ministry) at 108-144 Spring St. spoke before Council to request a new open-air parking license for the church property. The church owners want to use the space to house donation bins as well as trucks that can transport donations. The new license would not affect the church parking available for parishioners.

The item had been put forth for a Council vote by the Committee on Community and Business Development, which recommended favorable action. The license would be subject to general restrictions, including compliance with all local zoning ordinances. Had it been approved by Council, the next step would have been for the request to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and possibly the Planning Board.

However, the request gave pause to several Councilors due to its vagueness.

Hernandez wasn't able to answer Council's specific questions regarding the donation bins, possibly due to a language barrier. He couldn't tell Council who would be dominating, what would be donated and where donations would be going.

Councilor John Hanlon was hesitant and wanted assurance that the Clerk or the Inspection Services Department (ISD) would be able to inspect all donation bins in the city.

"We had major problems before with people filling up containers and shipping them out," he said. "I'd like to trust people all the time, but I want to be able to say we know exactly what's going on."

Councilwoman Rosa Di-Florio, who chairs the Committee for Community and Business Development, called the request "too broad."

"I'm not against the church, donating or charity, but unfortunately it's just not the right place for it," she said. "We don't know what's going to be there. Is there going to be food? Are we going to have rats? There's nothing that specifies what's going to be there."

City Clerk Sergio Cornelio said that Council could write specific conditions into the license.

"Put some type of limitation on it," he said. "You can state there is no broken-down vehicles, maybe just one or two box trucks. You can say not before 8 a.m. and not past 8 p.m. Those are conditions that are within your jurisdiction to do."

Councilor McLaughlin supported approving the center with specific guidelines attached.

"These types of centers are important for donation purposes, especially when a country gets hit with a storm," he said.

Councilor Wayne Matewsky mentioned local apartments and hotels that could consider donation bins and box trucks an eyesore.

"This is something that should go to the Planning or Zoning Board before we vote on it," he said.

But Councilor Michael Marchese felt that wasn't necessary.

"Forget about the Zoning Board, let's make a decision right here," he said. "We rezoned this area recently. We shouldn't be putting that crap there. A church is one thing. I wouldn't welcome this into the city of Everett."

Councilor Fred Capone motioned to send the request to the Zoning Board of Appeals as well as the Planning Board, but only himself and Councilors Hanlon, Matewsky and Napolitano voted in favor of this.

Next, the Council took a vote to approve the request outright. The request was voted down by Council 7-3, with only Councilors Fred Capone, Michael McLaughlin, and Peter Napolitano voting in favor of it. (Councilor John McKinnon was absent from voting, though Clerk Cornelio noted that he had opposed the request in committee.)

"I'm disappointed to see the way the vote went," said Councilor McLaughlin in a follow-up interview with Independent. "You can't say that you want to help others and then deny a location in which donations are collected."

"I absolutely support putting regulations on such a license," he continued. "The license should have been granted with stipulations and regulations so that it could be respectfully handled."

•Church reaction
Ministerio Monte de Sion will be eligible to present their request again in one year.

COUNCILOR SEEKS TO BRING BIKE INFORMATION TO PUBLIC

EVERETT - At a recent City Council meeting, prior to the summer recess, Councilor Fred Capone suggested that the City work with the Police Department in order to bring bicycle safety and regulation information to residents, whether through live classes or televised programming on ECTV.

"I've been pushing bike safety for five years," he told the Independent. "We need to educate folks about the rules of the road for bikes."

The councilor cited things like always biking with the flow of traffic, wearing safety gear and dressing in brightly colored clothing.

Councilor Capone said he has seen not only minors but adults biking recklessly, and is afraid that "someone's going to get hurt or die."

He claims that it is especially prudent now that Everett has taken steps to strengthen its cycling infrastructure, entering into contracts with two different bike-share companies, Lime and Bluebikes.

"It's irresponsible if the City provides ample access to bikes but then neglects the obligation to ensure that cyclists understand the rules of the road," said the councilman. "Without providing some safety information, serious injury or even a fatality is a real possibility."

Councilor Capone said he has asked the administration and the police department to take up the issue of bicycle safety in Everett for over four years, but that his request has "fallen on deaf ears."

The councilor is not alone in his thinking.

Councilor Michael McLaughlin also believes that bicycle safety needs to be taken seriously.

"We as a community need to do more on bike awareness and education of safety on riding," he said.

Bike awareness means not just educating cyclists about road rules, but educating drivers about how to keep bikes safe on the road.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 783 cyclists were killed in traffic accidents in 2017, with three quarters of these occurring in urban areas. New York City Mayor and Presidential hopeful Bill De Blasio is currently calling for new bicycle safety measures when three cyclists died in the final week of June, bringing that city's cyclist death toll to 15 just this year.

New York's new measures include steep fines for driving or parking in a bike lane, not obeying pavement markings and not yielding to cyclists while making turns.

De Blasio promises to also crack down on cyclists biking the wrong way, biking through red lights and distracted cycling. City officials have proposed license plates for all bikes, knowing that traffic cameras can catch cyclists disobeying road rules even when a police officer isn't present.

In Chicopee, Mass., a female cyclist lost her life on July 3, prompting town officials to recommit to bicycle safety initiatives.

Councilors in Everett are hopeful that they can take a lesson from New York and Chicopee and take action before any cyclist fatalities occur.

•Laws for Cyclists
According to the General Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, cyclists must obey the rules of the road. These include obeying traffic laws; using correct hand signals when stopping, slowing and turning; yielding to pedestrians; keeping one hand on handlebars at all times; wearing an approved, fastened helmet if under 16; using reflectors before sunrise and after sunset; and meeting all standards of cycle equipment and modification.

•Laws for Drivers
Motorists in Massachusetts are responsible for knowing how to interact with cycles on the road. This includes yielding to oncoming cyclists when making left turns, checking for cyclists before opening their doors when parked and remaining a safe distance from cyclists when passing.

Disobeying traffic laws when it comes to bikes is punishable by fines just like any traffic violation. A comprehensive list of the bicycle laws in the state of Massachusetts can be found at massbike.org/laws.

SOCIAL CENTER RECEIVES GRANT FOR NEW WINDOWS

EAST BOSTON -Mayor Martin Walsh announced that the East Boston Social Centers and 17 other nonprofit organizations across the city would share in $550,500 in grant funding through the City's Partners with Nonprofits Program (PNP).

The funding will allow the Social Centers and others to make public facility upgrades and on-site physical improvements, and will help them leverage more than $1.7 million in capital improvements.

"I am proud that the Partners with Non-Profits program invests directly in organizations that offer so much to the people of Boston," said Mayor Walsh. "The commitment of the community service organizations receiving these grants is what helps make our city so strong. This program is an important tool we use to ensure that these organizations are able to continue their work that benefits our neighborhoods and our residents."

Executive Director of the Social Centers Justin Pasquariello said his agency would be using the funding to remove and replace windows at the Central Square location.

"The City of Boston's Partners with Nonprofits program continues to provide critically needed funds for maintenance of our facilities, and we are deeply grateful to Mayor Walsh, Chief Dillon, and all who have made this possible," said Pasquariello. "This investment in window replacement will help us prevent water damage to our building and will improve our building's

Fond memories of Wonderland Dog Track

By Ron Wohlen

It has been said traveling back in time, reminiscing, sharing one's thoughts and feelings about significant events is important and good for the soul.

Prior to moving to Florida last June, I had viewed the 2017 abbreviated beginning of the demolition, which has now been completed at 190 VFW Parkway, the former site of the Wonderland Dog Track. I knew exactly what I was about to witness, a barren tract of land. The past months friends, former co-workers and racing fans had graphically described to me what had transpired in the past year at 190 VFW Parkway, Revere.

There was never a question that during my visit to Boston I would return one final time to where I had been employed from 1978 to 2010. So on May 27th I walked down the hill from bell circle and saw 27 acres of concrete, macadam, overgrown grass, weeds and a small patch of dirt, the only remainder of the racetrack's far turn come into view. It took a few minutes to identify exactly where the administration building had been, my office for 32 years. It was here my attention was diverted to the ground and my penny from heaven. The penny more than likely had been there since the demolition, its so dark and grimy, the heads side appears completely blank (the year, In God We Trust or the word Liberty is not visible). It's edges are ragged chipped away in multiple areas, also it has been damaged by three distinct digs into the copper coin; located below Lincoln's chin, to right of his eye and just below his head. But 190 VFW Parkway had been much more than just a defunct dog racing facility. It will always be deeply rooted in the history of Revere. During its hey day Wonderland had been an economic engine for the city. In addition to charitable contributions and tax dollars many citizens were able to put children through college, purchase a home, or provide for a vacation because of employment at the track. For many it was a second job. Revere's Mayor, Brian Arriago was among the residents who got their start working at Wonderland.

Located on a tract of land near Revere Beach, long before the first greyhound race in 1935, developer Thomas Barrell constructed Wonderland Park an extension of the Revere Beach amusement park. Wonderland was modeled after the International World Fair's. It included a theater, exhibits, and rides. The center piece was a beautiful lagoon part of the exciting ride "Shoot the Chute" at the time it was proclaimed one of most unique in all the World. Like Disney's theme parks parades occurred daily. The park even included a full service health center. Due in large part to New England's unpredictable weather its operators suffered great financial difficulty forcing its closure in 1911, after only six years of operation. As the Revere Beach amusement park continued to prosper and draw huge crowds Wonderland was briefly converted to a bicycle track.

In 1934 Wonderland Greyhound Park was constructed, opening night was June 12, 1935 as 5,000+ fans watched

Wonderland experienced many historic moments and events over the course of its 75 years, possibly the most noteworthy stories are those of RURAL RUBE. The Rube dominated the 1939 season, winning 19 times while setting a 5/16th World Record of 31.00. On June 15, 1939 1,500 fans and dignitaries paid to have dinner honoring the canine superstar at the famed Copley Plaza in downtown Boston. Seated at the head of the table with owner R.B. "Bud" Carrell, greyhound racing's Babe Ruth was presented a gold collar, after devouring a steak. Then on Aug. 30, 1940, the Legendary Rural Rube, who made greyhound racing in Massachusetts, retired to a standing ovation as he was paraded around the track one final time before being presented a gold medal.

Wonderland quickly became the premier racing venue in the Northern United States. Know throughout the industry for hosting greyhound racing's most prestigious championship stake races each year; the Wonderland Derby and Grady Sprint, formerly the World Sprint, annually attracted the sports biggest stars.

Rural Rube was the first of many great, four-legged athlete's who graced the Revere oval. More All-American greyhounds competed at Wonderland than any other track in the country, thirty five including 18 Derby champions (from 1963 thru 1998). While showcasing many of the most famous greyhounds in the sports history, nightly crowds often exceeded 19,000 fans. During its heyday handle exceeded more than one million dollars on four occasions. A dozen experts comprised of Management, Kennel Owners and fans named Wonderland's All-Time "Dream-Team" as part of the 50th Anniversary festivities. The results read like who's who of greyhound racing. Captained by Rural Rube the first team included Lucky Pilot, Canadian Pacific, Hondo Monopoly, Never Roll, Evening Glamour, On the Line, Rinaker, Honey Line, and Rock a Dee.

The track's last race was won by Stanton's kennels JJ's Make Me Pop on Sept. 18, 2009. Normally referred to as "The Au Rior" (its meaning is "goodbye until we meet again") so it was not appropriate in 2009, as this was the final race ever! The last finish line photo, prior to the race track lights being turned off for the final time included two of the three State's Racing Commissioners along with two Track Officials, representatives from the Stanton Kennel, a leadout and the winning greyhound.

By the end of 2018 bulldozers had demolished the race track, tote board, and remaining buildings; however, Wonderland's, history and fond memories of the fans and those of us who had the pleasure of working, or racing greyhounds at 190 VFW Parkway, Revere from 1935-2009 will remain forever!

As for my penny from heaven, following 10 days of business, doctor appointments, visiting old friends and great food my daughter and I headed back south, me with the penny in my pocket.

I had forgotten about the penny until one day last week while paying at my favorite coffee shop I found it in my hand. I'm not sure what possessed me, but when I got home, I googled "is there spiritual meaning to finding a coin." The response directed me to Askingangels.com and the article "penny from heaven".

I've never been one to believe in the supernatural. After reading the article "penny from heaven" and thinking about its message "When you need cheering up these spiritual coins are a sign from heaven and loved ones who have passed over". "If you are missing a loved one who has passed on a day when you think of them, you may find coins popping up in your path." I now have a new perspective regarding my spiritually. As my daughter as my witness the penny from heaven was the second penny I picked up on VFW Parkway. The first I made a wish and threw it into a small body of water along the walking route to 190 VFW Parkway.

What really gives me pause for reflection is the fact May 27 was Memorial Day and just a few hours prior to stopping by 190 VFW Parkway I had placed flowers at the grave site of my Mother, Father and Sister - My penny from heaven will no longer remain in my pocket. It will be forever in a locket near my heart!

Many of you I thought would appreciate the full history of Wonderland so I tagged you here.

Ron Wohlen is the former assistant general manager and director of Simulcasting at Wonderland Greyhound Park. He worked at the well-known track from 1978 to its closing in 2010. Ron and his wife Linda are living in Jupiter, Florida.

Since 2014, the Partners with Nonprofits program, operated by the City's Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), has awarded more than $2.8 million in grants to neighborhood non-profits.

LYNN CHAMBER CHANGES NAME

LYNN - Lynn's Chamber of Commerce has just become "Greater."

The local business agency, led by Executive Director Colin Codner, announced that it is changing its name from the Lynn Area Chamber of Commerce to the Greater Lynn Chamber of Commerce.

Codner explained the reasons for the name change in an interview with the Lynn Journal Monday.

"It's our goal to promote a regionalistic approach to business support, advocacy, and all the factors that go in to growth and development — and we [The Board of Directors and Mr. Codner] felt that a broadly inclusive aim and image would best reflect our decision to focus in a regionalistic manner," said Codner.

While there are various interpretations to the geographic areas encompassed by Greater Lynn, Codner said the agency's Greater Lynn perspective consists of "the communities we are casually referring to as southern Essex County," including Lynn, Lynnfield, Saugus, Swampscott, and Nahant.

Businesses in Lynn make up the large majority of Chamber members but there is "healthy representation" in the other four communities.

Codner said Monday's official launch consisted of unveiling the agency's new logo on the Website. The rebranding is continuing on social media and a letter has been sent to all members notifying them of the change.

"We also have an event on Friday (July 12) at Land of a Thousand Hills (61 Munroe St.) between 9 and 11 a.m.," said Codner. "We hope that members come on down and have a cup of coffee and get our new logo on top of your latte."

The acronym for the Greater Lynn Chamber of Commerce is likely to be "GLCC," eschewing the preposition "of" as most chambers do.

Conversely, the Point of Pines Yacht Club (adjacent to the General Edwards Bridge) does use the letter 'O' in its acronym, which is POPYC, perhaps an attempt to differentiate itself from the Pleasant Park Yacht Club (PPYC) in nearby Winthrop.

Friday's introductory event is, in fact, being called "Meet the GLCC." Lynn's Chamber of Commerce experienced unprecedented growth under previous Executive Director Leslie Gould. The Lynn Chamber is one of the largest in Massachusetts with approximately 400 members.

The Chamber's business and social events, including the Annual Business Excellence Awards Dinner — with its Academy Awards-style feel and the considerable prestige associated with being an award recipient — have attracted large turnouts.

The Chamber has become a strong and effective voice for the business community with leaders and members appearing at City Council and other governmental board meetings.

The Chamber has continued its resurgence under the reign of Codner and his management team — and even "Greater" things are expected

DeMARCO TO FILL VACANT COUNCIL SEAT

WINTHROP - The Town Council unanimously selected Rob DeMarco to fill the seat vacated by Councilor at-Large Mike Lucerto.

DeMarco was the only one to put his name in for a nomination since Lucerto resigned June 12. Lucerto stated he sold his house and was moving to Salem. This also came on the heels of several absence from council meetings.

DeMarco, a third-generation Winthropite, ran against Lucerto in 2017, but came up short despite garnering more than 1,700 votes.

"My first plan is to listen and keep my mouth shut," DeMarco said. "I think people do too much preaching of what they would like to see. I see my job as being a voice of the people and doing what the community wants. My first job is to listen to the community."

DeMarco has been involved in youth sports and flag football at Ingleside. He serves on the Park Committee and has taught Catechism classes at St. John's.

"I think I'm fairly well-known all over the town and I'm not going anywhere," DeMarco said. "I'm really humbled and honored by the opportunity to serve my town."

(CBD) has been an area of concern for residents and town leaders, and with a developer interested in placing 30 residential units on Somerset Avenue, straightening out the zoning mess is crucial.

Town Council President Ron Vecchia said this has been clumsy since day one and he wants the Zoning Board of Appeals to come to a meeting and explain what happened.

At the center of the center issue is a "map" and a "line". The Zoning Board made it a little clearer on June 27 for one house at 20 Cottage Park Road, which was thought to be Residential A, but determined to really be mixed use.

At the July 2 Town Council meeting, the topic came up again with former Council President Tom Reilly (who helped draw up the town's charter) and his wife Donna Segreti-Reilly, who read a statement about getting citizens involved in the government process.

She stated that the 2014 process to re-define the Center Business District did not reach out to abutters and she has specific concerns.

"A petition put forth on May 27, 2018 was never heard or addressed," Segreti-Reilly stated. "It was about forthcoming building projects in Winthrop Center."

Tom Reilly, said when Terry Delehanty was Town Manager in 2017-2018, there were no single or multi-family homes in the Center District.
