FIORE'S MARKET TO CLOSE FOR GOOD ON AUG. 28

Fiore's Market, the well-known, family-run, specialty grocery store located at 172 Revere St., will permanently close its doors on Aug. 28.

On Fiore's Market Facebook page, the family wrote, "After 43 years in business we have made the difficult decision to close our doors permanently. We will be liquidating all stock through our last day on August 28th. It has been our privilege to serve the city of Revere and watch generations of families grow up in this community. Thank you to all of our customers for your support and patronage throughout the years."

Arrigo welcomes Revere students back for 2021 school year

Updated policies and procedures aimed at keeping kids in classrooms

Staff report

For the first time since early March 2020, all 11 Revere Public Schools will be open at full capacity for the 2021 school year. The School Department has worked closely with the Mayor,Ãs Office, the Revere Department of Public Health, and the School Committee to update a number of policies, procedures and safety guidelines to welcome students back and help keep kids in classrooms throughout this academic year.

"We are excited to welcome all of our students back to the classroom this year," said Mayor Brian Arrigo. "Since the beginning of this pandemic, getting back to in-person learning has been a priority. We are working closely with the Department of Public Health to ensure safety for all our students, educators, and staff."

Revere Public School students and families have been notified of the following policies and procedures to ensure safety:

- All staff, students, and visitors to schools are required to wear an approved mask while indoors and on school buses.

- RPS has hired health aide professionals for all schools to assist with COVID protocols, pool testing, contact tracing and other necessary procedures to stem the spread of the delta variant in schools.
- RPS has also hired additional nurses to fill gap positions and increase the number of float nurses across the district.
- Pooled COVID testing will be conducted each week at all schools

Councilor McKenna asks for city to take McMackin Park by eminent domain

By Cary Shuman

Ward 1 Councilor Joanne McKenna and the City Council are now playing serious hardball with the caretakers of McMackin Park, the former home to Revere Little League.

McKenna asked Mayor Brian Arrigo to proceed with the taking of McMackin Park by eminent domain. The Council unanimously approved her motion at Monday's meeting.

McKenna's presentation included photos that she took at the park, clearly showing the dilapidated state of the field and the unsafe conditions caused by years of neglect. McMackin Park was once considered one of the premier youth baseball facilities in Massachusetts, McMackin Park in its current state is pictured full of overgrown grass and a very disheveled field and park.

earning the nickname "Little Fenway". The field has been unused for a decade.

"Not only are the gatekeepers of this property inhibiting the usage of this field from our youth, but now, by not addressing the basic issues in this field, they could be jeopardizing the health of the surrounding community by the dormant waters, the mosquitoes, and the mosquitoes that lie in the park," said McKenna.

The councilor added that "city has a good case" for taking the park by eminent domain.

"I want to commend my colleague with this motion and I agree whole-

Potential new RHS site narrowed down to three locations

Each location has several design options

By John Lynds

At a virtual community meeting last Thursday night representatives from Perkins Eastman have narrowed down site options for building of a new Revere High School to three potential sites in the city.

At the meeting Robert Bell and Dawn Guarriello from Perkins Eastman, the architecture firm chosen by the city to work on creating a new high school in the city, showed three site options that included the existing RHS site, the Revere Housing Authority site on Cushman Avenue, and Wonderland.

Each site option had different design ideas that were presented to the community.

There have been six sites throughout the city that have been put forth for consideration. One site was eliminated earlier on and sites formerly considered on Squire Road and the Caddy Farms site in North Revere were also eliminated.

Since the process began of picking a site, residents have favored the existing RHS site for a new high school followed by the Revere Housing Authority site and the Wonderland site third.

"We need one solution and the School Building Committee will be helping us make this decision with input from the community and the educators,"

Revere war hero Silvestri reflects on crisis in Afghanistan

By Melissa Moore-Randall

As the world watches the turmoil unfold in Afghanistan, Revere's Director of the Veterans Service Office and candidate for the Revere City Council, Marc Silvestri, reflected on the drama in the troubled Middle Eastern country. Silvestri, a Bronze Star of Value and Purple Heart recipient, served in Afghanistan in the early 2000s with the U.S. Army. As one of many who helped the people of Afghanistan rebuild and take back control of their country, Silvestri was shocked by the swift actions of the Taliban and the collapse of the country.

"I watched the events unfolding in Afghanistan last week, and I was completely shocked by the speed and brazenness of the Taliban. Who would have imagined that the Taliban would have seized control of the entire country in 10 days. When the takeover began, with a few provincial capitals, I wasn't really surprised. However my fear and concern really started to grow when the Taliban took over other large cities like Kandahar and Herat without a fight. But the real shock came when the Taliban took Kabul with little to no resistance and President Ghani fled the country."

City takes step toward acquiring Boatyard property on Thayer Avenue

By Cary Shuman

The City of Revere moved a huge step closer to the redevelopment of the Boatyard property at 29 Thayer Ave. following a communication at the City Council from City Auditor Richard Viscay requesting a loan order for $1.725 million for the purpose of acquiring the property.

The property is located next to Gibson Park and is part of the Riverfront Master Plan that will also see a major residential development by Redgate on the nearby G and J Towing site. One of the long-term goals is the construction of a maritime center that would facilitate community boating programs and ultimately the launching of a Revere High School rowing team.

Councillor-at-Large Jessica Giannino said she was “so excited” to see the acquisition of the property move forward.

“This property has given the residents in Riverside anxiety for so many years,” said Giannino. “I want to applaud the City for stepping up and for purchasing this land – for open space, greenspace, recreational space – quite frankly, that’s what we’re in need of right now. We don’t have enough of that in the city of Revere. We have a beautiful waterfront, but we don’t have a way for people to access it. We don’t have a boat ramp, we don’t have a way for people to get into the water and take advantage of it, so I think this is great and I’m really excited.”

Councillor-at-Large Gerry Visconti commended Mayor Brian Arrigo for “making this happen.”

“[Councillor Keefe] and I thought purchasing the Boatyard was an intricate part of the Riverfront project and there were questions on whether or not that was going to take place,” said Visconti. “The Arrigo Administration got it done, and I want to say thank you to the Administration for getting it done.

It’s the start of a new development down there that’s going to transform that whole area, and I’m glad to see we are moving forward in that direction.”

Ward 4 Councillor Patrick Keefe said he was happy to see the property acquisition process taking place.

“As Councillor Giannino mentioned, we’re a huge oceanfront, riverside community with no public launch, no public access – outside of the Beach, which is beautiful,” said Keefe. “To be able to open this up and create this key parcel for the boating community, for the rowing community, for recreational space – I promised the Mayor and Mr. Viscay and many others that I would bring this issue up every single month. I’m glad to hear this is going to be happening.”

Ward 5 Councillor John Powers, who has long sought to redevelop the property with the best interests of the neighbors in mind also welcomed the key step being taken toward the transformation of the Boatyard property.

“Once and for all, this will be put the people’s minds in Riverside to rest, without having to worry about developers coming in there and developing,” said Powers. “It’s an R-A (Residential, Agricultural) District down there, so it’s very important the city owns this property to fend off any future development proposals. I talked to Mayor Arrigo and we’re looking to putting in community boating and [an RHS] crew program.”

Powers said he could envision a day that Revere High students would be eligible for college scholarships in the sport of crew.

Council President Anthony Zambuto said, “This [property] was the key piece to make that whole transformation of that neighborhood happen. I am thrilled we got this done early. Well done to the Arrigo Administration, good job.”

Rotondo speaks out for affordable housing

By Cary Shuman

Councillor-Large George Rotondo brought the maximum allowable five motions to the City Council floor Monday night, two of which offered a clear emphasis on his pursuit of affordable housing opportunities for the residents of Revere.

One of Rotondo’s motions centered on the conversion of the Municipal Parking Lot on Central Avenue into affordable housing with commercial space and parking.

The spacious parking lot is located a few hundred yards from Broadway and near an MBTA bus stop. A second entrance is within close walking distance of the Rossetti-Cowan Senior Center.

“Clearly, this is an underutilized lot – we’re just using it for parking,” said Rotondo. “This could be utilized as affordable housing. More importantly, you could take a look at what was done at One Beach Street or Waterfront Square, through TND. This is something where the City, TND, and maybe another private developer could work to develop an affordable housing footprint there. More importantly, you could put the parking there, and like they do in Europe, you could have a commercial space that’s on the first floor.”

City Council President Anthony Zambuto referred Rotondo’s motion to the Zoning Subcommittee for further discussion.

In an unrelated motion, Rotondo requested an update on the new Revere High School Building Project.

Silvestri, while shocked and disappointed over the takeover of Afghanistan where U.S. troops have been stationed for almost 20 years, was happy there was limited civilian violence. “I would have hoped the Afghan people, especially the U.S. trained and equipped Afghan military would have put up a fight. But at the same time, I understand why they didn’t. Let’s not forget that Afghanistan has been fighting and unstable long before we got there in 2001.”

The most troubling to Silvestri is the heartbreak the Gold Star families must be enduring while this unfolds. “My heart broke for the Gold Star families of the nearly 2,500 men and women that lost their lives in Afghanistan. And I started thinking about the other Operation Enduring Freedom veterans. Were they also overwhelmed by a flood of emotions because we all left a little piece of our souls there, and wondered if this was all for naught?”

Much of Silvestri’s disappointment relates to the progress made by troops throughout their 20 years in the country. “In June 2008, I deployed to a remote outpost in Nuristan, which is a mountainous north east province close to the Pakistani border. Our mission was to disrupt the flow of Taliban, al-Qaeda, and foreign fighters supply and smuggling routes from Pakistan’s tribal areas. Three months after we left, all of the outposts in Nuristan were abruptly closed after COP Keating, which was a few miles away, was overrun by the Taliban in October 2009. That was really emotional for us, we knew time and luck were the only real thing on our sides over there. Unfortunately, I never saw any real firsthand progress in terms of democracy or nation building, but I believe my efforts in some way helped support it.”

Silvestri fully supported President’s Biden’s decision to withdraw U.S. troops. However he voiced disappointment over the actions of the Department of Defense and State Department in helping those trying to flee the country. “I fully support President Biden’s decision to leave Afghanistan, but I wish that the Department of Defense and State Department had a plan in place to get all of the SIV immigrants and their families out of the country. Despite their claims of amnesty for the Afghans that worked for the US, I am especially fearful for the translators and interpreters who worked directly with the U.S. military. We owe it to our Afghan allies to uphold the promise the U.S. made to them. I am also concerned about the loss of progress that has been made in regards to women’s human rights. Sadly, I don’t believe either of these claims.”

Marc has been an advocate for translators since returning from Afghanistan. In June 2020, Silves-tri welcomed his former translator, Sibghatullah “Sabib” Nooristani to the United States. After returning from his tour in Afghanistan, Silvestri made it his mission to get Nooristani to the United States. The former U.S. Army interpreter spent years trying to get an immigrant visa to come to the United States. Eventually the State Department agreed.

“After Sabib’s story was on the news last year, I had several other interpreters and translators reaching out to me. Unfortunately, there wasn’t really much I could do. I didn’t keep touch with any other translators other than Sabib. However, a few of his extended family members and fellow villagers were also translators and he said they were in hiding.”

Silvestri added, “Again I agree with the President’s decision to withdraw all troops, and stand behind his decision. After 20 years and $88 billion put into the Afghan forces, they proved that no amount of time, money, or American lives would have made them ready or willing to withstand the Taliban. When the president first announced our withdrawal date as 9/1/21 I thought the date was great because of sentimental value. Although, I do believe that we should have planned the withdrawal for the winter months when fighting decreases and the weather makes it harder for anyone including the Taliban to get around.”

At a press briefing on Sunday President Biden claimed 11,000 people had been airlifted safely from Kabul while acknowledging he is unaware of how many Americans still remain in the country.

SPOTLIGHT

RevereTV has kept up with all kinds of community events over this past week. The Shirley Ave. Night Market took place a few weeks ago now, but RevereTV was there to capture all the sights and sounds. This was a community event on the beach end of Shirley Ave. that featured vendors, food, and music. Check out the RevereTV Community Channel and RTV YouTube for a video package with the highlights from that night.

The Revere Farmer’s Market is still happening every Friday afternoon on the American Legion Lawn on Broadway. Not only does the market have vendors with products to purchase, but there are many activities to participate in for free. A few activities are Salsa Dancing and Zumba! RevereTV ventured to the market to check out the dance classes and speak with the instructors. To see what this is all about, watch RevereTV’s coverage of last week’s Salsa Dancing class playing on the Community Channel and YouTube.

Another highlight reel to watch is from the Annual Bocce on the Beach. This was a fundraising event in the form of a bocce tournament to benefit the upkeep and renovations of the Rumney Marsh Burial Ground. The video package for this event includes interviews from participants, event hosts, and even Mayor Arrigo. You may see some other familiar faces, too! Watch what happened at Bocce on the Beach on the Community Channel and YouTube.

The Moroccan Cultural Festival is an annual large-scale community-run event that has been taking place in Revere over the past few years. There was plenty of entertainment such as dancing and a fashion show, vendors, and food that celebrates Moroccan culture. To see all that happened at the festival, watch RevereTV’s coverage of the event playing on the channel over the next week or so, and on all of RTV’s social media.

Be on the lookout for the premiere of “Cooking Made Simple” episode 4 on Facebook, YouTube, and television. Community member and chef, Kelly Armetta, took to the kitchen to whip up another summer dinner dish. To see what Armetta makes this week, watch “Cooking Made Simple” on all RevereTV outlets. The RevereTV Community Channel is 8 and 1072 for Comcast subscribers, and 3 and 614 on RCN. All community event coverage and community member programming airs on that channel, and on RevereTV’s YouTube and Facebook pages.

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Councilor Keefe announces candidacy for re-election to Ward 4 Council seat

Special to the Journal

Ward 4 City Councilor Patrick Keefe has announced his intent to run for re-election. The following is his announcement.

“Dear Supporter,

I am thrilled to announce that I will be seeking another term as Revere’s Ward 4 City Councilor. I am so grateful for the trust and confidence the voters of Revere have placed in me over my first few terms in office. I have worked hard to be your voice of reason on the City Council, and I look forward to ensuring your needs continue to be met by City Hall. My fellow councilors elected me as council President and served during a tumultuous 2020 year, with the pandemic and global unrest, we maintained civility and did the job we were elected to do, while serving the community at an unmatched capacity.

As I always reflect on my work its important for me to set realistic goals in serving the needs of our community. My greatest goal is to continue to be available and transparent to the residents not just in Ward 4 but across the entire city. I believe elected officials should not only be approachable and responsive but also involved. It’s hard to fully understand the work needed if you are not present on the ground level.

That’s why even during a pandemic I made sure we were on the streets, dealing with issues firsthand. I like many of Revere’s residents was severely impacted during the pandemic. I watched my entire industry get shut down with no real knowledge of when it would get back to normal, so much uncertainty and fear. Rather than disappear and worry solely about ourselves, the Keefe committee got active, working with the city’s Recreation Dept, Senior Center and School department creating a food response network serving many of the residents of Revere. These were some of the most vulnerable residents, Elderly, sick, or quarantined. Many of these residents had no outside resources to help early in the pandemic. During this time, I also setup a restaurant relief fund, and healthy food distribution center for some of my 800 employees in the northeast. This was all done while furloughed. Not for personal or financial gain but because it was the right thing to do. Leaders step up when its most difficult and when the need is the greatest.

During the worst times for Revere, I was proud to be part of a team that stepped up. We came together as a community, so many residents, employees and elected officials showed me true hope in their love for community shined. Revere deserves leaders that will step up, leaders that will be active as part of the solution, not just finger point and tear each other down. My campaign has always been about the positives. 18 years ago, buying my home on Kilburn Street might have been the best decision of my life. I am so proud to represent you, I Believe in Revere and I hope Revere believes in me.

If you want more positive, engaged and involved leaders I humbly ask for your support this November.

Thank you in advance for your support,

Patrick M Keefe Jr

Boston Councilor Lydia Edwards will run if and when Sen. Boncore steps down

By John Lynds

During an interview Tuesday District 1 Boston City Councilor Lydia Edwards made it clear she is not running against sitting State Senator Joe Boncore but will run if and when Boncore, who is in negotiations for a job with Massachusetts Biotechnology Council, officially gives up his senate seat.

On Tuesday Edwards, who was elected as the first woman of color to the District 1 Council seat in 2017, said out of respect and deference for the sitting senator who has not left office she will only officially announce when Boncore’s exit becomes official.

“My life has been entirely defined by service – from my time as a military brat as my mother served in the United States Air Force, to my work passing the Domestic Workers Bill of Rights, to my time as a Boston City Councilor,” she said. “My first campaign for office was in pursuit of the Massachusetts Senate seat representing the First Suffolk & Middlesex District, and now that opportunity has come full circle and presented itself again.”

Edwards said after weeks of conversations with family, friends, and colleagues after news broke of a potential Boncore exit from the senate she made the decision to share her intentions publicly.

When Senator Boncore steps down, I will formally step up,” she said.

Edwards said Boncore has been a steadfast partner in the senate and has served the public with strength and a keen sense of right and wrong. “Using his moral compass and thoughtful advocacy to stand up for the residents of this district, it would be a great honor to follow his legacy,” she to quickly identify and isolate any asymptomatic COVID cases.

- RPS adopted the Department of Early and Secondary Education’s “Test and Stay” Policy.
- The Revere Department of Public Health will host a series of vaccination clinics for families and eligible students.

Revere Public Schools are working with the Revere Department of Public Health to interpret and implement DESE guidance related to contact tracing of students and staff. All departments fully expect guidance to continue to evolve throughout the school year. The Revere Public Schools will continue to work with their partner medical professionals to make adjustments as COVID-19 circumstances change.

“We are really excited to welcome Revere students back to school,” said Dr. Dianne Kelly, Superintendent of Revere Public Schools. “This year has been difficult for students, parents, teachers, and staff. We will closely monitor the impact of COVID on our schools and continue to work with the Revere Department of Public Health to ensure safety for all in the coming months. The coming school year definitely brings its challenges, but we are thrilled to be opening school with in-person learning this year.”

The guidelines for safely reopening the schools can be found on the Revere Public Schools website. The Revere Board of Health urges all families to read up on safety protocols before the school year begins.

“The first day of full in person learning for RPS is a huge milestone for the City of Revere as we continue to wade through this pandemic together,” said Dr. Nathalee Kong, Chair of the Revere. “I would like to acknowledge Lauren Buck, the director of the Revere Department of Public Health, for spearheading the development of our safety protocols in conjunction with the DESE protocols to ensure safe in-person learning this year as well as Dr. Kelly, her team, the RPS teachers and staff for their commitment to keeping our children safe and educated during these trying times. This has been an enormous team effort and I am so excited to start this new school year!”

MAKE THE MOST OF THE REST OF SUMMER

If nothing else, the Summer of 2021 has taught us an age-old lesson: The only thing that is certain about life is uncertainty.

Remember when President Biden told the country in the spring that his goal was to have the pandemic restrictions lifted across the country by July 4?

At that time, the Delta variant of COVID-19, though already responsible for a huge surge in deaths in India and other places, constituted only a tiny fraction of cases in the United States.

But by July 4, almost all of the COVID cases in the U.S., among both the vaccinated and unvaccinated, were attributable to Delta, which is many times more contagious than original COVID and proving to be far deadlier among the unvaccinated, particularly for younger age groups.

Today, COVID-19 is raging as never before and restrictions on our normal living are being reinstated.

The extent of the tragic and sad situation that has been unfolding in Afghanistan (though foreseeable by some) caught the U.S. government and the American people completely off-guard. Afghanistan registered barely a blip on the news cycle at the start of the summer, but now it dominates the news.

And although scientists have long warned us of the overall effects of climate change, the catastrophic weather events of this summer -- the floods, wildfires, and drought -- have been felt in every corner of the globe.

Then, as if to place an exclamation point on the extent of life's vicissitudes, just this past weekend, the wonderful Concert in Central Park was cut short by a lightning storm.

If the Summer of 2020 was notable for lockdowns, the Summer of 2021 will be remembered as a real-life version of Whack-a-Mole, when we never were able to regain our footing on the path to normalcy because of all of the obstacles that continuously sprung up along the way.

There are just two weekends left in the Summer of 2021, our Summer of Uncertainty.

We hope that all of our readers will make the most of the summer days that are left, but do so safely.

THE UNVACCINATED ARE REBELS WITHOUT A CAUSE

For the majority of our readers -- who are vaccinated (because we live in Eastern Mass.) -- the reasons being given by those who refuse to get the shot, even when they are dying in the hospital, are inexplicable.

The most-often heard statement from the new COVID cohort is that they were exercising their "freedom" from the tyranny of government officials who have been urging Americans to be vaccinated.

However, freedom isn't free, as those who are filling the critical care beds in our hospitals are learning the hard way. Further, their freedom to die affects the rest of us, both by spreading the disease among their fellow citizens and pushing our healthcare system to the brink.

Ironically, getting a COVID-19 vaccination shot is among the least demanding of the many impositions on our freedom that all of us experience as Americans each and every day.

Even in our free society, we live with restrictions on our behavior in everything we do. No one has the right to walk naked down the street, to drive a car as fast as they want, or to not pay taxes, to name just the most obvious examples of restrictions on our personal freedom.

More to the point (no pun intended), many vaccines already are mandated from the time we are born in this country in order to attend public schools.

In addition, unscrupulous politicians (Trump, Cruz, DeSantis, et als), together with disingenuous social and traditional media, are amplifying this corrupted notion of absolute freedom.

Ultimately however, the decision to get the vaccine remains a personal choice. But as we watch the suffering among the unvaccinated, their pathetic plight brings to mind the title of the classic James Dean movie, Rebel Without a Cause.

Yes, the unvaccinated may be exercising their "freedom."

But in the final analysis, what was the point of it all?

REGARDING FLOODING IN REVERE

Dear Editor,
First and foremost, I'd like to give a big thank you to the DPW for acting so quickly on Seawall Street Monday night into Tuesday morning.

The water was flooding the Street from the 17-18 block to the 80 block of DPW workers hard at work in the middle of the night to mitigate the flooding in the neighborhood.

LET'S MAKE SURE OUR CHILDREN ARE PREPARED

Back to school season is here! As students prepare to return to the classroom in-person we must ensure our children have the college and career support they need. I'm Jacqueline Chavez, a public school teacher and education policy specialist running for the Revere School Committee because I have the classroom and policy experience to ensure our children are prepared to succeed in K-12 and beyond.

The 2020 Census data indicates Revere had the largest population increase in all of Massachusetts over the last ten years. We must continue our commitment to equitably serving all students in our community as it grows so that every student has the tools to fulfill their potential. Many of our Revere families say the School Committee must do more to prepare students for success after graduation. I have the personal and professional experience to support our students in pursuing further education to meet their career goals.

As a Gates Millennium and Hispanic Scholarship Fund Scholar, I received my undergraduate (Bachelor's in Political Science and International Relations) and graduate (Master's in Education and Social Change) degrees debt free. I wouldn't have had this opportunity without my high school counselor and the resources in my school district. This experience led me to start a scholarship fund to provide first-generation college students scholarships for college and certification training programs. In the past 7 years we have given over $15,000 to students!

said. "As he explores the next chapter of his career, I am prepared to begin mine. I looked at the experience I've had as a city council and I know that it's a matter of service and I know that I could help a lot of people as a senator. That has been the driving factor in my decision making."

Edwards has emerged as a leader in the Council to protect Boston's affordable housing stock through innovative and bold policy proposals. In year one, she introduced and passed a city ordinance assisting seniors who are house-rich but cash-poor pay their back taxes to stay in their homes. She has spearheaded reforms to Inclusionary Development and Linkage and passed through the council a real estate transfer fee on the sale of properties valued over $2 million, with all proceeds dedicated to affordable housing.

Edwards currently serves East Boston, the North End and Charlestown. The senate district would include both Eastie and the North End as well as Winthrop, Revere, the Seaport, Chinatown, Bay Village, Fenway, the South End and parts of Beacon Hill and Cambridgeport.

Edwards has also pushed to reduce airport pollution, expand water transportation, address traffic congestion, ensure community voice in major energy projects, rebuild public housing and stop proposed highway expansion.

Edwards joins a growing field of potential candidates that includes Eastie Rep. Adrian Madaro and Revere School Committee member Anthony D'Ambrosio.

Rep. Adrian Madaro has expressed his desire to run for the seat and like Edwards said he would only make a final decision and formally announce if and when Boncore decides to leave office out of respect for his Beacon Hill colleague.

"I'm grateful for Senator Boncore's friendship and service to our community at the State House," said Madaro. "With his partnership, we've secured funding for vital infrastructure and social services, and we've advanced important issues in our districts, including transportation. While I'm saddened to learn we may be losing an advocate for East Boston at the State House, I'm excited for his Sewall there about.

I am wondering if we can have something done to help these low lying areas when we have high tides and heavy rain.

Clearly we need better flood resiliency strategies that the Mayor and DPW are working towards.

That said, I hope I could recognize the Revere DPW for weathering the storm and helping keep Revere going in the right direction. Thank you to Chris, Nick and Joe who came to help mitigate the flooding on Seawall st.

The DPW is never fully recognized for the work they do. It's important work and it is what keeps our City moving forward!

Thank you.

Revere Police Chief Callahan pledges resolution to Satter House parking concerns

By Cary Shuman

During a lengthy discussion about visitor parking passes for the Jack Satter House on Revere Beach Boulevard, Revere Police Chief David Callahan provided the words that Satter House residents had wanted to hear.

"I think we may be able to have a resolution here," said Callahan, a member of the Revere Traffic Commission that decides on all traffic/parking regulations in the city. "Just like Councillor [Richard Serino was saying, we [should] have the Council vote amended to make [the Satter House] one of the eligible buildings, send it back to the Traffic Commission and we can vote on it. And I believe that will correct the problem for these folks here.

I'm sure we can come to some resolutions for the folks over here at 420 Revere Beach Boulevard."

City Council President Anthony Zambuto, who did an effective job moderating the at-time raucous discussion, said, "You have the chief of police who sits on the Traffic Commission that says we're going to have a solution here, so there you go."

That statement drew applause from the Satter House residents and neighbors in attendance.

Lauding Callahan's effective and immediate response to the issue, Zambuto added, "I'm going to announce his candidacy next," a remark that drew a vigorous response from the residents.

It is expected that Chief Callahan and the other members of the Traffic Commission will produce a plan at their next meeting that will address the issue of providing visitors passes for Satter House residents, their guests, and healthcare workers coming to the senior residences to provide assistance to residents.

The issue of parking provisions for visitors to the Satter House had come to the forefront after the DCR's installation of parking meters on Revere Beach, a decision that was met with universal derision by residents and beachgoers.

"No one here in the city wants the meters," Ward 4 Councillor Patrick Keefe said at the meeting. "There's not one person that I've spoken to in the City of Revere [who wants the meters]."

Zambuto also spoke against the DCR's parking meters. "Nobody on this Council advocated for meters on the Beach," said Zambuto. "We didn't create this problem. It was created for us. We're trying to find a solution, but it's a different solution because the Beach is controlled by someone else, not us."

Satter House residents Roxanne Aiello and Cynthia Kiejna did an effective job expressing the concerns about the visitors' passes and the confusion that exists with the varied parking stickers in the city.

"This parking situation on Oak Island Street has become quite a problem for us at the Satter House," said Aiello. "We were given 19 visitor cards in the whole, entire building which are only available to us between Monday and Friday."

Aiello requested of the Council, "Let us have our own visitor pass like everybody else does in other cities. I am a lifelong resident of this city. I pay excise tax and I have to go through a complete hassle to have somebody come down [and visit]. There was no thinking in this plan. There's all kinds of different stickers."

Kiejna pointed out that the Satter House is unique in that it is the only exclusively seniors' residence on Revere Beach Boulevard.

"We understand the DCR created the problem and started the whole issue," said Kiejna. "The problem is we are a unique building, the only one in the city that is right on the beach and deals with seniors completely."

Kiejna said the 19 visitors' passes that the city distributed to the Satter House, "was really a token."

"Now that Oak Island is 24/7 residential parking, we really do need the visitor passes," Kiejna told the council. "We're not asking for anything outrageous. This affects every single senior in the city. What we're doing is focusing on the seniors in our building."

After hearing Satter House residents and other residents express their frustrations, Callahan stepped to the podium and in a real-life moment of clarity and drama, the chief of Revere Police said he and the Traffic Commission would fix the problem, to the delight of the Satter House community.

Meaty takes on Meat Substitute

By Penny & Ed Cherubino

Washington Post Food Editor Joe Yonan recently published an article on eating something meaty without turning to a highly processed meat substitute. In 2013, Yonan announced that he had switched to a vegetarian diet. He said that after years of eating so many meat-centric meals on the job, he gradually began cooking more vegetables at home.

Today he’s the author of cookbooks like “Serve Yourself: Nightly Adventures in Cooking for One,” and “Eat Your Vegetables: Bold Recipes for the Single Cook.” Penny often refers to his books for ideas since we also eat more vegetables at home while enjoying meat and fish when we dine out. The fact that many of his cooking-for-one recipes are perfect for our small household is a bonus.

Meaty Meals

In his article Yonan featured a shredded mushroom recipe. We often turn to mushrooms when we crave a hearty, filling meal with lots of flavor and umami. Mushrooms have that savory, meaty personality on their own. Penny boosts that by rehydrating and adding both slices and the strained broth of dried shiitake mushrooms to the mix. Other favorite meaty flavor boosters that mate well with mushrooms are condiments like soy sauce, oyster sauce, or Worcestershire.

Complete Proteins

In his cookbook, “Cool Beans: The Ultimate Guide to Cooking with the World’s Most Versatile Plant-Based Protein,” Yonan explains, “Beans and grains are inseparable. It has something to do, obviously, with the fact that beans don’t have quite all the amino acids that make up a ‘complete’ protein, and neither do grains, but together they do.”

This meaty, mushroom stroganoff is our riff on the traditional recipe using sautéed fresh and dried mushrooms in place of the beef.

You already know a lot of the combinations of beans or lentils and grains that other cultures use in place of meat to make complete proteins. Black beans and rice, corn tortillas and beans, curries with lentils served with rice or flatbread all fit the bill.

In this book, Yonan creates riffs on traditional hearty meals where meat is a condiment or flavoring, not the center of the plate. You would never miss the meat in his “Root Vegetable, White Bean, and Mushroom Cassoulet.” He doesn’t use a meat clone but rather a combination of tasty, filling root vegetables.

His “Lentil–Mushroom Farmer’s Pie” has a mashed cauliflower “crust” and makes a great vegetarian option for shepherd pie fans. This is a perfect addition to a potluck or holiday table when some diners are vegetarian.

Yonan’s “Paella With Chickpeas, Green Beans, and Shishito Peppers” is just right for summer grill meals that tend to be meat-centric. Paella, cooked over an open fire, is at its best. Even with most traditional versions, there are many ingredient options from one cook to another. We bet this one would attract as many omnivores as vegetarians!

Vegan Meat and Meat Substitutes

We try to eat as little highly processed food as possible. We read the ingredient list on packages and avoid additives and chemicals. Commercial meat substitutes don’t tempt us.

Yonan recommends Miyoko Schinner’s “The Vegan Meat Cookbook” as a source of recipes for both commercial products and especially for her homemade meat substitutes. In the book’s introduction, Schinner defined what we mean when we refer to meaty food. She writes, “The truth is that we just want something substantive that’s chewy, tasty, and succulent. I don’t think most people — vegan or even omnivore — care if it tastes exactly like meat; they just want something to bite into with a lot of flavor.”

Museum of Science unveils fall lineup of innovative and inspiring adult programming

Staff report

The Museum of Science, Boston, announced an exciting fall lineup of award-winning speakers, transformative performances, drag takeovers, a haunted Halloween celebration, and more under its popular series, SubSpace. The fall lineup of after-hours events, kicking off in September, offers audiences unique experiences from local and national artists, where the fusion of science, art, and society finds common ground. Tickets for the Fall 2021 season are available now at mos.org/adults.

Now in its ninth season, SubSpace is the Museum’s experiential playground for developing fresh, original, social experiences for adults. The Fall 2021 season will be a hybrid of virtual events and the return of live, in-person programming taking place throughout the Museum, including the Mugar Omni Theater, the Charles Hayden Planetarium, and the Exhibit Halls.

“After over a year of entirely virtual programming, we are excited to bring SubSpace and our audiences back together at the Museum for an incredible lineup of after-hours events,” said James Monroe, producer of adult programs and theater experiences at the Museum of Science, Boston. “This fall, we continue to dive deeper into some of the most pressing consequential challenges of our day, including anti-racism, mental health, addiction, trauma, climate change, and diversity in STEM, all while creating innovative and singular immersive performances with the immense talents found in our amazing city.”

Tickets for the Fall 2021 season are available now at mos.org/adults. The full lineup of the Fall 2021 season includes:

Samuel Anthony ‘Tony’ Chiarella

Retired MDC Police Officer

 Samuel Anthony “Tony” Chiarella, 78, died on Friday afternoon at his Beachmont home.

The husband of June (Duncan) Chiarella with whom he shared 37 years of marriage, he was born in Boston and raised in Revere, the son of the late Vincent and Mildred (Pagliuca) Chiarella. A retired MDC Police Officer, he was a US Army veteran serving during the Vietnam Conflict.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his two companions, Scoobie and Charlie, three children: Lauretta Chiarella and Gina Gallarelli-Chiarella, both of Revere and Anthony Chiarella of Pittsfield and four grandchildren. He was the brother of Jeanette Leonard of Brockton, Louise Baldyda of Webster, Rose Marie Paulsen of Revere, Carol Kellog of California and the late Lauretta Chiarella.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend visiting hours in the Bisee-Porcella Funeral Home, 549 Lincoln Ave., Saugus on Thursday, August 26 from 4 to 7 p.m. In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory may be made MSPCA- Boston www.mspca.org.

For directions and condolences, visit: www.BiseePorcella.com.

Margaret O’Hara-Shanahan

First Female member of the Revere City Council, Fidelity Investments retiree and Favorite Server at Maggio’s and Companions Restaurants

A funeral was conducted on Tuesday, August 24 at the Vertuccio & Smith Home for Funerals, Revere for Margaret P. “Peggy” (Driscoll) O’Hara – Shanahan, who died unexpectedly at her home on Monday, August 16. A Funeral Mass in the Immaculate Conception Church was followed by interment at Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

Born in Chelsea, she was the daughter of the late John P. and Mary Driscoll. Peggy was raised and educated in Revere and was a graduate of Immaculate Conception High School, Class of 1954. She married, raised her children in Revere and was the first female City Council Woman in Revere, sworn in in place of her former husband, Edward L. O’Hara.

Her love for her daughters was unwavering, they are what always mattered the most and her grandchildren were the loves of her life. Peggy went to work for Fidelity Investments as a funds processing analyst for many years until she retired. She also worked as a server at Maggio’s Restaurant in Revere and Companions Restaurant for many years. Peggy’s personality made her everyone’s favorite server. She always made everyone feel special.

A late member of the Immaculata Guild, Peggy had many interests and talents; one of course was her gift to decorate and redecorate a room or a home. A very talented seamstress, she could make anything and she would share her creations with her family and friends.

She had a deep love for the beach. She could often be found at Revere Beach with her dear friends, Cynthia and Maureen with the children in tow. Although she loved to travel to the West Coast, her favorite place was being with her daughters.

She was the loving and proud mother of Lynne A. Caramello and her husband, Ret. Revere Fire Lt. James V. Caramello of Revere, Erin M. DeNofrio and her husband, Michael DeNofrio of North Reading, Lauren A. O’Hara and Revere Police Captain Amy M. O’Hara and her husband, Frank Shea of Middleton; cherished grandmother of Alexandra, Casey, Caitlyn, Mia and Frankie; dear sister of Paul J. Driscoll and his wife, Annette of Revere, the late John “Jack”, George “Gigi” and James Driscoll. She is also lovingly survived by many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews, as well as by many friends and extended family.

In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made to St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Pl., Memphis, TN 38105-9959. To send online condolences or for more information, please visit www.vertuccioand-smith.com

Funeral Arrangements entrusted to the care and direction of the Vertuccio & Smith, Home for Funerals.

Eileene Sherriff

One Hundred Years Young

A Funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Anthony of Padua Church on August 23 for Eileene G. (Driscoll) Sherriff, who passed away peacefully on August 18. She was 100 years young.

Eileene was a longtime member of the Winthrop Golf Club, Past Treasurer of the Revere PTA and a member of the Board of Directors of the Eldorado County Club Apartments in Hallandale, FL.

The beloved wife of the late Joseph M. Sherriff, she was the cherished mother of Linda A. Della Porta – Morse and her two late husbands, Gerald A. Della Porta and Donald B. Morse, Jr., of Middleton and Robert N. Sherriff and his wife, Sandra (Insalaco) Sherriff of St. Pete Beach, FL, formerly of Swampscott; proud grandmother of Jay A. Della Porta and his wife, Patricia, Todd D. Della Porta and his wife, Jill, Nicole S. Caylor and her husband, Erik, Ryan L. Sherriff and his wife, Arielle, Crystal M. Sandler and her husband, Martin and Sarah L. Morse; cherished great grandmother to Kyle D. Della Porta, Gerald A. Della Porta and his wife, Carrie, Keith D. Della Porta, Chad D. Della Porta, Katia Della Porta, Joshua Dempsey and his wife, Kim, Lindsey Sandler, Amelia S. Caylor and Charlotte E. Caylor. She is also lovingly survived by three great great grandchildren.

She was the dear sister of the late Mary G. Driscoll, the late Daniel F. Driscoll, Jr. and his late wife, Doris, the late Genevieve L. Miret and her late husband, Francis, the late Thomas H. Driscoll and his late wife, Helen. Many faithful nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews also survive her. Eileene’s canine grandson, Brayden Morse, is missing her already.

Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett. Remembrances may be made to the Prospect House Activities Fund c/o Nicole Levesque, 420 Reservoir Ave., Revere, MA 02151. To send online condolences, please visit www.vertuccioandsmith.com.

Statement from local officials: How We’re Addressing the COVID-19 Surge

Staff report

Seventeen Greater Boston mayors and managers released the following statement today on their responses to the spread of the Delta variant of COVID-19:

“For the past several weeks, COVID-19 case numbers have climbed steadily across the nation due to the more transmissible Delta variant. We are encouraged that Massachusetts has among the nation’s highest vaccination rates and has therefore experienced less serious impacts of this new variant than other states in our nation.

“Nevertheless, we remain deeply concerned about the Delta variant and its potential public health impacts, especially among residents who are not yet vaccinated, residents who are vulnerable because of their age or health status, and children who are below the allowable age for vaccination.

“We are committed to providing clear and consistent guidance for our residents, grounded in the most up-to-date data and science. We, the undersigned Mayors, City and Town Managers, and Town Administrators, are working collaboratively to address the current surge in COVID-19 cases.

“These are some of the additional public health measures we have already undertaken or are currently exploring:

Requiring masks in schools. We hope to make this school year as normal as possible for our students, teachers, and support staff. Working with our school boards, superintendents, and teachers, we hope to restore the mask requirement in

Stephen J. DeLorenzo

1951-2020

Family and friends are respectfully invited to attend a memorial mass for the late Stephen J. DeLorenzo, at St. Anthony of Padua Church, 250 Revere St., Revere MA at 10AM on Saturday August 28th, 2021. Interment to follow at Holy Cross Cemetery, 175 Broadway, Malden MA.

Born in Boston and raised in Revere (Beachmont), he was the son of the late Anthony “Sevie” P. and Carmelina “Millie” (Santosuosso) DeLorenzo Sr.

He was above all a family man, who loved and supported them unconditionally. When he became a grandfather “Papa” to his 3 grandchildren, they were the center of his world. He was the most generous and loving husband, father, and “Papa” a family could ever be blessed with.

He was the beloved husband of Ann (Taylor) DeLorenzo with whom he shared 44 years of marriage.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his two sons, Anthony K. DeLorenzo and his wife Michelle of Beverly, Andrew DeLorenzo and his wife Amanda of Salem; three grandchildren, whom he loved more than anything; Gianna, Alessia and Rocco; one brother, Anthony “DeDe” P. DeLorenzo Jr. of Revere and one sister, Lisa “Candy” DeLorenzo of Charlestown.

He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Birthday Remembrance August 26th

Happy Birthday my love
I woke with you on my mind

I could picture you
Sitting outside in the yard
The smell of freshly cut grass
The sun shining down
A tall cold drink
And your newspaper

How you enjoyed reading
your paper

On a warm sunny afternoon
Enjoy your day
And the sweet smell of a red rose
Placed on your grave
To remind you that
I love you always and forever

REVERE THROUGH THE YEARS

A combination of ultra-high tides and category 2 Hurricane Irene headed to Boston Harbor, both on Sunday, have Revere officials contemplating and planning today. With Mayor Tom Ambrosino on vacation this week, Interim Mayor John Powers – who is quite an authority on flooding in his Ward 5 area – has unexpectedly inherited the job of coordinating the disaster contingency plan. From City Hall on Thursday morning, Powers said that a group of officials – including Fire Chief Gene Doherty, Police Chief Terence Reardon, DPW Superintendent Don Goodwin and members of the Water & Sewer Department – will conduct a meeting at 9 a.m. Friday to discuss all the potential problems that could be heading to Revere.

As expected, the House and the Senate have agreed on legislation for expanded gambling. The bill has been reported out of committee and is available to the public in an action taken Tuesday by House Speaker Robert DeLeo and Senate President Therese Murray. Governor Deval Patrick said he approved of the legislation and gave it his conditional OK. A few of the specifics enumerated in the 155-page bill include ballot question elections in potential casino host cities, Revere and East Boston, which is home to Suffolk Downs. The host communities will be reimbursed for the cost of the elections by the applicant for a casino license. There will also be a host community impact fee.

Chelsea District Court Judge John W. MacLeod will determine whether charges of operating gambling machines should be issued against the operators of three amusement games, Fascination, Skill Rite, and Light a Line, on Revere Beach. The issue is whether these are games of skill or chance, with the State Police, who are pursuing the charges, alleging that they are the latter.

Ongoing testing in schools. Regular testing in schools gives us an opportunity to learn about outbreaks and help to contain them before they spread widely. These tests are provided at no cost to districts.

Requiring masks in municipal buildings. Beyond the school setting, we are working to establish mask requirements for everyone working and entering non-school municipal buildings.

Consider pursuing proof of vaccination or regular testing for municipal workers. We will be working with our department heads and labor representatives to consider having all municipal and school staff show proof of vaccination (or a medical or religious exemption), or submit to regular testing, Encouraging people to consider masking in public indoor spaces. We will strongly encourage masks in publicly accessible indoor spaces where individuals gather, including places such as shops, restaurants, hair salons, gyms, halls, and function rooms.

"As we implement these steps, we will continue to work with state and federal officials to adjust our guidance in response to emerging scientific data, encourage and help all residents to become fully vaccinated, and ensure that adequate testing remains available to all who may need it."

Addison Ulwick wins MLB Pitch Hit and Run Regionals at Fenway Park

By Cary Shuman

Addison Ulwick of Revere finished in first place overall in the MLB Pitch and Run regional competition held Aug. 14 at Fenway Park.

Addison took first place in the pitching, hitting, and baserunning contests in the girls' 9-10-year-old division. Addison showed her speed in starting from second base and running to home plate on the 90-foot basepaths.

Addison had the honor of receiving her award at a pre-game ceremony with Red Sox mascot Wally the Green Monster on the field, while her photo, her name, and her hometown (Revere) were displayed on the large message board at the ballpark.

"It was just such an amazing experience," said Aimee Ulwick. "Being on the field, running the bases – she just did awesome. It was a great moment."

Addison and her mother, Aimee, were also guests for the Orioles-Red Sox game in which Chris Sale returned to the Red Sox pitching rotation and led the Sox to a victory.

Addison is considered the Boston Red Sox "team champion" and is in contention for a trip to the MLB World Series for the national finals of the Pitch Hit and Run Contest.

Revere High football opens pre-season workouts

By Cary Shuman

Seeking to continue the momentum from consecutive outstanding seasons, the Revere High School football team will begin its pre-season scrimmage schedule against Hamilton-Wenham Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at Harry Della Russo Stadium.

Sixty-five players are participating in pre-season practices. "That's a lot of kids for us, so it's a good turnout," said head coach Lou Cicatelli. "We've been in the weight room during the summer. I'm pleased, so far so good. They're a good bunch of kids. It's a young group and there's a lot of teaching that is going on at practices."

Prior to the local practices, Revere participated in mini-camp sessions at Northeast Regional in Wakefield with Coach Donald Heres' Northeast Golden Knights, Beverly, Amesbury, and KIPP Academy of Lynn.

Revere is also slated to scrimmage Northeast on Sept. 3 at 10 a.m. at Della Russo Stadium. The Patriots will open their regular season against Peabody on Friday, Sept. 10 at 6 p.m. at Della Russo Stadium.

Marchese wins team's Ironman Competition

Mark Marchese, a senior running back, took first place in the team's annual Ironman Competition that measures a player's strength, mobility, and conditioning.

The event is traditionally held at Revere Beach, but it was moved inside to the Merullo Fieldhouse.

RHS captains are elected

Revere High will have four captains this season: seniors August Goncalves, Elmahdi Elkeouakibi, and Wilmer Rodriguez, and junior Max Doucette.

The team held captains' elections last Friday.

Quarterbacks contend for starting position

With Revere's All-Scholastic quarterback Calvin Boudreau now attending Curry, the signal caller's position is up for grabs.

The two leading contenders at QB are senior Anwar Marbough and freshman Carlos Rizzo.

Mark Marchese, Wilmer Rodriguez, and David Barreto are vying for the running back positions.

CITY PAWS

Healthy Teamwork

By Penny & Ed Cherubino

Last year the American Heart Association (AHA) published “16 Science-Backed Reasons Adopting a Dog Could Be Good for Your Heart.” One of the findings was that those with dogs “...are more likely to reach their fitness goals than those without canine companions.”

We know that we found it was far too easy to put off or eliminate daily exercise in the time between dogs. Our dogs have helped keep us fit and they have improved our social connection to our community which is great for our well-being.

Make Health a Team Effort

Your dog depends on you to craft a healthy life for them. The editors of The Bark Magazine recently suggested that dog guardians create a plan for keeping those at both ends of the leash as healthy as possible. If you need the motivation to get more exercise, eat a more nutritious diet, deal better with stress, schedule routine medical checkups, and all the other self-care you need, you should do it for and with your dog.

If an increase in exercise and a diet change are part of your goals, start with checkups for both you and your canine teammate. Not only will this give you guidance on how to proceed in light of any issues either of you may have, but it will also share your intentions with both medical teams, who can then help you monitor progress.

As with any change, take it slowly. Start with a few extra blocks before you decide to run a 5K as a team. You know when your muscles ache, and your feet are sore. As the human in the pair, you should evaluate your dog’s condition.

You also have to make decisions about protecting your dog when you are exercising in various weather conditions. This time of year, you have to test the heat of the pavement and perhaps decide to walk on a dirt or grass path to prevent paw burns. You need to bring plenty of water for both of you. In rain and cold, you may want to protect dogs with thinner coats by using a jacket or boots to protect paws from salt in a New England winter.

When you have a dog, you exercise in all kinds of weather. Just be sure you are both “dressed” for the conditions.

Emotional Well-Being

The AHA also pointed out that scientific studies found, “When we see, touch, hear or talk to our companion animals, we feel goodwill, joy, nurturing and happiness. At the same time, stress hormones are suppressed.” This finding may explain why “Dog owners are 31% less likely to die from a heart attack or stroke than non-dog owners.”

At the same time, dogs benefit from companionship and bonding in our quieter moments together. As long as you learn the types of touch your dog enjoys and allow them to move away when they’ve had enough, it can improve your bond.

If your dog enjoys a good ear or tail scratch or a cuddle, you can substitute a dose of praise and a bit of touching for a food reward if canine weight loss is part of your team’s plan.

Building Community

The final way your dog can be a great teammate is by helping you stay connected to your community. Interacting with more people gives you more emotional support. It allows your dog to have more favorable interactions with people and dogs, which is good for preventing behavioral issues.

Think about making healthy living a team goal for you and all your family members, especially that ever so helpful dog.

New Adventurefuls Girl Scout Cookie joins lineup for 2022 season nationwide

Staff report

Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts (GSEMA), Girl Scouts of Central and Western Massachusetts (GSCWM) and Girl Scouts of the USA (GSUSA) announced that the new Adventurefuls cookie will join the nationwide lineup for the 2022 Girl Scout Cookie season. An indulgent brownie-inspired cookie with caramel-flavored crème and a hint of sea salt, Adventurefuls take cookie lovers on a delicious taste adventure just like Girl Scouts go on their own amazing adventures through the program. Girl Scouts in Massachusetts and across the United States will offer the Adventurefuls cookie next season alongside favorites like Thin Mints® and [Samoas®/Caramel deLites®].

Every purchase of Adventurefuls, and the whole portfolio of iconic cookies, during cookie season, fuels local Girl Scouts’ adventures throughout the year: exploring what interests them, discovering their passions, and taking action on issues they care about. Whether they’re using their STEM skills to solve a problem, changing a law to help their community, having a courageous outdoor experience, or starting an innovative nonprofit, Girl Scouts build a better future for themselves and the world. Through the Girl Scout Cookie Program, not only do girls become entrepreneurs as they gain hands-on experience running their own small business, but they also earn money to fuel their Girl Scout adventures, which catapult them where they want to go.

Also new this year, GSUSA recently announced new Cookie Business badges that help girls think like entrepreneurs as they run their own cookie businesses and incorporate online sales via the [Digital Cookie® and Smart Cookies] platform. The badges progress from goal setting and effective sales-pitching in person and online to using market research, creating business plans, and implementing digital marketing campaigns.

Available nationwide, every bite of Adventurefuls is full of indulgent brownie-inspired flavor with a combination of chocolatey and caramel flavors, and smooth and crispy textures, for an incredible taste of adventure in every bite.

Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts kicks off cookie season on December 7, 2021; Girl Scouts of Central and Western Massachusetts kicks off cookie season on January 14, 2022; visit www.girlscoutcookies.org to sign up to be notified as soon as Adventurefuls and other Girl Scout Cookies are on sale.

Bianco & Sons donates 100 lunchboxes to DCF

Staff Report

Bianco & Sons is pleased to announce that, with help from customers, it has made a charitable donation of 100 lunchboxes to the Department of Children and Families (DCF) of Wakefield. The lunchboxes will be distributed to children in the eight Massachusetts cities and towns the office serves: Everett, Malden, Medford, Wakefield, North Reading, Reading and Stoneham.

The funds for this donation were raised during Bianco & Sons’ Independence Day Sausage Cart Event at its Medford, Massachusetts retail store on July 2, 2021. Five-dollar sandwiches were available for purchase and each purchase was then matched by the Bianco family to support DCF’s back-to-school efforts.

“We want to thank our customers for their support in helping us make this donation,” said Francesca Bianco Collins, Chief Operating Officer, Bianco & Sons. “DCF is doing incredible work supporting children and families within our community. We will continue to support their efforts in any way that we can.”

Bianco & Sons is a family-owned food manufacturing company located in Medford, Massachusetts. Since 1960, Bianco has specialized in producing high-quality sausage and marinated meats, including beef, pork and poultry. You can find Bianco products across New England in local supermarkets and restaurants. For more information about Bianco & Sons, visit: www.bianco-sausage.com.

ANNUAL SHANNON GRANT BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Local teens, youth services workers and law enforcement officials joined together for the Annual Shannon Grant Basketball Tournament last weekend, in a show of solidarity among youth and those who fight for their safety. On Saturday, August 15, teams from Everett, Malden, Somerville, Revere and Winthrop competed in the 12th Annual Shannon Grant Basketball Tournament at Harry Della Russo Stadium in Revere. This year's event included a three-point contest, pizza, a cookout, an onsite mobile vaccine unit, and recognition from state elected officials.

Kris Oldoni, director of the Revere Police Activities League, welcomes everyone to the event at the start of the tournament.

MEMORIES OF REVERE BEACH

Shaping what we've become

The beach has figured prominently in the development of our community

By David Procopio

IN THE EARLIEST OF men's recollections in the new world, when native Americans lived off the sacred land, the great crescent beach and the marshland that rolled down to it would have been a botanist's and marine biologist's dream.

On a little woodland called Oak Island alone, almost 400 species of plants would eventually be identified. Indians with hooks and lines were taking up to 80 bass with each incoming tide. A list of other marine life found in the waters off Revere included whales, porpoises, mackerel, bluefish, dogfish, her-ring, flounder, cod, perch, eels, lobsters, skates, shrimp and clams.

It was a scene of great natural beauty, but one whose eventual transformation was, perhaps, inevitable considering the particular features of this beach.

Explained historian Benjamin Shurtleff, "Surrounded on three sides by numerous cities and towns, from whose aggressions the intervening marshes have hitherto protected it, and with a popular seaside resort close at hand, there the plants, once doubtless spread over a much larger area, have been driven, and are making a last stand against the encroachments of an ever-increasing population and the destructive results to the flora which necessarily attend it."

Adam and Eve, scripture tells, lost their garden, too. Perhaps the loss of Revere's was inevitable. But one thing is certain: the 4 1/2 miles of coastline that stretched from the mouth of the Saugus River in the Point of Pines to Grover's Cliff in Winthrop had a large influence on how this city grew, what grew here, and how fast it happened.

Some have seen that effect as an advantage; others, quite the opposite.

THROUGHOUT ITS history, Revere was a point between origin and destination. The Salem Turnpike, which is today Broadway and Route 107, was built to facilitate travel between Boston and Salem. Because of that, what is now the center of the city, intersected by the turnpike, was one of the first areas developed.

Ironically, that fact that the community was a stopover for travelers also helped create its best-known, if far from its only, historical feature. For along the coast, where the green Atlantic seafoam washed into marshland and up to hills, neighborhoods grew because in the 1870s, a company seeking to develop the land decided to charter a railroad through it.

By this time the Eastern Railroad, which ran the route of the current Boston and Maine, had already been intersecting the city, several hundred yards west of the ocean, since the middle of the century. The new railroad would run right on the beach and be called the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn line. Those who knew it used its more common name - the Narrow Gauge.

"It's success was early assured and resulted in the rapid growth of the population of that section of town," Shurtleff wrote in his 1937 work, "The History of the Town of Revere."

If, as it was once said, all roads led to Rome, then all tracks cut through Revere.

A map from the 1840s. It's text revealed that at that time there were just two buildings on the beach.

Around the same time, the town once settled by Puritans assured of their Providential right to govern began to be inundated with a host of immigrants, including Irish and Italian Catholics and European Jews.

Added to that, said City Clerk John Henry, himself a student of the city's history, the beach was one of the few around Boston that had attraction to pleasure seekers.

"It was one of the few crescent beaches," Henry said. "Revere Beach was a long stretch of open beach."

As early as 1839, men were building speakeasies and hotels on the beach. That year, Bostonian Solomon Hayes bought the Point of Pines and put up a tavern he called the Robinson Crusoe House. In the next decade, the Neptune House was built between the Pines and Revere Street, followed closely by Gay's Saloon.

Soon after the railroad was running, the Sea Foam House, the Grand View Hotel, the Vue de l'Eau, and the massive Pines Hotel - with its 32-foot wide veranda the largest hotel on the New England coast - sprang up.

In addition to the glamour, there was squalor: shacks and shanties dotted the sand as well.

THE GROWING population, easy accessibility to the ocean and the beginnings of a beach resort combined to spark interest, and growth, of the seaside town.

"It's like California," said local history teacher Jeffrey Pearlman. "If it wasn't for the gold rush, there would be a California, but California would not have grown so quickly. There's no question in my mind that without the beach Revere would not have grown as fast nor have gotten as much publicity. Nothing in the city would have happened were it not for the beach."

Beachmont - settled, as its name implies, on a hill overlooking the ocean - had its turn first. According to Shurtleff, the number of houses in that neighborhood grew from 170 in 1871, to 196 two years later, to 282 two years after that.

In addition to permanent residents, the hill was also popular with summer campers who lived in tents. "From the ocean if you looked at Beachmont all you saw was a sea of white tents," Pearlman said.

The rest of the beach soon followed. "In a short period of time, two almost barren hills and a lonely beach were covered with the houses of a resident population with hotels and summer resorts," Shurtleff wrote.

In 1871, the year the town changed its name from North Chelsea to Revere, taxpayers were billed a total of $2.1 million. By 1885, the valuation had jumped to $3.4 million, of which nearly half was paid by property owners living east of the Eastern Railroad - in other words, near or on the ocean.

A year after the name change, the chairman of the Board of Selectmen seemed satisfied the new residents would not strain town services - a luxury not afforded today.

"With the increase in population comes an equally increased demand for public improvements," he wrote. "If these two can be made to keep equal pace with each other without increasing too much the burdens of taxation, there is no good reason why the new town of Revere may not in the future be prosperous."

But growth has a double edge. As the population grew, inevitably, an unsavory element came with it. Petty criminals, prostitutes and con-men appeared.

"It was very degenerate crowd that not only was attracted but that lived down there," Pearlman said.

Then, as now, not everyone lived the good life. In 1876, Shurtleff said, the town took 1,062 "tramps" into what must have been a version of protective custody. "Usually, the people fed these tramps outside the door," he wrote. "They soon became a big nuisance."

By the 1870s, temperance leagues were beginning their strong push for prohibition. Around that time, historians estimated, there was one saloon for every 400 people in the country. It's probably safe to say the ratio on Revere Beach was a little higher. (Interestingly, the Point of Pines had a history as a destination for bootleggers, especially Lt. Col. Nicholas Paige, who in the early 1700s, while traveling in high social circles in Boston, was also suspected of running rum into the Pines.)

As Henry noted, "that was the big issue. Whether alcohol or no alcohol was going to be allowed" in the beach establishments.

IRONICALLY, SETTLERS who founded the town as Rumney Marsh in 1630 had discouraged beachfront settlement because of the marshy land and vast quantities of valuable eel grass there.

Over the next two centuries, two of the bigger controversies facing the settlement's fathers and its inhabitants were the question of who owned the beach - the town or abutting property owners - and the "crime" of out-of-towners taking seaweed, sand, gravel, stones, eel grass, and manure from the beach.

Some items, like the marsh grass, were valuable. The other objects, according to a history of Chelsea written by Mellen Chamberlain, were thought to protect against "a breaking of the ocean" leading to "the destruction of several hundred acres of valuable salt marsh."

Robert Forrey, a former Revere resident and now history professor at Shawnee State University in Ohio, sees that concern as an offshoot of poverty prevalent before the city began to grow.

That economic disadvantage is a direct result of the nature of the beach, believes Forrey, who covers the topic in his latest book about Revere's history, "The Religion of a New England Town."

"One of the main disadvantages that Revere had in its first couple of hundred years is that it had no harbor," Forrey said, a feature which put it at a disadvantage to such towns as Salem, Gloucester and Marblehead.

"The sound is so shallow that boats had trouble. A town on the coast that doesn't have a harbor, it's like not having a railroad station."

Traveling to Boston overland in the 1600s took two days. If Revere could have sent boats there from a deep-water harbor, Forrey believes, if it could have hosted a fishing fleet or import trade, its economy never would have settled on the entertainment and gaming industries - and the problems they brought.

"Revere would not have some of the problems it has today if it had not been for the fact that from the very beginning it was at an economic disadvantage," he said in a recent telephone interview. "When we made entertainment and gambling our major industry - because there was nothing else - that did affect our history."

Yet for whatever reason, or for all of them - the shallowness of Broad Sound, the train lines, the encroaching population - the beach, looking back now with more than century's hindsight, seemed destined to become an entertainment mecca. But that

IN 1892 A YOUNG architect named Charles Eliot saw what was happening on the beach and believed the best way to cure its ills was to have the new Boston Metropolitan Park System take it over. "The present condition of this fine beach is a disgrace," he told the Massachusetts Legislature. The General Court agreed.

Interestingly, Eliot foresaw in the beach not so much an amusement park, but rather, "its capabilities as a place of residence equipped with a broad esplanade and drive and lined with houses and hotels facing the southeast and the sea."

The state took action, purchasing privately-owned lands on the beach and opening them to the public - a first that gave Eliot much satisfaction. Buildings on the water's edge were razed. The Narrow Gauge tracks were moved 250 feet to the west.

If this history were presented in a series of paintings, what happened next would be an explosion of color not unlike a sun-soaked French impressionist scene. For what followed was the era of roaring roller coasters and elegantly carved carousel horses, of dance halls and roller skating rinks, of hot dogs and saltwater taffy and frozen custard, of freak shows and haunted houses, and of such novel attractions as horses diving into water tanks, seaplane rides, monkeys driving racing cars, and, at Wonderland Park, surely the Epocot Center of its day, a strange little incubator room where the public could view nurses caring for prematurely-born babies.

There was also a game in which patrons paid to throw a ball at the head of an African-American man. It was commonly known by a less-flattering term. Politically correct, no, though a reflection of the times.

THE GLORY DAYS certainly had their effect on Revere, by now a boom town. People poured into the city by the hundreds of thousands, something that surely was both good and bad.

Certainly some of those were troublemakers, and by the 1950s and '60s some of the nightclubs on the beach had become hangouts for notorious mobsters. (One of the more flamboyant was Joe Barboza, who held court at the Ebb Tide and was eventually gunned down in San Francisco after turning state's evidence against his old friends.)

But it was also, especially in the early part of the century, a gentrified crowd that came to Revere Beach, to stroll along the promenade, gazing at the water, perhaps listening to music under the moonlight. "The derby hats, the straw collars - that was the fashion of the day," Henry said.

Most of those who today can remember the beach's golden era recall it with a sweetness usually reserved for childhood's most innocent moments. Indeed, it was something of an extended childhood. For the vast majority of people who visited the beach, it was wholesome, clean fun. And plenty of excitement.

As it does today to some degree, traffic to the beach congested local roads. According to a Revere Journal report from 1929, roads leading into the city were clogged with cars on the Fourth of July, when an old ship loaded with explosives was bombed by warplanes. Fireworks, indeed.

The beach was surely also a fiscal boon to the city. Throughout the 1940s, '50s and '60s, City Clerk Henry said, the beach properties had the largest assessments in Revere, despite the fact that many of them were small pieces of land with little, if any, frontage.

"They paid far and away more than the real estate," Henry noted. But pay they did, because they were getting by, and some proprietors were even making a decent living.

BUT LIKE THE SEA breezes that cooled the great pier, change could be felt, gently at first. Nineteen-forty-five saw the defeat of Facism abroad, and the boys came home to a country poised for a boom. More people had cars. Gasoline was no longer rationed. Suddenly, people had access to other recreation spots. It happened slowly, but it happened nonetheless.

As the crowds waned, new proprietors took over some of the attractions from the great families that once ran them, and the new businessmen didn't - or couldn't - put as much money back into their product to keep it up. Liability insurance premiums skyrocketed.

Structures deteriorated. Fires were frequent, burning to the ground so many sites that held so many dear memories for so many people.

While many today lament the passing of the beach's golden era, most also agree the wonderful playground that it was a product unique to its time, incapable of being sustained forever or re-created now. Looking back, it's decline now seems to have been inevitable, especially once the people stopped coming as they once had.

"Once you lost that 10, 20, 30 percent of your summer revenue... If you didn't make your money by July you couldn't stay open the next year," Henry said.

Added Pearlman of the beach's ultimately fleeting glory, "it was unique to its time.

People today would not be satisfied with what we had at Revere Beach. They're looking for thrills, they're looking for color.

I've heard people say, 'we're not going to Disney World because we've been there. We want something else.'"

In Forrey's view, the decline is why the lack of a deep harbor was such a grave geographical feature. With no other industry as a priority, entertainment and gaming took hold.

"I think we're still looking for some economic boom other than gambling and we're not finding it," he said.

One other approach was to be tried. It's reviews would be mixed, but it would do one thing. It would restore the beach to the purpose envisioned by Eliot, albeit with a modern, concrete look.

THE CLOSING OF THE Cyclone coaster at the end of the 1960s was a sobering message for any who had missed it before - now it was over.

Eight years later, a great blizzard wiped out what attractions were left, along with several pavilions. In the estimation of George V. Colella, who was mayor at the time, there were by now "50 to 60 barrooms on the beach." The beach was becoming an albatross, not a gold medal, around the city's neck.

The city and the park system, by this time known as Metropolitan District Commission, sought a plan for rebirth.

A Revere Beach Design Review Board was formed. Countless meetings and public hearings were held, Colella said, "to get a clear picture of what could and could not be done."

The MDC police station and bathhouse were renovated. There was talk of bringing back an antique carousel, which was never done. Parcels of privately owned land were assembled. Proposals were sought from developers. There was one disclaimer: whatever was to be built had to have "a strong sense of family and community," Colella said.

The planners apparently found that in designs for condominiums and apartments. Contractors started building in the early 1980's, changing forever the beach's skyline with their multi-story, geometrical, yet sterile, structures. Revere Beach suddenly looked more like Miami than what the local shoreline had been a half-century earlier.

Firefighters put water on the smoldering remains of the Virginia Reel in the early 1970s. Another burned attraction, another symbol of the demise of the beach's golden era.

Criticism heightened, especially when the bottom fell out of the real estate market in the late 1980's. Unable to sell, some condo developers agreed to provide subsidized housing in their empty units - which was not taken altogether calmly in a city that believes it already hosts more than its fair share of that kind of public assistance.

Colella believes the criticism is unfounded. He noted that by turning the beach back toward residential development - Eliot's initial vision - the city was spared the violent effects that a proliferation of barrooms in a depressed area would have brought. He added that the taxes the redevelopment generated saved the city from a major fiscal crisis.

"I think the condominiums and apartments on Revere Beach have taken their knocks because of people who didn't want to see a modern beachfront," said Colella. "To those, especially the detractors, who might say it's a wall between the city and the beach, I think we eradicated a wall between the city and the beach by cleaning out many of the barrooms, the gaming areas."

Colella said the beach today is "a decided advantage" to the city.

"At one point in the late '80s we realized that in one year there had been some $3 million in new growth," he said. "It certainly bailed us out in terms of keeping firefighters and police at work."

An article in a magazine for municipal governments once said that the condominiums "constitute a new gentrified morphology that is lacking in the other parts of Revere. The attenuated beach front has been discovered and invaded by 'bright collar' professionals. Former residents of the city are now moving back to a new upscale region..." Some longtime residents of Revere would find that somewhat snobbish, and they might be right. But that was probably the perception the condominiums created outside the city.

Other measures contributed to the beach's new face. The MDC in the 1970s had acquired a stretch of land between the Boulevard and Ocean Avenue. This was to be kept open, though some today think better use can be made of it. The MDC and the US Army Corps of Engineers trucked in hundreds of thousands of cubic yards of sand. The repair of the pavilions and other beachfront areas was completed early in this decade.

BUT EVEN THOSE WHO see the beach as an advantage to the city believe there is more that can be done. The city's last three mayors - Colella, William G. Reinstein and Robert J. Haas Jr. - do not think the beachfront has reached its potential.

"I still think there are places along the beachfront that are not conducive to a modern beachfront, areas that should be razed," Colella said.

Colella, now a city councillor, suggested more can be done with the grassy strip of land between Ocean Avenue and the Boulevard, and thinks a hotel - currently the aim of several city councilors - could flourish as a stopping-over point for airline passengers, but not as the anchor of a vacation resort. He would also like to see the beach declared part of the National Park System, a move for which Revere's congressman, Edward J. Markey, has been fighting for years.

Reinstein, now a state representative, thinks more could be done to "maximize the tax dollar."

"How much beach is there? There's not much left in Massachusetts. Seaside property is at a premium. You could really look to develop a package down there."

Reinstein thinks the beach could host the convention center some state political leaders yearn to build in Boston. But he believes the city, and not another level of government, should control the fate of the beach. Thus he thinks inclusion in the National Park System, which would put it in federal hands, might not be the best answer.

Reinstein thinks a committee should be formed to the plan the beach's use into the 21st century. Some city councilors, who have formed their own committee, are courting hotel developers.

Haas, the current mayor who has sought a policy of "controlled development" throughout the city, also believes there is much potential at the beach. But he, like Reinstein, would like to see it under local control.

"With the MDC controlling so much land, there's only so much we can do," Haas said.

It is ironic - but perhaps not surprising - that as the beach celebrates the 100th anniversary of Eliot's design, options for its future are uncertain.

But there do remain ties to its past. Water quality improvements in the last five years have sparked a return of swimmers. Crowds are coming back, and among those using the beach are the city's newest immigrants; Asian and Hispanic beach-goers are following the lead of Irish and Italians a century ago. Public transportation still runs behind the beach, the MBTA having taken over the lines over which the Narrow Gauge once rumbled, although today, much of the T's traffic through Revere consists of workers commuting to Boston.

One other thing is certain: as long as there is a Revere Beach it will have an influence, good or bad, on its community and its inhabitants. This is so today, just as it was so in the days when Indians pulled great amounts of fish from the sea, when people got off trains and built homes near the ocean, when hundreds of thousands flocked to a colorful playground to enjoy some of the best times of their lives.

All the big names...

As the playground of New England, Revere Beach naturally drew its share of big names in the golden days, many of them at the Frolic nightclub.

Barbara Streisand played there early in her career. Liberace appeared locally too.

Jerry Vale was a big hit on the Crescent Beach. He got $2,500 for a week's worth of shows.

Pat Cooper was paid $750 for a week's performances - less than Dinah Washington ($5,000), Sarah Vaughan ($6,500) and a comedian who made ethnic humor tasteful named Jackie Mason ($5,000).

Another who appeared was singer Al Martino.

There were many, many more.

Mason, incidentally, is performing at the North Shore Music Theatre in Beverly on Monday, July 22. Wonder if he'll take a ride a few miles down the coast for a dose of memories? Wonder if he'd recognize the ol' place?

By the beginning of the 20th century, crowds were filling Revere Beach on a weekly basis.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

CHELSEA HITS 40,000 RESIDENTS

CHELSEA - After a disappointing Census effort last year due to being hindered significantly by COVID-19 and a distrust among the populace of the federal government, the official numbers came out last week and Chelsea showed a surprising increase in its count – climbing above 40,000 residents for the first time in a long time.

While many would agree that in reality Chelsea is likely at about 55,000 residents, the numbers on paper were always quite low and the City is named a hard-to-count community by the Census officials.

In 2010, the City was profoundly disappointed when its numbers came back at 35,177 residents, a tremendous undercounting that caused the City to lose millions in federal formula-funded programs over the last 10 years. Last week, though, many said it was a pleasant surprise to see that Chelsea had registered 40,787 residents in the count, as some had said it looked like early on that the City may decrease in population from the 2010 number.

It was a growth of 5,610 people and one of the larger growth numbers statewide, even despite trying to count people in the ravages of COVID-19 in a city hit harder than most in America in 2020.

The 40,000 number was a key number for the purposes of federal funding formulas and also for the coming redistricting process to determine state representative, state senate and U.S. Congress seat geographies. Clearly, many in Chelsea have been talking over the last six months about trying to get an all-Chelsea seat like Everett has, though most likely Chelsea would need to add a piece of East Boston if that were to happen – maybe Eagle Hill area. Such a configuration would work as East Boston grew substantially in the Census 2020 figures, going from 40,508 in 2010 to 43,066 in 2020.

Chelsea was once again predominantly Hispanic, with 67 percent of the population counted as Hispanic, though that’s likely a gross undercounting despite being one of the largest population percentages of Hispanics in the state. Chelsea has been a predominately Hispanic community since the 2000 Census when they broke 50 percent in the count.

It was a similar story in surrounding cities, with Hispanic populations growing in Everett (28.3 percent) and Revere (33.6 percent).

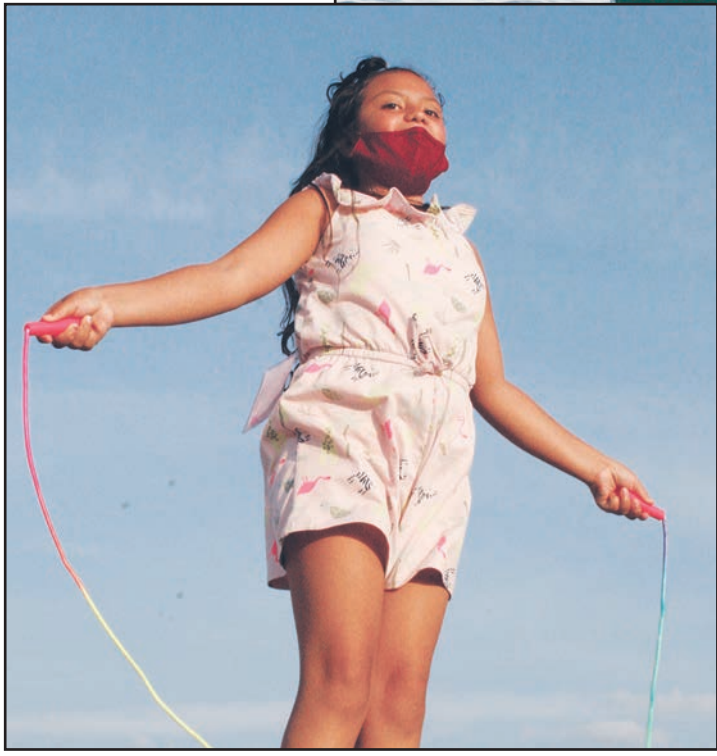

The White alone population came in at 20.6 percent, and the Black population was at 6.4 percent. The Asian population was a 4 percent.

Interestingly, Chelsea’s number of two or more races was quite high, at 32.8 percent, and is likely reflective of the high Hispanic population – as well as a general trend nationwide for people choosing two or more races.

Not surprisingly, Chelsea’s foreign-born population was 45.4 percent, higher than most in the area. Other Census tidbits included:

- Chelsea’s owner-occupied housing unit count was 25.9 percent.
 - The median value of owner-occupied housing units was $350,800.
 - The average persons per household was 2.96, which was quite high, but not much different than Everett, which was 2.87 per unit.
 - The mean commute time for Chelsea residents was 34 minutes.
 - The percentage of the population living in poverty was 18.1 percent.
 - The youth population in Chelsea was much larger than many places, with 34.7 percent of the population being 18 or under. By comparison, Everett was 28.3 percent and Boston was at 15 percent.
 - Women made up 48.3 percent of the population.
- The total U.S. population for 2020 was 331,449,281, and demographically nationwide the White alone population was on the decrease at 60.1 percent of the national population. The largest non-white group were Hispanics at 18.5 percent of the national population, with Black populations also on the decline at 13.4 percent nationally. Asians make up 5.9 percent of the total national population in 2020.

EVERETT - The family and friends of Ersilia Cataldo Matarazzo announce the formation of the Orange Rose Foundation; a 501(c)3 charity focusing on supporting organizations that assist victims of domestic violence. The Orange Rose Foundation will raise awareness about domestic violence and provide resources to help those most in need.

The Everett Kiwanis Club has donated $11,000 to assist the development of this foundation. The directors and members of the foundation are humbled and appreciative of this generosity which allows them to begin assisting these victims immediately.

Ersilia spent endless hours volunteering to help individuals and communities in need. Her passing has been a very difficult loss, not only for the family, but also for the entire community. She was always giving of herself, putting others first and she touched many lives. Within Everett, she served on the School Committee, Board of Registrar and was also on the Board of Assessors. She was Vice President of The Kiwanis Club and a devoted church member, allowing her to share her love throughout the community through numerous charitable ventures and opportunities to volunteer.

She was employed by both St. Anthony’s Church of Everett and Metropolitan Credit Union.

The Orange Rose Foundation is directed by President- Erminia Amy Buscaino, Vice President-Anthony Cataldo, Treasurer- Gina Maniscalco, Secretary- Amata Cucuzza. The Board Members are: Tricia LaRocca, Adriana Carbo, Giuseppina Cerasuolo, Joseph Buscaino, Marc Cerasuolo, Anthony Cucuzza and Marlene Zizza.

MAKING THE BEACH MORE ACCESSIBLE

EAST BOSTON - On Saturday, more than 125 individuals with disabilities came together to enjoy a fun-filled day at Constitution Beach.

The Beach:Ability at Constitution Beach program was created several years ago through a grant from Save the Harbor/

Save the Bay’s Better Beaches program with support by DCR’s Universal Access program. The yearly event hosted by Triangle, Inc. highlights programs that make Massachusetts public beaches, like the one in Eastie, accessible to the disability community.

As part of this year’s event, Save the Harbor/Save the Bay donated beach wheelchairs to three local non-profit organizations serving the disability community of greater Boston.

“It fills my heart with joy to see people of all ages and abilities come together on a beautiful summer day to celebrate clean water at Constitution Beach,” said Rep. Adrian Madaro, who Co-Chairs the Metropolitan Beaches Commission and was instrumental in securing funds to make Beach:Ability possible. “Thanks to Triangle, Inc. and Save the Harbor/Save the Bay for taking the lead and making it happen again this year.”

CEO of Triangle, Inc. Coleman Nee said Triangle was excited to return to Constitution Beach for its second Beach:Ability event.

“For many in the Disability Community, awareness of these amazing beaches and/or perceptions of their accessibility have, in the past, presented barriers to a fully inclusive public waterfront,” said Nee. “We hope that this event helps change those beliefs and highlights the great work of our partners at DCR’s Universal Access Program and Save the Harbor/Save the Bay to ensure that equipment such as mobi-mats, sand wheelchairs and floating swim chairs are available at all of Massachusetts public beaches.”

Executive Director of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay Chris Mancini said as part of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay’s steadfast commitment to accessibility, inclusion, diversity, and equity, he was thrilled to partner with Triangle to make sure the region’s amazing public beaches are welcoming to the disability community.

“We are proud to extend these efforts by donating additional accessible sand and swim wheelchairs to area nonprofits serving the disability community, including the South Boston Neighborhood House, ARC of the South Shore, and Triangle,” he said.

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay’s Director of Development Patricia Salic was also moved by Beach:Ability and thanked all those that took part. She took a few moments on Saturday morning to thank Save the Harbor’s Better Beaches program and policy partners and event sponsors. These included Harpoon Brewery, JetBlue, the Richard Saltonstall Charitable Foundation, P&G Gillette, National Grid, Comcast, Beacon Capital Partners, Mix 104.1, Boston Centers for Youth & Families, The YMCA of Greater Boston, The Daily Catch, Boston Event Specialists, the Blue Sky Collaborative, and Keezer Sportswear for their support, as well as the nearly 1,000 individuals who contributed to the support of the Harpoon Shamrock Splash.

Saturday’s event was one of scores of events planned for the region’s public beaches from Nahant to Nantasket this summer, as part of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay’s Better Beaches program partnership with DCR. To find out more about events on your favorite beach, visit their website at www.savetheharbor.org and follow @savetheharbor on social media.

Bradford Hill appointed to the Massachusetts Gaming Commission

Staff report

Gov. Charlie Baker, Treasurer Deborah B. Goldberg and Attorney General Maura Healey announced the appointment of Representative Bradford R. Hill to the Massachusetts Gaming Commission (MGC). The Gaming Commission among other duties oversees gaming operations at the casinos including the Encore in Everett.

Per statute, two commissioners are appointed by a majority vote of the Governor, Attorney General and Treasurer. Representative Hill will fill the experience in gaming regulation and administration or gaming industry management seat. The Commission is bipartisan, with no more than three members representing the same political party. Representative Hill will fulfill the balance of a term that ends in 2025.

“Brad Hill has been a dedicated public servant for over two decades and has years of experience working with the Massachusetts gaming community,” said Governor Charlie Baker. “I am confident that he will be well-suited to serve in this new role during a transformative time in the Commonwealth’s gaming industry and am pleased to make this appointment.”

“In his decades of experience advocating for the residents of the Commonwealth and their needs, Brad Hill has a proven record of leadership on gaming policy,” said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. “His demonstrated passion for the gaming industry, and his commitment to public service, will benefit the Commission and its work.”

“Brad Hill has spent his career advocating for our state and its residents,” said Attorney General Healey. “His knowledge of the gaming industry will be a great asset to the Commission during this critical time.”

“Representative Hill’s many years of business experience and public service, along with his commitment to serving our state, will positively impact the Gaming Commission and people of the Commonwealth,” said State Treasurer Deborah B. Goldberg, “We look forward to working with him in this new capacity and know that he will ensure fairness and equity as the industry continues to evolve.”

“It has been my distinct honor and privilege to serve the people of Massachusetts and the 4th Essex District for nearly 25 years,” said Representative Brad Hill. “I am deeply grateful to the Governor, Treasurer and Attorney General for this incredible opportunity to continue supporting the Commonwealth, and am eager to begin this new chapter working alongside my fellow Commissioners.”

The Massachusetts Gaming Commission was created after “An Act Establishing Expanded Gaming in the Commonwealth” was signed into law on November 22, 2011. The Commission is a five member independent body that is responsible for developing and managing the process to select, license, oversee, and regulate all expanded gaming facilities in the Commonwealth. The costs associated with operating the state’s gaming commission is paid for by the gaming industry and not by Massachusetts tax dollars.

The Chair of the Commission is appointed by the Governor; one member is appointed by the Attorney General (whose appointee must have a background in criminal investigations and law enforcement); and one member is chosen by the State Treasurer (whose appointee must be proficient in corporate finance and securities). The remaining two commissioners are appointed by a majority vote of the same three constitutional officers.

Baker-Polito administration announces COVID-19 vaccine mandate for Executive Department employees

Staff report

Governor Charlie Baker issued an executive order requiring all Executive Department employees to provide proof of COVID-19 vaccination on or before October 17, 2021. The COVID-19 vaccine is the best and most effective way people can protect themselves, their loved ones and their community from the virus.

All Executive Department employees will be required to provide proof that they have received either the required two doses of the Moderna or Pfizer or the single dose of the Johnson & Johnson vaccine by October 17. In the coming weeks, employees will receive information about the process by which they may provide this verification to the Commonwealth. This process will be made available well in advance of October 17. All documentation related to an employee’s COVID-19 vaccinations will be maintained confidentially. The policy applies to both employees working in-person and those who are teleworking.

As new CDC guidance regarding booster vaccine doses is issued in the future, Executive Branch employees will also be required to provide proof they have received those doses by a deadline to be established. Employees for whom vaccination is medically contraindicated or who object to vaccination on the grounds of sincerely-held religious reasons may be entitled to an exemption from the requirement to demonstrate vaccination. The Administration will provide further guidance in the coming weeks for employees who may wish to seek such an exemption.

Executive Department employees who are not vaccinated or approved for an exemption as of October 17, 2021 will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination. The Administration will continue to work with its union partners regarding this policy, and specific ramifications of non-compliance for staff represented by unions will be discussed well in advance of October 17 with each employee union. Management employees not in compliance as of October 17, 2021 will also be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination.

To read the Executive Order in full, visit: <https://edit.mass.gov/doc/august-19-2021-executive-department-employee-vaccination-order/download>.

Vaccines are widely available in Massachusetts, with over 900 locations available at the Commonwealth’s Vax-Finder website, including locations with walk-up appointments. Massachusetts remains a national leader in vaccinating its residents, with over 85% of adults having received at least one dose. This has supported significant progress in protecting the Commonwealth’s residents: Massachusetts has one of the lowest COVID-19 hospitalization rates in the country.

time as a state senator and Transportation Committee Chair, he worked collaboratively to pass innovative legislation that improved transportation for the region. As mayor, he continued to lead in this manner, spurring housing production and stimulating economic development.

McGee will receive the award at a Sept. 30 ceremony. The Excellence in Gateway City Leadership Award is named in memory of Bill Carpenter, who served as mayor of Brockton. Mr. Carpenter died while in office in July, 2019.

WINARC RECEIVES GRANT

WINTHROP - The Teamsters Local 25 Autism Fund has partnered with the WINARC (Winthrop Advocacy Resources Community) again this year to sponsor the Tee-Ball Program. Local 25 has been a sponsor since the inception of the program in 2019.

The WINARC Tee-Ball Program is open to children ages 3-10 years old and is a true community activity. High school students and adults volunteer as buddies, so each player is paired with a buddy for the game. 25 players are participating in the program this year.

“The Teamsters Local 25 Autism Fund is proud to sponsor the WINARC Tee-Ball Program again this year,” said President Sean M. O’Brien. “Our mission continues to be to give back to the communities where our members live and work. To some it may just be a children’s tee-ball game, but to the players this is their World Series every Sunday. Whether they hit the ball or make it on base doesn’t matter. They are part of a team and learning life skills that will stay with them beyond the season.”

“We are excited to be able to run the WINARC Tee-Ball Program again this year after missing out on last year due to the pandemic,” said Rita Mansfield, WINARC board member and program coordinator. “We all missed out on so much this past year, but especially children who don’t fully understand the pandemic. The donation by Teamsters Local 25 Autism Fund is integral to our program’s success and we are grateful for their support once again.”

The Teamsters Local 25 Autism Gala is the marquee fundraising event for the fund. The gala was not held in 2020 or 2021 due to the pandemic, but the organization was still able to support many autism organizations. “Despite having no event and other challenges posed by the pandemic, I am happy that we have been able to fund our grantees again this year. The Teamsters Local 25 Autism Gala will be back stronger than ever, and our mission will never slow down,” said O’Brien.

WINARC was founded over fifty years ago by a group of parents and young adults with disabilities. This grassroots organization of families recognized the need for social and recreational participation in the community for their children, and they committed their efforts to creating those opportunities. Through the tremendous support of Winthrop and its surrounding communities, WINARC’s community partnerships with businesses and families have ensured the successful operation of its current programs, as well as the development of new programming to fulfill the ever growing needs of children and adults with disabilities. The mission is to enhance the lives of individuals with disabilities.

The Teamsters Local 25 Gala for Autism is rescheduled for January 8, 2022, at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center. Teamsters Local 25 is the largest Teamsters union in New England with more than 12,000 members. For more information about the Teamsters Local 25 Autism Fund and Gala for Autism, please visit www.TeamstersLocal25Autism.com.

Congresswoman Pressley visits child care home

Staff report

Congresswoman Ayanna Pressley joined the Care That Works coalition today to uplift the demand for a universal, equitable, and flexible child care system that benefits working families, low-income communities, and communities of color across the Commonwealth. Until we have a universal child care system, options for nonstandard schedules (early morning, late evening, overnight, and weekend) remain scarce. The Care That Works' Pilot is seeking to bridge the gap for families in need of child care for nonstandard schedules (beyond 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.).

"This pilot takes critical and necessary steps in creating flexible solutions that ease child care challenges for families during the pandemic. As we continue working to build a just and equitable recovery, child-care must remain front and center. I'll continue fighting to ensure any bold reconciliation package does just that," said Congresswoman Ayanna Pressley (MA-07).

During the pandemic, Massachusetts saw hundreds of licensed family child care providers and center-based providers close permanently with little to no relief available until it was too late. But even before the pandemic, parents were struggling to find affordable, accessible child care. The lack of affordable, professional child care options for nonstandard schedules is a major gap in the system that hurts parents who work or seek work with those schedules.

"We need resources like the Care That Works pilot. As caregivers, we try to provide what we can – but without the assistance of our legislators, labor, and community allies – working families face challenges finding child care that works for them," said Maria Estevez, Maria Estevez's Family Child Care. "The pandemic has only exposed the inequalities working families bear, but with the pilot, we are working towards a more just recovery."

WARD 3 COUNCILOR CANDIDATE ANTHONY COGLIANDRO HOSTS 'A TASTE OF WARD 3'

Many residents and city officials attended Ward 3 Councillor candidate Anthony Cogliandro's 'A Taste of Ward 3' event Aug. 20 at the Patriot Civic Club.

Guests enjoyed different food offerings from restaurants located in Ward 3.

"Thank you so much for making this event a success," Cogliandro told the large crowd. "This is not about me tonight. This is about all these establishments that took a big hit due to the pandemic. I sincerely hope that you found something tonight that you haven't tried yet, and that's going to bring you back to that establishment to spend money. We just need to save businesses. Being a small business owner with my mother [Doreen], we definitely understand the struggles they went through, and I wanted to do this event for them."

Cogliandro then introduced the current city officials and candidates for office in attendance.

At the request of Cogliandro, the guests observed a moment of silence in memory of his friend, Tina Hinojosa.
