ARRIGO LAUNCHES
MOBILE CITY HALL

Mayor Brian Arrigo announced the official launch of Mobile City Hall, the City of Revere's latest initiative to make interacting with city government more accessible and convenient for residents. Mobile City Hall, a retrofitted passenger van, will be in a different neighborhood each week on Tuesdays and Thursdays from noon-2 p.m. and will make house calls. With the support of Revere 311 staff, residents can pay city bills, apply for licenses and receive any service offered on Revere.org without having to visit City Hall.

"With the launch of our new and improved Revere.org, and today with Mobile City Hall, we're continuing to modernize and professionalize the way our residents can interact with their city government," Mayor Arrigo said. "Revere residents deserve the very best in city services and we're proud to now bring them directly to their neighborhoods and doorsteps."

Nancy Barile inspires Revere High Students to excel on exams

By Taylor Giuffre-Catalano

Revere High School teacher Nancy Barile and a class of motivated sophomores defied all expectations.

Barile who has taught rigorous courses in the field of English Language Arts for 24 years, described the group of sophomores as "highly-engaged, bright, [and] hard-working." The students were initially enrolled in Pre-Advanced Placement English Language Arts, and were following a curriculum designed for students on track to take Advanced Placement courses later in their high school years. Yet, Barile, almost immediately noticed that her sophomore students had an "outstanding work ethic," and "absolutely loved literature." These students possessed a rare talent and passion, in Barile's eyes, to which she remarked, "I never saw anything like it."

The class of sophomores went on to take the Advanced Placement Literature and Composition exam, a test designed for high school seniors, and passed at a rate nearly matching the national average

Revere police are investigating Aug. 2 shooting incident

Journal Staff Report

The Revere Police Department is continuing its investigation in to an Aug. 2 incident on North Shore Road (Route 1A southbound) in which a 34-year-old man was shot while driving in Friday's rush hour traffic.

"We're still investigating whether it was a road rage incident or some other sort of an incident," said Chief James Guido. "It's going to take some time to gather all of the information. The detectives are working on it."

Guido said the vehicle (which was allegedly hit by at least two shots) had an out-of-state license plate. The gunfire came from another vehicle that had apparently pulled up adjacent to the first vehicle. The number of individuals in the second vehicle has not been released.

"They were traveling through the city," said Guido. "I want to express as best I can that the city is safe. Over the weekend, these were isolated incidents and the city does not have a crime problem. The officers are proactive at all times. We have been very successful in holding the crime rate down. The incidents that we've had, we've solved them. The detectives have done an outstanding job."

According to the State Police, the 34-year-old man was

Rollins promises 'impartial' review of EPD shooting in Revere

By Seth Daniel

The Everett Police Department, along with State Police and Suffolk County DA Rachael Rollins, will conduct a "thorough and impartial" review of the case involving a Lynn man whom Everett Police pursued into Revere – eventually shooting and killing the man amidst circumstances that have not yet been officially released to the public.

"This remains a highly active investigation, and this Office is therefore limited in the level of detail that can be released at this time," said Rollins in a statement Sunday. "I ask for peace in our community and the public's patience as we continue to investigate the facts and circumstances of this...fatal police-involved shooting."

State Police identified the victim as Oscar D. Ventura-Gonzalez, 32, of Lynn. The driver, who was a resident of a resident from out of state. The individual was transported to Mass. General Hospital where he was in critical condition Friday. There has been no further update on his condition.

Officials issue statement regarding shootings, criminal activity in City

Special to the Journal

Mayor Brian M. Arrigo, City Council President Arthur F. Guinasso, Public Safety Subcommittee Chair Councilor Ira Novoselsky, and Police Chief James Guido have issued the following joint statement to address rumors and misstatements that have spread through the city, primarily on social media, regarding police activity in recent days.

A sequence of unrelated events in Revere this past weekend, coupled with an onslaught of inaccurate information about them primarily on social media, spawned unfounded fear in our community. We issue this joint statement to dispel rumors, to apprise the public of the actual circumstances that transpired, and to assure the residents of Revere of our unwavering commitment to public safety.

1. The Incidents

Four incidents, at least three of them involving a firearm, resulted in police response. Two incidents attracted news media attention, as well as unfiltered chatter on social media.

• Thursday night, Revere police reacted to a radio broadcast from Malden Police relating to a shooting incident that took place in Malden. Based on the details contained in the police radio broadcast, Revere Police found and identified the suspect vehicle and several arrests were made. No gunfire or criminal activity occurred in Revere.

• Early Friday morning, Revere police investigated a possible gunshot injury to the foot of a man on Mountain Avenue. The police investigation is ongoing and thus far has produced no conclusions about matter.

• Friday at approximately 5:15 p.m., a 34-year old man from outside of Massachusetts was shot while driving in afternoon rush hour traffic on Route 1A southbound (North Shore Road) near Shawmut Street. State police and news media helicopters hovered

'LITTLE FREE LIBRARIES'

The City of Revere is participating in the world's largest free library network, and installing "Little Free Libraries" across the community where residents can take a book to read or leave one for someone else to find.

Originating in the Shirley Avenue neighborhood, the first two libraries were installed last year and quickly became a popular hit. Community leaders and city staff collaborated to expand the program city wide and increase book access for every neighborhood. Following a series of public meetings, the location of the Little Free Libraries have been determined and designed by creative residents to represent each neighborhood.

"We are excited to see residents interact with the Little Free Libraries" said Mayor Brian Arrigo. "We encourage residents to participate in the stewardship of the program by donating books at a location near you and help inspire a love for reading to all."

The City of Revere will hold a brief ceremony at Gibson Park to officially welcome the libraries to the community this Thursday, Aug. 8t at 4 p.m.

CITY TO OBSERVE NATIONAL PURPLE HEART DAY

Mayor Brian M. Arrigo and Revere's Veterans department will observe National Purple Heart Day with a ceremony designating a pair of parking spaces at Revere City Hall reserved exclusively for military veterans and Purple Heart recipients. The ceremony will take place Wednesday, Aug. 7, at 3:30 p.m. near the Hyde Street entrance to City Hall.

National Purple Heart Day is observed on Aug. 7 of each year as a time to honor military members who were wounded or lost their lives on the battlefield while in service to the United States.

The Purple Heart medal was created on August 7, 1782 by then Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army George Washington. Originally known as the Badge of Military Merit, it is estimated that some 1.8 million Purple Hearts have been awarded. Qualifications for the Medal now include acts of bravery and valor as prisoners of war and while fighting domestic terror.

The City Council in April approved the designation of parking spaces reserved for veterans as a sign of respect and appreciation for service to the nation. The two spaces are brightly visible, with the Purple Heart space featuring the familiar heart-shaped purple medal, gold border, and the profile of George Washington.

The Veterans' space features a blue star on a white field surrounded by a red border. The work was completed by Maxwell Hill, a Lynn street-artist.

Mayor Brian Arrigo commended the Council's action that recognized veterans. "We are privileged that men and women across this country enlist in the military to protect our freedoms, and we owe them a continuing debt after they come home," said the Mayor. "Finding a convenient parking space is one of life's simple pleasures, and we are glad to provide that for our veterans."

The Womens Auxiliary of the Beaumont VFW will host a Purple Heart Dinner at the Club on Wednesday night.

RED SOX INVITE RHS STUDENTS TO SPEND THEIR SUMMER AT FENWAY PARK

For less than the cost of a movie ticket, Revere High School students can enjoy the magic of Boston Red Sox baseball at Fenway Park this summer. The Red Sox are offering young fans affordable tickets to games through the team's Student 9's program, which provides high school and college students the opportunity to purchase $9 tickets with a valid student ID at every home game.

"We continuously look to provide greater access to Fenway Park for young fans, and our Student 9's program offers both native and visiting students from around the New England the opportunity to share in the exhilaration of attending a Red Sox game within a student's budget," said Red Sox President and CEO Sam Kennedy. "Students can come to a game at Fenway Park for less than the price of a movie ticket with minimal advance planning. By offering the student community the lowest priced tickets at the ballpark, we hope to instill our love for the sport and memorable experiences for this next generation of Red Sox fans."

Student 9's are the lowest-priced tickets at Fenway Park and provide access with guaranteed standing room tickets and the potential for an upgrade pending availability. As a member of the program, students can also enjoy invitations to exclusive student events including a post-game "Deck Party" atop the Sam Deck, complete with music, re-opened concessions and more.

High school and collegiate fans can register to receive student offers by visiting redsox.com/student or text 'students' to the Red Sox at 23215 to sign up for alerts at any time.

Student tickets will be delivered to mobile devices or available through the MLB Ballpark App. Students can scan their ticket directly from their phone when they arrive at the ballpark gates and are asked to bring their student ID for verification to gain entry.

The Student 9's program is a part of the Red Sox Fan and Youth initiative which aims to provide greater access to Red Sox games, enhance kids experiences at Fenway Park, and celebrate and strengthen the game of baseball in the community. For the full details on the Student 9's program, please visit redsox.com/student.

Ireton announces candidacy for Councillor-at-Large

Candidate for Councillor-at-Large Richard Ireton.

Richard Ireton has announced his candidacy for Councillor-at-Large. The following is his statement:

"For the last 30 years I've worked in the technology field building business platforms for organizations such as Dell, Safari, Vertex and my current position with IBM. My career in technology has been a passion. I have also been very much involved in local government here in Revere.

Over the last decade I've watched as Revere has grown significantly. Some good and some very questionable. While I'm not alone with this, I'm very concerned with the escalating residential development. Particularly, Multi-unit apartment buildings; the Shaw's project, Overlook Ridge, and now, the proposed development at Suffolk Downs. As these projects come online the impact on Revere, in my opinion, is significant. From increased traffic to a serious burden on city services, to increased tax rates to the Revere ratepayers. That's why I support controlled development.

I understand that progress is necessary. I understand that for a community to grow it needs these types of projects, but it seems that lately all we are seeing is a high increase of multi-unit residential dwellings without any consider-

City still coping with tornado damages five years later

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

Five years after Revere's infamous tornado on the morning of July 28, 2014, the city is still making repairs. The EF-2 tornado had estimated peak winds of 100 to 120 mph. It cut a two-mile path in the Broadway area. A tree went through the high school, lines were down everywhere and streets were impassable. Many buildings were damaged, including ones owned by the city.

Overseeing all the tornado-related repairs is George Anzuoni, director of finance for the city. For the past five years Anzuoni and a small tornado committee have dealt with the insurance companies, contractors, piles of paperwork and more.

Anzuoni predicts it will take another year or two to make things right. The work has taken this long purely because of the process that the city had to go through. Compiling data and having the right paperwork took time to be done right.

"We documented every bit of damage," he said.

At City Hall, the roof, which some say was lifted by the wind, was repaired at a cost of $1.3 million. The cupola and the clock tower were repaired. The clock is now an atomic clock, which sets itself and is accurate. At night the clock tower faces light up.

The City Hall project also included installing copper downspouts and new gutters.

ation to how these projects are negatively impacting our city.

For example, to support these projects we need to be sure we're focused on our infrastructure. To aimlessly build multi-unit residential buildings without thinking about everything that supports them is not a very good plan. Recently there's been talk about either building or renovating the Point of Pines fire station. There's also been talk about a new DPW facility. But that's all it's been is talk. These are the projects that need to be done in advance of building all these apartment buildings.

I'm not sure how many folks have had the opportunity to see the current DPW facility, but to put it plainly, the facility is deplorable. We expect the folks at the DPW to do their job, but we don't give them what's needed to actually do the job they're responsible for. This building is not only structurally unfit, but I believe it's a health hazard to the workers there. I think one of the first things I would ask for is to have OSHA come in and give their opinion as to what the safety and health hazards are with the building. I'm not sure how many people remember but this is what the city had to do to get the new police station. So, while I hesitate at a complete moratorium on growing our city, I would support suspending any future development until we address our less than adequate infrastructure. Once these public safety concerns are met then we can look at how to move forward with development.

These are just a few reasons why I announced my candidacy for Councillor at-Large. I feel we need new vision and new thoughts. Thank you for considering me as one of your five votes for councilor at large.

moving around of offices.

"The building shook," he said. "It caused some problems with pipes and sewer lines. We've taken care of all that."

In addition to City Hall, there were many other tornado repairs to municipal buildings.

"We've done a number of roofs," he said. "We took care of City Hall last because the schools were most important."

A new roof at the high school, another new roof at the senior center, the American Legion building, the central fire station and the Parks and Recreation roof.

All total, Anzuoni believes the final cost will be about $6 million, all from insurance money.

of 50.1 percent (Source: CollegeBoard).

"One day in November, I remarked that they all should take Advanced Placement English Literature and Composition when they were seniors. They explained to me that because of [Revere High School's] block schedule, which only permits four classes, they didn't know if they'd be able to take all the Advanced Placement courses that they wanted; many students were focusing on careers in the sciences or mathematics," Barile noted. She explained that "almost as a joke," she replied to her students that they should try and take the exam as sophomores instead. To her surprise, one of the students replied, "Can we?"

After speaking to the Revere High School Director of Humanities, Dr. Christina Porter, and the Director of Guidance, Diana Finn, Barile and her group of students received the final approval from CollegeBoard, the distributor of the national exam. "The proposition was a win-win. If students didn't pass, they could take the exam again as juniors and seniors. If they did pass, it would look incredible on their transcript for college," she explained.

Barile also explained how the test can be "tricky." She noted, "[A student has] to answer 55 multiple-choice questions and write three essays: one on poetry, one on prose, and one on a novel."

Following the students' decision to tackle the exam, Barile added a fun set of stakes. "This class loved reading plays, so I told them that if half the class passed the exam, I'd take them to New York City to see 'Jagged Little Pill.' These kids deserved it."

"In Ms. Barile's class throughout the year, she progressively challenged us more and gave us more challenging work pushing us to grow," noted student Sarah Condelli. She described Barile's teaching style, using a technique called Making Student Thinking Visible that, in Barile's words, ensured that "everyone's voice could be heard." The teaching style places students at the focus of class discussions, and allows for even the quietest students to play a major role in group analyses. Condelli noted, "I liked how we often worked in groups to analyze readings and answer questions and how we would regroup and reflect on our assignments in class."

Condelli not only received a passing score on the exam, but excelled and earned a four out of five, stating, "I felt confident on the essay portion [of the exam]," she said adding, "I hoped to get a three, because that was a passing mark, but when I saw that I got a four, I was taken aback because I didn't expect to get above a passing grade."

Elijah Nater, another sophomore student, explained his experience in the course to be "rewarding" and "challenging." Nater noted, "I really enjoyed engaging with all sorts of different texts, from around the world and at different time periods. I learned more than what was on the page, and I took away a lot of valuable life lessons on top of just analysis skills."

Nater said that while he struggled with some work in the course, it made him a "better learner" overall. "I felt like Ms. Barile and the class as a whole helped me develop as a student, no matter what classroom I am in. I was really happy to be apart of the class."

Adrianna Fusco described the class as "a real challenge" for her. "The way [Ms. Barile] taught was so much different than any other teacher I've ever had. Her class constantly pushed me and took me out of my comfort zone, but I don't regret taking her class. She really taught me something new this year and taught me how to persevere when things get tough."

Fusco continued, noting, "I was so proud of myself when I scored high on the exam and was kind of shocked at how well I did. After all this, I realized how valuable Ms. Barile's class was and how much she helped me grow over the year."

After reading all four novels on the sophomore curriculum, Barile's students read "The Awakening," by Kate Chopin, "Fences" by August Wilson, "A Doll's House" by Henrik Ibsen, "Franny" and "Raise the Roof Beam, Carpenters" by J.D. Salinger, "A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams, and "Sofia Petronova" by Lydia Chukovskaya. Barile noted that the students also read Michael Patrick MacDonald's "All Souls," and then Michael came in to speak to them about overcoming trauma and the writing process. "The class also read and analyzed over 30 poems, as well as nonfiction essays and literary criticisms. Barile noted, "They never complained—rather, they devoured everything I gave them."

Following the exam, Barile said, "Some students felt confident after the test, and I, quite frankly, no longer cared that much about scores. I knew the students worked hard, and I knew they learned and improved. I told them we'd go to New York no matter what the scores."

In the end, Barile was "blown away" by the scores of her students, and said, "The experience was incredible, and it was very rejuvenating for me as a veteran teacher. I definitely learned as much from these students as they did from me."

If you'd like to help Ms. Barile's class get to New York City, you may send a check made out to "Revere Public Schools," to Nancy Barile, Revere High School, 101 School St., Revere, MA 02151. All donations are tax deductible.

City officials seek to educate residents on proper recycling methods

Journal Staff Report

Revere Department of Public Works Director Paul Argenzio said the recycling education program in the city is advancing smoothly in its first month.

As a result of a $40,000 grant from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, the city was able to launch the program on July 8 to educate residents about the proper regulations for the disposal of recyclable materials.

“The grant is aimed at re-educating the public as to what they can recycle and what they can’t,” said Argenzio.

He said the reason recycling has become more costly than trash right now is because “people are not recycling properly.”

“The recycling is going to a recycling facility and all they’re getting is trash basically, so they have to dispose of it as trash,” explained Argenzio.

Argenzio said residents who have not been recycling correctly get a tag on their recycling bin. “Oops” stickers are placed on a resident’s recycling bins if they aren’t conforming to regulations.

“The sticker hangs on the handle and it informs the residents what they did wrong,” said Argenzio. “The recycling company pushes that bin aside and after a resident corrects the problem, the recycling company takes the bin on the next recycling day. If you get an ‘Oops’ sticker, you have to wait two weeks before we come back to pick up the recycling.”

Argenzio said there are no fines given to residents who are not recycling properly.

“This is purely educational – we’re not fining people,” he said.

“But we have to stop taking bins that are not recycling. The worst thing we’re finding is that people are bagging their recycling materials. They’ll take all their plastic items and put them in a trash bag and they’ll put the bag in the recycling bin. The recycling facilities are almost 100 percent automated so when the recycling goes on the different conveyor belts, they have a system designed to separate the plastic from the paper. If you put everything in a trash bag, when it gets to the recycling facility, the automated system can’t divide it up when it’s supposed to be. All recycling materials should be kept loose in the bins.

Revere Police planned well for festival traffic

By Cary Shuman

One of the biggest concerns in advance of the International Sand Sculpting Festival held July 26-28 was the expected high-volume vehicular traffic that had created an inconvenience for visitors and Revere residents alike in previous years.

But thanks to a comprehensive planning effort by Mayor Brian Arrigo, the Revere Police, and the Mass. State Police, traffic flowed well throughout the weekend in the city while the event went off smoothly and safely.

“We put together a plan for this year’s sandcastle event based on the traffic woes that we had last year, which consisted of keeping the traffic flowing on North Shore Road, from Mahoney Circle down to Revere Street – I think the results were very good,” said Guido.

The chief felt a pre-event press conference – at which it was strongly suggested by officials that people use alternate routes to Boston and Logan Airport – also helped decrease traffic near the beach.

“People adhered to the warnings and it made a big difference,” said Guido. “It made the event much more successful. The traffic was slower than normal, but it was flowing. We didn’t have the gridlock we had a year ago.”

Guido said the busiest day of the festival was on Saturday, July 27, especially when the fireworks exhibition was held that night.

He said at least 35 Revere police officers were deployed for traffic during the festival in coordination with a contingent of State Police troopers who also drew commendation for their efforts in making the festival a safe, secure event for the one million visitors to the boulevard.

“I think the residents of Revere were happy with our efforts,” said Guido. “We’ve received all good reviews.”

Ward 5 Councillor John Powers said the control of traffic was much improved from previous years.

“I attribute that to the Revere Police Department having many officers at intersections in the city where traffic could have backed up considerably more,” said Powers. “I know that Chief Guido and Mayor Arrigo worked hard to make sure there was adequate traffic supervision from the Revere Police Department.”

Powers said the festival does bring a lot of traffic in to the city, “however, it also brings a lot of positive recognition to the city.”

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO OUR COUNTRY?

"I say violence is necessary. Violence is a part of America's culture. It is as American as cherry pie." -- Jamil Abdullah Al-Amin, also known as H. Rap Brown.

America has been rooted in violence since our founding. We broke free from England violently and used violent means to expand our nation both geographically (the Mexican War, the Indian Wars, and the Spanish-American War) and economically (slavery).

The Louisiana Purchase and the purchase of Alaska from Russia uniquely expanded our borders through peaceful means.

We also have engaged in countless, unprovoked uses of force, military and otherwise, to preserve our way of life from enemies both real and perceived, intervening in their internal affairs, both in this hemisphere and far away (Vietnam and Iraq).

It was violence that tore us apart and nearly destroyed our country in the 1860s, and it was through violent means -- lynchings and segregation -- that the South enforced Jim Crow laws after the Civil War.

For those of us who grew up in the 1960s and '70s, Martin Luther King and the Civil Rights movement stood out because they sought to achieve change through peaceful means at a time when self-described revolutionary groups brought domestic violence to our TV screens with bombings and other acts of violence.

But throughout our history and despite our legacy of violence, we had leaders who understood that violence -- military and otherwise -- could sow the seeds of our own destruction.

From George Washington, who in his farewell address stated, "Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all," to Abraham Lincoln, "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory will swell when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature," to Dwight Eisenhower, "In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex," our wisest and greatest leaders have warned us of the perils of disunity at home and military ventures abroad.

The White Nationalist movement plaguing our nation today actively preaches violence as a means of overthrowing our government and ending our way of life as we know it.

They are not Americans, for they do not accept Jefferson's ideal that, "All men are created equal."

The massacre in El Paso this weekend was the latest example of what happens when our leaders fail to stand up to our founding principles and fail to enact common-sense laws that would limit the damage they can inflict.

The America as we have known it for the past 231 years is falling apart, little by little. The only question now is whether we have reached the breaking point or whether we still have the time -- and the will -- to repair the damage and save us from ourselves.

LETTERS to the Editor

WARD 4 COMMUNITY MEETINGS

Dear Editor,

Councilor Patrick Keefe is pleased to announce continued Ward 4 Community Meetings.

Our committee is focused on continuing to bring city hall to the residents and have their concerns heard. As always direct communication and collaboration works best. I think the ability to meet with residents face to face will not only give them the opportunity to be heard but also bring the community even closer together and give everyone a form of inclusion. I am happy to announce that Saturday Aug. 17, at 11am will be our committee's third quarter community meeting at Luber's Bakery on Broadway. We look forward to seeing everyone for an informative gathering.

Patrick Keefe

DENTAL OFFICE THANKS FIREFIGHTERS

Dear Editor,

We would like to thank Chief Bright and his amazing firefighters who battled the recent fire at the Bagel Bin Deli. Our office is located next door at One Orr Square. Although we sustained smoke and water damage, your firefighters were able to save our business and building. We will be forever grateful to these amazing first responders.

We would also like to give special recognition to Deputy Chief Glenn Rich. Deputy Rich was calm under the most stressful conditions, and helped us remain calm and deal with the deluge of water that came into our building from the water used to fight the fire.

You should be so proud of each and every one of these amazing people. They are true heroes.

Wheelabrator responds to Revere residents’ concerns about noise

By Cary Shuman

At a Saugus Board of Health of meeting Monday night, a Wheelabrator official responded to concerns expressed by Revere residents that excessive noise was coming from the waste-to-energy facility during a 10-day period in June.

The noise was caused by a malfunctioning steam turbine that has been repaired.

Jim Connolly, Wheelabrator Technology vice president of Environmental Health and Safety, attended the meeting and addressed the audience following remarks by Saugus and Revere residents. In a statement to the media, Connolly said, “Wheelabrator Saugus takes seriously our commitment to being a good neighbor. When we received complaints associated with recent repairs to the facility, we took immediate steps to resolve the issue.

“We also communicated regularly with the appropriate town officials in advance of, and throughout the repair process,” continued Connolly. “Nonetheless we understand that the noise inconvenienced some of our neighbors.”

Connolly added that Wheelabrator is conducting engineering evaluations to determine additional steps to minimize noise during future repairs.”

William Haffernan, chair of the Saugus Board of Health, stated at the outset that Monday’s public forum was being held “to make their feelings known about the noise.”

State Rep. RoseLee Vincent, whose district includes Saugus and Revere, and Revere residents Elle Baker and Loretta LaCendra, spoke at the forum.

“I am here to voice my

Rep. RoseLee Vincent was among officials there to voice her concerns with Wheelabrator’s noise.

deepest concern over the safety, health, and environmental impact that the oldest incinerator in the country (circa 1975) has on the people I represent in Saugus and Revere,” said Vincent. “The recent and unprecedented noise assault on our neighborhoods that lasted for well over six weeks is unconscionable.

“It is a very real signal that there is something very wrong with this nearly 50-year-old incinerator,” said Vincent. “Although the 24/7 noise has somewhat abated, it’s still occurring, and is a clear indication that this incinerator does not, and will not meet the same standards that are afforded to people who live in other communities across the Commonwealth.”

Vincent called upon the Board of Health “to finally hold Wheelabrator accountable for their actions.”

Baker, a founding member of the Alliance for Health and Environment (who held a pre-meeting press conference outside Saugus Town Hall), said she is a neighbor to Wheelabrator “along with 600 Revere residents living within a half-mile” of the facility.

“We live here and we have a right to clean air, clean water and to be free from excessive noise,” said Baker, who illuminated on other public health concerns about Wheelabrator in her remarks.

LaCentra said she came to the meeting to discuss “what I call the three Ws: Wheelabrator, why, and worry.”

“Why are they [Wheelabrator] allowed to disrupt our sleep over and over again causing sleeplessness, stress, and hearing loss with their noise levels?” LaCentra asked.

Turning her address to the “worry” portion of her comments, LaCentra said, “We shouldn’t have to worry about being unable to sleep or being woken up out of a sound sleep by noise that continues over the course of weeks or months.”

Among the Revere city officials in attendance at the meeting were Councillor-at-Large Anthony Zambuto and Ward 5 Councillor John Powers. Zambuto pledged at the July 29 City Council meeting that he would attend the Saugus public forum. Zambuto, a long-time councillor who is seeking re-election in November, followed through on his pledge, taking his seat in the back of the hall and listening intently to each speaker.

Powers commented after the meeting, “I was very happy to see the Saugus Board of Health take up this very important issue,” said Powers. “I’ve visited the site [Riverside in Point of Pines] often as a result of phone calls from the many residents who have heard the noise. I’m troubled by the fact that the Saugus Board of Health has allowed this noise pollution to continue for this long a period of time.”

Heffernan, who noted he grew up in Saugus “in the shadow of Wheelabrator (formerly RESCO),” asked Wheelabrator to continue to have an open line of communications between the company and the town.

“We need to come together again. We need to sit down and we need to talk,” said Heffernan, thanking Wheelabrator officials for their attendance at the meeting. “We heard the constituents of Lynn, Saugus, and Revere clearly. We’ve been given an awful lot of information tonight. I guess my main point would be that we would appreciate it if Wheelabrator would consider attending our monthly meetings. I think things like this could have been avoided.”

Heffernan said the Board of Health will confer with its legal counsel to determine the next step forward for the town of Saugus.

“We are here as volunteers to serve the public trust and protect the health and well-being of the citizens of both Saugus and the surrounding communities,” Heffernan concluded.

players from all over Revere will take to the beach. Teams compete against each other with a player getting a chance to roll three balls toward a smaller ball called a pallino. The referee rolls the pallino on the court. The goal is to get your bocce ball closest to the pallino. “You can knock your competitor’s ball out of position to get near the pallino,” Upton said.

Helping make sure the games are all fair and square a group from “The Joy of Bocce,” with Mario and Carmela Pagnoni will be on hand.

In addition, there will also a couple of classic cars on display.

A rendering of Springhill Suites, which are slated to be the newest development in Waterfront Square.

Callahan begins construction on new Revere hotel

Callahan Construction Managers (Callahan) announces it has broken ground at the new SpringHill Suites by Marriott at Revere Beach. Callahan was tasked to build the new-construction property, which is scheduled for delivery in May 2021. CR architecture + design served as architect on the project, which is being managed by Upton + Partners.

The SpringHill Suites will be a six-story hotel featuring 168 guestrooms, two levels of indoor parking, an indoor pool, 5,000 square-foot restaurant, a 4,000 square-foot function room, and a Starbucks accessible via the neighborhood skybridge. The property's design was developed by CR architecture + design and was inspired by the nearby coastline with soft, natural colors and strong organic forms that resemble the coast.

"Revere's SpringHill Suites project includes a variety of complicated building elements, from designing for a coastal environment to attaching to the skybridge, the epicenter and causeway of the new Waterfront Square neighborhood," stated Jamie Gamauf, Director of Hospitality at CR architecture + design. "Callahan's previous experience with waterfront development and unique building design made them a natural choice for construction of the hotel."

The SpringHill Suites hotel will be the next phase of the 11-acre, 1.3-million-square-foot Waterfront Square mixed-use development. The master-planned project will include hotels, condominiums, apartments, retail and restaurant space, all connected to the beach via a neighborhood skybridge over Ocean Avenue. Located adjacent to the Wonderland T stop (blue line), the transit-oriented development provides easy access to Boston. Two residential apartment buildings offering 400 new apartments were recently completed, with an additional 320 luxury residences under construction. Waterfront Square will also include a public plaza.

"Callahan is thrilled to have the opportunity to work in the city of Revere on the landmark, master planned project in Waterfront Square," states Pat Callahan, President of Callahan Construction. "SpringHill Suites allows us to participate in yet another transit-oriented development, as well as another waterfront property where construction and design must anticipate a variety of environmental factors."

Once complete this project will offer easy access to Logan Airport for travelers and tourists, and convenience to downtown Boston via the T, bus or car.

The SpringHill Suites is one of numerous new-construction projects for Callahan in Revere. They have also been tasked to build five residential properties, Rumney Flats, One Beachmont, part of the Beachmont T redevelopment, 21 Revere Beach Blvd. and 50 Ocean Ave. and 500 Ocean Ave., which sits adjacent to the Springhill Suites in the Waterfront Square development.

DeLeo, Vincent and Boncore point out local benefits in new state budget

The Massachusetts Legislature passed its Fiscal Year 2020 (FY20) budget, which invests in programs and services across the Commonwealth. Funded at $43.1 billion, the budget makes major investments in education, housing, substance use disorder services, health care, and other areas while projecting a more than $476 million deposit into the Stabilization Fund – bringing the fund’s balance to more than $3 billion to safeguard the future of vital programs and services.

“I am proud of this fiscally responsible budget that supports the needs of individuals, families, and communities across the Commonwealth through thoughtful investments that increase local aid, strengthen our health care system and protect the environment,” said House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo (D-Winthrop). “This budget bolsters our ongoing efforts to combat the opioid crisis, invest in high-quality early education and care and makes another significant deposit into the state’s Stabilization Fund. These investments will have a long and lasting positive effect on the residents of Massachusetts. I want to thank Chair Michlewitz for his leadership and my colleagues in the House, especially those on the conference committee, who worked to put this package together.”

“Education is a top Senate priority, and I am therefore proud of the significant investments we make in K-12 education in the final FY2020 budget,” said Senate President Karen E. Spilka (D-Ashland). “Not only have we voted to advance the largest year-over-year increase in Chapter 70 education funding in the last two decades, we have also made a substantial down payment towards funding the recommendations of the Foundation Budget Review Commission (FBRC), this budget.”

“I want to thank Speaker DeLeo and my colleagues in the Legislature for their collective efforts in securing funding in the budget for valuable programs that serve the people of Revere and the entire Commonwealth,” said Representative RoseLee Vincent (D-Revere). “This budget reflects investing in state services and programs that will enhance the quality of life for Massachusetts residents. In addition to local programs, I am proud that this budget places targeted investments in education, health care, and services for veterans and vulnerable populations, like the elderly, among others.”

“This budget makes important investments in local programs that help families and individuals battling substance use, supports public safety officers, and reiterates our commitment to providing adequate funding for our public schools,” said Senator Joseph Boncore (D-Winthrop). “Further, this fiscal year’s version of the budget makes important investments in programs that provide housing aid to the state’s most vulnerable population and moves Massachusetts closer to transportation equity.”

Items particular to Winthrop and Revere include:

- $1.3 million for the maintenance of metropolitan beaches including those in Revere and Winthrop;

- $1 million for State Police Directed Patrols, which will aid in coverage on Revere Beach during the summer months;
- $76,000 for suicide prevention services in Winthrop;

Lynn, was transported from the scene to Massachusetts General Hospital, where he died of his injuries.

Though the details are murky at best now, and Everett Police are not speaking about the matter, officers pursued the suspect in Everett around 12:30 a.m. on Sunday. During the chase, the suspect crossed into Revere, which also means he crossed from Middlesex County to Suffolk County – giving Rollins rather than Middlesex DA Marian Ryan jurisdiction over the investigation.

Neighbors in Revere who were at the scene described that the suspect might have fired on police during the incident, causing them to fire fatally on him. The shooting occurred near the intersection of Washington Avenue and Sargent Street.

Rollins said she will conduct a thorough review of the facts.

“I’m grateful that no bystanders or members of law enforcement were injured in this morning’s police-involved shooting or the sequence of events that preceded it,” she said in a statement. “However, I acknowledge that a family is grieving the loss of a loved one today. I want to assure that family, the community, and members of law enforcement that there will be a transparent and impartial review of this encounter in order to provide the answers that they deserve.”

Suffolk prosecutors and State Police detectives assigned to the Suffolk County District Attorney’s Office responded to the scene of the fatal shooting in the area of Washington Avenue at approximately 12:30 a.m.

By statute, the Office of the District Attorney leads and controls all death investigations. District Attorney Rollins has appointed members of the State Police detective unit assigned to her office to conduct the investigation into the fatal shooting. Members of the Revere Police Department and additional State Police personnel responded to the scene to assist in the investigation.

Anyone who witnessed any portion of the incident is urged to contact the Suffolk County State Police Detective Unit at 617-727-8817.

over the area in the shooting’s aftermath. Police closed part of North Shore Road and Revere Street, which resulted in unusual traffic jams in the area. Early investigation indicates that the gunfire came from another vehicle. State and Revere police are continuing their investigation.

- Sunday morning at approximately 12:30 a.m., Everett police were involved in a chase that began in Everett and continued into Revere onto Washington Avenue. The chase culminated when an Everett police officer allegedly shot the suspect, a 34-year old Lynn man who later died from his injuries. The incident involved no Revere police and the investigation into the matter is led by the Suffolk County District Attorney’s office.
- 2. Observations and our Commitment to Public Safety
 - Only one of these events actually involved a criminal act in the City of Revere. That act involved at least one non-Massachusetts individual who was travelling in an automobile on a state highway that passes through Revere for approximately three of its 95-mile length.
 - Two matters originated in neighboring cities, one culminating in Revere thanks to good police work by Revere officers and one culminating in Revere on the action of an Everett police officer. Neither involved a criminal act in this City.

- Overall crime statistics in Revere have followed a downward trend in recent years. In regard to gang and youth violence. Revere police have implemented dynamic programs such as the Revere Police Youth Academy, the Police Activities League, and have assigned officers specifically to social intervention, community engagement, and crime suppression supported by the Charles E. Shannon Community Safety Initiative grants that are funded by the State Executive Office of Public Safety.
- Staffing levels at the Revere Police Department are at their highest in years, currently at 105 with two more designated to begin training at the Police Academy in the near future and will increase our number to 107.
- While communities across the country confront the proliferation of illegal guns, and opioid abuse fuels criminal activity, Revere has been in the forefront of affirmative steps to prevent crime rather than react to it. The Police Department works continuously with the School Department and Revere’s Office of Substance Abuse Disorder Initiatives to identify potential problems, isolate trouble spots, and foster productive interaction to assist those in need while protecting the public good.

Make no mistake, any type of criminal activity is a cause for concern. But it is irresponsible to heighten those concerns with incomplete, inaccurate, and incendiary commentary on social media. When we do so, our community suffers. It is especially incumbent on those of us in public life and who hold official office in the City of Revere to be conscious of the consequences of our remarks. It is incumbent on us to refrain from hasty, provocative, and unfounded conclusions, lest we mislead and agitate the very people we are sworn to serve.

Tragic events in El Paso, Texas and Dayton, Ohio made people especially anxious this weekend. It is regrettable that one unpreventable criminal act in our City was magnified into a crime wave that quite simply does not exist today in the City of Revere. We have full confidence in the capable men and women of the Revere Police Department who are vigilant and committed to protecting and serving the City.

Revere kids join Save the Harbor/Save the Bay for free cruises to the Boston Harbor Islands

This July, 120 young people from Revere Parks and Recreation set sail to the Boston Harbor Islands on Bay State Cruise Company's flagship Provincetown II on a free All Access Boston Harbor cruise hosted by Save the Harbor/Save the Bay.

The youth and teens enjoyed a day filled with fun, fishing, environmental exploration and songs and stories of the sea.

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's free All Access Boston Harbor program is a series of free day trips that bring local youth organizations out to Spectacle and Georges Island where they have an opportunity to learn the history of Boston Harbor and the harbor cleanup, explore everything the island has to offer, and enjoy Boston's spectacular urban natural resources.

"What a great way to spend a summer day," said Tani Marinovich, President of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. "The Harbor Islands are truly Boston's treasure, and we're certain that the 230,000 kids and families that have attended these free trips since we began them in 2002 would agree."

Over the summer Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's free

All Access Boston Harbor program will connect more than 10,000 youth and teens from more than 120 youth development and community organizations to the Boston Harbor Island National and State Park.

The day starts with an interactive history of the harbor, complete with storytelling, art and a touch-tank at the Rockland Trust Pavilion. From there, the groups make their way to the dock at the World Trade Center to board the boat and take a short ferry ride out to the islands, where they have the chance to try fishing, hiking, sports and beach exploration with Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's Youth Environmental Education staff. The groups enjoy lunch on the island and return to the docks by early afternoon.

In 2019, Save the Harbor will host 26 free All Access Boston Harbor cruises that will connecting young people from all Boston neighborhoods and 43 cities and towns across the region, to the Boston Harbor Islands State and National Park. For many, these trips are their first opportunity to connect to the harbor islands and experience the marine environment first hand.

A group of 120 young people from Revere Parks and Recreation smile before venturing out to the Boston Harbor islands with Save the Harbor/Save the Bay this past July.

Save the Harbor's free All Access Boston Harbor cruises are made possible with Leadership Grants from the Cronin Development, the Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs, and Bay State Cruise Company.

Fire origin still undetermined at Bagel Bin

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

The cause of the four-alarm fire at the Bagel Bin last week has been listed as undetermined by the Revere and state fire investigation unit.

"The origin of the fire is believed to have been in a void space between the ceiling and the roof in the rear of the building near the kitchen area," said Capt. Robert Fortuna. "The estimate of damage is $1.5 million for the building and its contents."

The first call came in around 11:49 p.m. July 29 and soon turned to four-alarms as firefighters worked through the early morning hours on July 30 to douse the flames. When dawn broke you could see right through The Bagel Bin at 207 Shirley Ave. Just a shell stood.

Owners George and Ella Villadesi, immigrants from Albania who have run the restaurant for 20 years, vowed to rebuild.

BY SUE ELLEN WOODCOCK
The Shirley Avenue icon stands boarded up.

The Bagel Bin was the go-to place for those seeking political office, locally and nationally. The restaurant has served as a forum for Gov. Charlie Baker to announce grants or stop into on his way home to Swampscott during winter storms. Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo has been a patron and even the late U.S. Sen. John McCain found his way there in 2008 while campaigning for President.

The single-story restaurant with a basement was the equivalent of two store-fronts, each with large commercial glass windows and a glass door. These, as well as the door in the rear, were protected by heavy-duty steel roll-down grates and locks.

Ladder 1 had an aerial view of the roof and through the use of the thermal imaging camera realized the roof was being compromised. The partially collapsed roof made it difficult to reach the hidden pockets of fire adding to difficulty of extinguishment.

In all Engine and Ladder Co.'s from Revere, Chelsea, Malden, Massport, Lynn, Everett, Boston, Saugus and Cambridge responded to the four-alarm fire. There were no reported injuries and the incident was closed pending investigation.

Police identify and arrest graffiti vandal 'Goon'

Following a six-week investigation, members of the Revere Police Department Narcotics / Gang Unit, Patrol Division, and Massachusetts State Police arrested a 17-year-old Revere resident and charged him with 49 counts of tagging property throughout the City of Revere.

Pursuant to a search warrant issued out of Chelsea District Court on Aug. 5, Revere Police detectives assigned to the investigation along with Troopers from the Massachusetts State Police located a large amount of contraband consistent with the "Goon" tagging that has defaced residential and commercial property throughout the city over the past few weeks.

Mayor Brian Arrigo praised the work of law enforcement. "I commend all law enforcement officials involved for their diligent work to protect our city's appearance and reputation," he said. "These types of crimes cannot be ignored because vandalism like this can have a devastating effect on city's morale."

Chief James Guido of the Revere Police Department stated, "I am extremely pleased with the investigative efforts of the Revere Police Department and the assistance of the Massachusetts State Police that brought this individual to justice."

Photos & Story by Marianne Salza

As the morning fog rolled across the ripples of Short Beach, families examined the divots revealed by the receded shore during the August 6 Tidepool Exploration, sponsored by the DCR, Friends of Belle Isle Marsh, and Save the Harbor/ Save the Bay. DCR Naturalist Matthew Nash explained local marine life to curious little ones who grabbed heaps of live seaweed, and collected rocks, their knees covered in globs of wet sand. Families watched two dueling hermit crabs, and sifted beneath lifted rocks with a net, discovering four species of crabs on the beach. They also learned about European oysters, which were experimented on and grown in Salem Harbor for a food source, and are now part of the natural environment.

RBC recognizes Friendly Gardens apartments

Most people think that individual homes are the only ones eligible for the Revere Beautification Committee's "Beautiful Home" award. This is untrue as evidenced by the recipient of this month's award.

The RBC recently selected the Friendly Garden complex on Revere Street as a recipient of this honor. As in many instances around the city, there is not a large amount of land available for planting at this site. The residents of the Friendly Gardens didn't let that stop them. They took things into their hands and landscaped their property creating a lovely effect.

As one drives into the property, the driveway is full of color on both sides. On the left side of the drive there are plantings chock full of red, white and purple colored flowers. Some are around trees while others border the rounded edges of the grass creating a lively impression.

This effect is duplicated on the right side of the driveway.

The multi-colored flowers of petunias and begonias flank the entrance to the building. This effect is continued down the drive to the Revere Street entrance and around the building along Revere Street. Added to the petunias and begonias are hostas, evergreen bushes, rose bushes and sedum. All available space is filled with lovely color! In addition, there are two decorative benches on the sidewalk into the building creating a welcoming effect.

The original work was done by Mike's Landscaping of Malden but the daily work is being done by a group of the residents of the complex. Residents Stacy Ventola and Maryann Irwin perform the daily work to keep the property looking so lovely and George Salerno helps with all of the holiday decorations. This team effort has produced a beautiful product.

This is truly a labor of love for the Friendly Garden Team as evidenced by their statement that "We have a passion for working on the landscaping. It's very rewarding when members comment on how beautiful the grounds look each season. Some of the members who are unable to leave their apartment tell us that they smile when they look out their window and see all the beautiful flowers."

The Revere Beautification Committee (RBC) congratulates the members of the Friendly Gardens team and encourage other apartment/condominium complexes to emulate them by beautifying their property.

Massport announces communication campaign as series of construction projects begin at Logan

The Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport) today announced a communication plan to inform passengers, employees and tenants about an upcoming series of construction projects at Boston Logan International Airport. The projects will have major impacts to the traveling public, including roadway detours starting this fall, and will all be completed within the next five years.

The Authority is preparing New England's gateway airport for a growing number of passengers driven by the robust economy and industry trends. Massport is branding this campaign "Logan Forward," complete with a new website and a text alert program coming later this fall to keep the public informed as we make important investments to improve the customer experience at Logan. In addition, Massport is training airport staff, and will use radio, print and digital advertising to get the word out to our passengers. There will also be signage throughout the airport terminals and along the roadways. Logan served 40.9 million passengers in 2018, and has nearly 20,000 full and part-time employees.

"Logan Forward" is our commitment to improve the passenger experience and we pledge to keep the public informed every step of the way throughout the construction process so they can appropriately plan ahead," said incoming Massport CEO Lisa Wieland. "This will be a long process and communication with our passengers will be key."

Massport is undergoing a nearly $2 billion capital plan to improve the efficiency and customer experience throughout Logan Airport. It involves several major projects over the next five years, including:

- Terminal B to C roadway improvements;
- A new Terminal B-C post-security connection;
- New gates and a 2,000-space parking garage at Terminal E;
- Increased sustainability efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions;
- Better access to and more high occupancy vehicle (HOV) transportation options.

A new website www.LoganForward.com has been set up to provide more information about each of these projects, as well as construction timelines and updates. A new text alert program is also in the works and will be available later this fall. Passengers, employees and tenants will be able to get up-to-date messages about road detours and traffic impacts.

"Logan Forward" also includes a robust Ground Transportation plan aimed at reducing the airport's environmental footprint by strategically providing more options for passengers to use HOV, like Logan Express (LEX). LEX is the seventh largest transit system in Massachusetts with Back Bay and four suburban locations in Braintree, Framingham, Woburn, and Peabody.

Within the next five years, a new LEX service will be available at North Station and another suburban location; more parking spaces will be available in Braintree and Framingham; and more buses will service Framingham. A new centralized TNC, or App

Ride, pickup/dropoff area inside Logan's Central Garage is also under construction to give passengers a better experience and an option for discounted shared rides. The goal is to eliminate about 1.5 million empty, or "deadheading," TNC vehicles and double LEX ridership from 2 million to 4 million. This will reduce congestion and air emissions at Logan and will benefit our neighboring communities.

Construction on a few of these projects has already begun and so far there has only been a handful of minor interruptions. Starting this fall, and throughout the next five years, there will be major impacts.

Some of the improvements are needed to support the current passenger load and construction for the Terminal B to C roadway improvement project has already begun. The project will replace the aging roadway infrastructure between the two terminals and significantly reduce traffic congestion, especially during peak hours of operation. Separate roads for both terminals will ease traffic flow and increase curb space at Terminal C. As part of the Ground Transportation strategy, we are also adding new roads to and from the Central Garage to separate App Ride vehicles from other traffic.

"We have a responsibility to build a modern, world-class facility because it is what our airline partners want and passengers expect," said Aviation Director Ed Freni. "We're using this as an opportunity to prepare the entire airport for the future and it is critical that we keep the traveling public, airlines and tenants informed every step of the way. Not only are our terminal facilities old and need an upgrade, but we are improving the roadway system, reducing congestion and air emissions at the airport and our neighboring communities, and building more sustainable features at our terminals."

Built in 1967, Terminal C is Logan's busiest terminal, home to JetBlue Airways and served over 12 million passengers in 2018. Construction for the Terminal C Optimization and the Terminal B-C Connector projects will begin next spring. The combined projects will consolidate the security checkpoints, renovate the public spaces, and expand the food and retail concessions and passenger amenities. A new concourse connecting Terminals B and C post-security will also be completed in 2021.

The Terminal E Modernization project will add nearly 400,000 square feet of space with seven new gates, three of which were approved in 1995 but never constructed, to the international terminal. These new gates will be able to serve larger and more energy-efficient aircraft commonly used for international flights. The project will include new TSA security checkpoints, an expanded ticketing hall, renovations to the existing building, new high-capacity baggage carousels, and improvements to the Customs and Border Protection area to be completed by 2023. Terminal E was built in 1974 and currently serves 5 million passengers annually who fly to 56 non-stop international destinations.

The Revere Police Department, in collaboration with the Rosetti-Cowan Senior Center, graduated the Senior Citizen Police Academy on August 1st. The Academy's Director, Capt. Amy O'Hara, said the Academy was four weeks in length with graduation on week five. Weekly classes were an hour long filled with topics important to seniors and a look at the specialized units in the Revere Police Department, as taught by Revere Police Officers. The classes were held at the Rosetti-Cowan Senior Center on Thursday mornings between 10:30am-11:30am.

This is a valuable program," said Chief James R. Guido. "Our officers enjoyed interacting with the seniors in the community and helping to provide them with insight into how police perform their duties." "I am happy we were able to start this new program and look forward to more classes in the future."

Chief James R. Guido also thanked Stephen Fielding, Director of the Rosetti-Cowan for this partnership.

Mayor Brian Arrigo congratulated all the seniors who participated in the program and the Revere Police Department for starting this excellent program. There can never be enough interaction with the community Arrigo stated.

As a result of this successful initial Academy a second Senior Citizen Police Academy is being planned in the near future. Seniors interested in registering for the second academy should provide their names to the senior center office staff and anticipate information that will be included in the Revere Senior Power, provide on the Revere Seniors News Show on RTV, and the Rosetti-Cowan Senior Center.

Seniors interested in registering for this academy should contact Camille Piccinni-Ciambelli, Program Coordinator or Stephen Fielding, Director, of the Rosetti-Cowan Senior Center at (781) 286-8156.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

REINVIGORATING THE DOWNTOWN

CHELSEA - One might have seen the colorful paint job on the gazebo at Bellingham Square and wondered what it was all about.

Well, it's more than just a colorful paint job.

Rather, it is the first step in what business and City leaders hope will be a coordinated plan for the downtown business district – a plan that has already gained the confidence of state government with Chelsea getting two $20,000 grants to further the project along.

Carlos Matos, a fellow assigned to Chelsea from the MassDevelopment Transformative Development Initiative (TDI) program, said the gazebo was just the first piece of several placemaking initiatives they hope to achieve with the Chamber, a new business lab dubbed CHISPA BizLab, and the Chamber Foundation – among many other partners.

“The gazebo was the beginnings of this placemaking and focusing attention on the downtown,” he said. “It’s bright and like the things you’ve seen in Boston. We studied it and these are designs that will resonate with residents of Central America and South America in shape and color. They will also appeal to everyone because it adds color and vibrancy to the area.”

“The initiative is working well so far,” said City Manager Tom Ambrosino. “Hopefully, progress will continue in our efforts to revitalize the Downtown.”

Sergio Jaramillo, who is a longtime Chamber member and the new president of the Chamber Foundation, said they hope to use a coordinated approach to bring life to the downtown, help businesses and make downtown Chelsea a place to be.

“Our desire is to have Chelsea be a destination point for the region – just like Chinatown and the North End and as it is becoming in East Boston,” he said. “We want to have Chelsea be that place they want to come to because of the activities and food and quality of life that is here... Jay Ash was great for building up the coffers of the City again and building up Everett Avenue. I think now we are on the cusp and ready to do the other half of the city.”

Added Matos, “There are great opportunities on Everett Avenue and the question is now how do we transform them from isolated goals to a greater economic impact and draw them to the downtown for that greater economic impact. That’s the challenge we’re working on now.”

An extension of the gazebo branding effort, now being dubbed ‘Chelsea Centro’ as a test run – complete with bags and buttons as promotional tools, is a $20,000 grant from the state that will bring the same bright color-scheme to Luther Place – where the successful Night Market has been held twice this summer.

The parking lot/market will be painted in bright colors, and also be painted to accommodate basketball or street soccer – giving it many different opportunities for activation. That will be supplemented by murals on the walls in the same color scheme, and sun shades to protect from the summer heat. That grant is supported by a $55,000 matching grant from the Chamber, which will also help to provide programming for the district.

Chamber Executive Director Rich Cuthie has been very excited about the branding of the downtown using the grant and the Chamber’s resources. He said, like Jaramillo, that the district is on the cusp of something very exciting. That is particularly the case for the storefront improvement program, which has been paved by the passing of new storefront regulations by the City Council this year.

Part of that will be financed by the new CHISPA BizLab, which the state awarded a $20,000 grant to start. That will be supplemented by a $6,000 grant by the Chamber Foundation.

Meaning “spark” in Spanish, CHISPA will help to provide small business technical assistance and advocacy for Latino businesses. It will also serve as a business incubator for new startups in Chelsea’s business district. That assistance will particularly go towards helping the food-related businesses in the district.

Already, CHISPA director Deise Paraguay has started talking to local businesses, officially beginning on July 15. Right now she said she is listening and learning – trying to bring everyone together. She will also act as the organizer of all of the projects involved with the re-branding effort.

Jaramillo said they have hired a company to fly a drone up and down Broadway to highlight the district. Similarly, they have contracted with a professional kitchen to bring in all of the restaurant owners from Broadway to consult with professional chefs. Using traditional recipes, they will work to invigorate their menus and give them new life.

Jaramillo said he is confident that in a few years, the new efforts will all pay off with an enlivened and exciting downtown for residents and those who want to come to Chelsea as a destination.

“I see in a few years that we will have an opportunity for the business community to capture a new market,” he said. “There will be more going on here and it will be more visually interesting for residents and visitors coming here. When people say, ‘Where should we go to dinner?’ They will say they want to go to Chelsea. Creating places where people want to live and visit is the best thing to do.”

Added Matos, “A lot of people are clamoring for authenticity in the places they go to. The places in Cambridge and Somerville are maybe lacking that. We think Chelsea has that authenticity you want and can’t get anywhere else. We want to highlight that, and that’s what we are setting out to do now.”

WATER, SEWER, TRASH RATES GOING UP

CHELSEA - Water and sewer rates are increasing, but not as much as some City Councillors initially feared.

Most of the City’s residential water and sewer customers will see an increase of one percent in rates for Fiscal Year 2020, and larger users will see a four percent increase.

In June, City Manager Thomas Ambrosino presented the Council with a proposed 3-percent increase for water and sewer customers who use less than 2,500 cubic feet of water. A 5-percent increase was proposed for customers who use more than that amount.

In June, a number of Councillors spoke out against the proposed increases.

“This is killing the poor people who live here,” said District 6 Councillor Giovanni Recupero. “This is not only going to drive the homeowners out, this is going to drive the tenants out, too. This is a bad thing to go up this much.”

Following a public hearing on the rates earlier in July, Ambrosino and Public Works Commissioner Fidel Maltez discussed concerns about rising sewer rates, according to a letter the City Manager sent to the Council.

“Although rising rates are inevitable when the majority of the City’s water and sewer costs are determined by charges from the MWRA, and those charges rise each and every year, we are cognizant of the City’s need to try to keep the rate increases moderate,” Ambrosino stated.

After looking at some of the recent improvements to the water system in the past year, including the start of the program to replace aging water meters throughout the system and better tracking of water use by contractors, Ambrosino said he believes the City will be able to reduce non-billable usage.

The City Manager said he also plans to implement a better process for water and sewer rate-setting, beginning next year. Those plans include a spring subcommittee meeting with the City Council to present recommendations for water and sewer rates for FY21.

While the water and sewer rate increases are lower than initially proposed, there will be a heftier price to pay for the City trash rate with a 10-percent hike.

“For the past several years, we have been running deficits in our trash accounting because the rate has not been sufficient to cover the true cost of solid waste collection and disposal in the City,” Ambrosino stated.

The 10-percent increase is an effort to eliminate that deficit.

The new FY20 trash rate is $33.10 monthly for residential property and $156.15 monthly for commercial units in mixed buildings. Owner-occupied units will remain exempt from the fee.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE SIGNATURES CHALLENGED

EVERETT - When School Committee candidate David Lindsey Jr. went into the City Clerk’s Office on July 23, there was time to spare before the 5 p.m. deadline.

Lindsey, who is also the husband of Council candidate Gerly Adrien, thought the signatures on incumbent School Committeeman Bernie D’Onofrio’s nomination papers to be irregular.

Lindsey wanted to challenge the signatures, indicating he didn’t think D’Onofrio qualified for the ballot.

However, that request was denied by the City as they said Lindsey turned in the paperwork late, paperwork that was stamped at 5:04 p.m. – just four minutes after the deadline.

Lindsey and Adrien said he had the paperwork filled out by 4:58 p.m. and was trying to get someone to take the paperwork, but no one would accept the challenge. No one was in the office, and they said they were told only City Clerk Sergio Cornelio could accept the paperwork – and he wasn’t there.

Finally, Lindsey said, the papers were taken after 5 p.m. and stamped.

“David plans to appeal this to the courts and to the Secretary of State,” said Adrien on Tuesday. “It’s about the principle and what they are doing and why. David feels like what they’re trying to pull isn’t fair at all. He said he didn’t think it was fair because he was in there and gave the papers to Linda. He has a stamp that says he was there at 4:58 p.m.”

Adrien said she has texts from him at that time asking her what to do because no one was there to accept the paperwork for the challenge, and Cornelio was said to be out of town.

The City has an entirely different take on the situation.

Communications Director Tom Philbin said they got advice on the matter from the Secretary of State, outside legal counsel and the City Solicitor. All of them said the law is pretty firm on the time/date stamp.

“They all came back and pretty much said 5 p.m. is 5 p.m.,” he said. “It has to be before that time, even though it’s four minutes.”

In a letter from City Solicitor Colleen Mejia on July 24, she informs Lindsey that the challenge could not be accepted as it came after the 5 p.m. deadline on July 19.

“As you are likely aware, you submitted your letter of objection in the City Clerk’s Office at 5:04 p.m. on July 23, 2019, four minutes past the statutory deadline,” read the letter. “A copy of the time-stamped nomination paper is enclosed. Moreover, I am informed that you were notified by Ms. Linda Angiolillo, Director of Elections, that the office, as is true of City Hall generally, closed for business at 5 p.m. Ms. Angiolillo allowed you to submit the objection with the office. However, in accordance with law, it cannot be accepted for the purposes submitted. Should you wish to appeal this decision, I advise you to seek private legal assistance as soon as possible to explore any available options.”

Lindsey said he plans to seek an appeal, and believes he was well-within the time limit to file. He said it was a matter of no one being there to take the paper from him – which brings up an interesting question, if true, statewide about just what constitutes making a statutory deadline. If one stands and waits for 10 minutes for help, have they made the deadline?

Lindsey and Adrien believe that is a question to answer in court, but City officials said that is not what they believe happened.

Lindsey challenged the signatures of D’Onofrio because he and Adrien were looking at the Nomination Papers and found them strange. They first saw that entire families appeared to be signed in the same handwriting, and after consulting the Secretary of State, learned that one person cannot sign for a whole family.

Then, Adrien said, they found other inconsistencies.

“When we saw the same handwriting, we were suspicious and it wasn’t a page or two, but pages and pages,” she said. “We felt like we knew what was going on – they seemed to be copying the voter lists.”

She said they noticed one family name, the Rossi family, that had an inconsistency in the printed name versus the real name. Instead of the real name being signed, the inconsistency was signed, she alleged.

D’Onofrio told the Independent he is confident in his signatures and he isn’t sure why they singled him out. A banker at Bank of American for 36 years in Everett, and a life-long resident who has been on the Committee eight years, he said he thinks they should check their own signatures.

“I don’t know why these folks picked me out of all the folks that are running to challenge my signatures,” he said. “I don’t have any concerns though. People who know me, know I keep rather quiet. I’m one of the good guys here. If there’s anyone more loving and caring for the kids and the school system, it’s me...I can only think people are upset because of everything that has gone on...I know I turned in well over 300 signatures.

“I challenge their signatures if anything,” he continued, “because I’ve gone door-to-door and property gotten all my signatures. I’ve always gotten my own signatures and when I had to campaign, I campaigned on my own...I’ve gotten my signatures. I’m not a person that seeks vengeance on people. I just want to know why me.”

Lindsey had just found out about the rejection on Monday afternoon, and said he would pursue the appeal, but was in the process of taking that next step at press time.

The at-large race for School Committee will feature a Preliminary Election on Sept. 17, and both D’Onofrio and Lindsey have qualified for that ballot at this point – along with five other candidates for the seats.

STADIUM PLANS MOVING AHEAD

EVERETT - As football season quickly approaches, the team comes one more year closer to playing its last game on the Parkway – and its first on the banks of the Malden River.

The Everett Memorial Stadium on the Parkway has been the focal point of about every fall in Everett for the last several decades, but in time it appears more certain that the focal point will move to the new parkland at Seven Acres Park - with plans for a new Stadium there moving further into design this summer.

City Planner Tony Sousa said the City has hired Nv5 design firm as its owners project manager (OPM) to begin the scope of the project. It is the same firm that worked on the new stadium at UMAss-Amherst.

“We do have them on as our OPM and we have them on a limited scope at this time that is $50,000,” he said. “The process is for them to come back with several high-level completed layouts with some designs.”

The idea is to move the Stadium to the area where Seven Acre Park is at now, bringing with it a recreation center and connecting it to the new existing amenities – such as the head-turning practice field that was built by Encore this year.

“I think the natural discussion is to have a high school/collegiate-style field with lots of public amenities and recreation that could complement all activities of the schools for football, lacrosse, soccer, field hockey and track and field. This Stadium would complement the practice field that is just being finished now by Encore. We have a shortage of playing fields and space for

Massachusetts House introduces Child Wellness Initiative

Last week, the Massachusetts House of Representatives unanimously voted 156 to 0 to pass legislation supporting the health and wellness of children across the Commonwealth. This bill is one part of a multi-tiered initiative to address the specific needs of children and adolescents in an integrated fashion.

An Act Relative to Children's Health and Wellness is part of the comprehensive, session-long House Children's Wellness Initiative, which aims to break down silos of service to better address the complex health and wellness needs specific to the Commonwealth's 1.4 million children. The effort seeks to make access to healthcare easier for vulnerable populations, eliminate barriers to care and formulate data-driven recommendations to improve service delivery and system coordination. The initiative supports a holistic approach that provides services early and often – ensuring that children grow to be healthier, happier and more productive adults.

The first bill in this initiative creates a foundation for better access to services and more data to inform future policy. Among the provisions of the legislation is the requirement that the Massachusetts Department of Children and Families report to the Legislature on its efforts to improve the Commonwealth's foster care system.

"Today we're taking a major step to make child and adolescent wellbeing a House session-long priority, beginning with this legislation," said House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo, (D – Winthrop). "The Commonwealth's children deserve a comprehensive support system so they may grow to be healthier, happier and more productive adults. I thank Chairs Benson, Michlewitz, Gregoire and Cronin as well as Vice-Chair Barber for their hard work on these efforts, and I look forward to building on these themes as the session unfolds."

"I am proud to have supported this landmark legislation, which will help provide access to resources for children and adolescents who may be facing a crisis," said Representative RoseLee Vincent (D-Revere). "I thank Speaker DeLeo, Chairwoman Benson and Vice-Chairwoman Barber for their leadership in crafting this bill, which will help families across the Commonwealth."

"Nothing is more heart-breaking than talking to a constituent whose child is in crisis, but they're having difficulty finding healthcare services in the complex system of providers, insurers, and resources," said Health Care Financing Chair Representative Jennifer Benson (D-Lunenburg). "By identifying and addressing these difficulties in this legislation, we are working to ensure that every child in the Commonwealth will be able to access high-quality services quickly and efficiently."

"This legislation will ensure that the Commonwealth's most vulnerable children will receive the wellness services they deserve," said Rep. Aaron Michlewitz, Chair of the House Committee on Ways & Means (D-Boston).

"I am proud of the House's leadership and steadfast commitment to caring for our most vulnerable children," said Judiciary Committee Chair Representative Claire Cronin (D-Easton). "This bill will assess the healthcare and wellness needs of children in the Commonwealth and expand access to services for these children and their families. This is a step forward to ensuring that all of our children have equal access to quality healthcare."

"Massachusetts is once again putting the health of our children at the top of our priority list," said State Administration and Regulatory Oversight Committee Chair Rep. Danielle Gregoire (D-Marlborough). "In Section 1 of this bill, we focus on both the mental and physical health of children, whose care has been entrusted to the Department of Children and Families by ensuring that they have insurance coverage until the age of 26, creating parity with other young people in our Commonwealth. I am proud to have played a small part in today's efforts and am looking forward to continuing our focus on children's health as this legislative session moves forward."

"Even with our strong healthcare system in Massachusetts, many people still have problems accessing care," said Financial Services Vice-Chair Rep. Christine Barber (D-Somerville). "When a family seeks healthcare or behavioral health providers, they often find a long list of providers who have moved, retired, or no longer accept patients. This bill requires that provider directories are accurate and accessible. I appreciate Speaker DeLeo's leadership and diligence on children's health, to ensure that Massachusetts continues to be a leader on behalf of the Commonwealth's children and families."

The legislation seeks to address child wellness in the following eight areas:

1. Requires the Department of Children and Families (DCF) to report on efforts to improve the foster care system in the Commonwealth, including steps it is taking to provide increased coverage in underserved regions, share relevant medical history with foster parents, and provide access to mental health supports and timely information on children in DCF custody who have died from abuse or neglect. The report is due by October 15, 2019.

2. Secures healthcare benefits for foster children until the age of 26, making it easier for this vulnerable population to access to Massachusetts benefits they are entitled at minimal cost to the Commonwealth. It codifies the practice for Massachusetts in the event of change on the federal level to the Affordable Care Act.

3. Requires insurance companies to maintain accurate and accessible provider directories for health plans. The provision directs companies to make the directories available without requiring users to create a new online account or profile. The directory must be updated frequently to ensure the information is correct. Insurance companies must take steps to make the directors use-friendly for individuals with disabilities and limited English proficiency. Establishes a task force to develop recommendations to ensure the accurate electronic posting of directories headed by the Commissioner of Insurance.

4. Creates childhood behavioral health centers of excellence via a pilot program that designates three regional centers to act as clearing-houses to connect families, providers, and educators to services and training opportunities. Requires the Executive Office of Health and Human Services to report on progress and impact after one year of implementation.

5. Requires the Health

Policy Commission to conduct analysis within the next year of children with medical complexity to analyze costs and population characteristics of this group in order to develop recommendations about how to serve this unique population.

6. Establishes a task force to study pediatric behavioral health screening tools.

7. Creates a special commission to examine the pediatric workforce to address pediatric provider availability and adequacy. The Commission would recommend strategies for increasing the pipeline of pediatric providers and expanding access to practicing providers.

8. Charges a 17-member special commission to review the Department of Public Health's School-Based Health Center Program for the purpose of strengthening, improving, and considering ways to replicate best practices across the state.

The bill now goes to the Senate.
