the Class of 2026

Special to the Journal

Under clear skies and before a packed stadium of family members, friends, educators, and community leaders, Revere High School and CityLab Innovation High School celebrated the Class of 2026 on Wednesday evening, honoring graduates with a ceremony centered on community, resilience, leadership, and the power of belonging.

The ceremony opened with the presentation of colors by the Revere High School JROTC Color Guard and a performance of the National Anthem by seniors Emily Ardone, Dina Oufessa, Hadassa Negrini, and Izabelly Alves Dos Santos. Senior Jaleeyah Figueroa

Revere City Council reviews police budget

By Adam Swift

The city council's ways and means subcommittee held meetings on Mayor Patrick Keefe's proposed Fiscal Year 2027 budget last week, meeting with the city's department heads.

Police Chief Maria LaVita fielded several questions from the councilors on her department's proposed $15.3 million budget, mostly focused on grant funding for several police programs.

"We did a little better than level funded," said LaVita. "We increased our overall number for sworn (officers) from 112 to 114, so we are continuing to work to get up to that number with working sworn officers."

Ward 4 Councillor Paul Argenzio asked LaVita if the department is still receiving grant funding for the Revere PAL (Police Activities League) program, which is an anti-drug and anti-violence organization that promotes career awareness to the at-risk youth population.

"PAL is funded through the (state) Shannon grant, and there are a couple of different levels to the Shannon grant, one of which PAL applies in and of itself as an organization, and then we have some Shannon grant funding for sworn police officers to be divided ... into some enforcement and some engagement," said the chief.

Ward 1 Councillor Jim Mercurio asked if the department had made cuts to its Behavioral Health Unit (BHU).

LaVita said the model for that program has changed, but that the department is still looking at ways to make sure that there is a follow-up program for people with mental health issues.

"We had grant funding that we had for a couple

License Comm. rejects state legislation extending closing hours for establishments

By Journal Staff

The Revere License Commission held a special meeting last Monday morning, June 8, in the City Council Chamber to discuss "accommodations for World Cup soccer viewing." On hand for the session were chair Robert Selevitch, Liliana Monroy, and Dan Ocena.

"The purpose of this special meeting is to discuss extending the hours of operation for licensed premises in the city and for public viewing areas during the World Cup," said Selevitch.

The state legislature recently passed a bill that allows communities the choice of whether to extend the closing hours of establishments that serve alcohol from the present 2:00 AM to 3:00 AM during the World Cup games, which will extend through the end of July.

Interestingly, there were no proponents for the measure. However, there was significant opposition from city officials.

Rose Burns, an aide to Mayor Patrick Keefe, told

Fire chief addresses staffing during budget hearings

By Adam Swift

The city council's ways and means subcommittee reviewed the fire department's proposed $15.75 million budget for FY27 last week as part of its public budget hearings.

Most of the questions from the council revolved around staffing, especially at the new Point of Pines firehouse, which opened last summer.

"This year, we are going up a few more positions, from 122 uniformed firefighters to a few more than last year, so we are thankful for that," said Fire Chief James Cullen.

The total count for uniformed firefighters is up to 124 in the proposed budget.

"Most of the other line items are level funded, it is a lean budget all across the board," said Cullen.

Ward 4 Councillor Paul Argenzio asked if the Point of Pines fire station was fully staffed or if there were any issues staffing it.

"When we opened it last year in July, we did have to thin out some of the manpower across the other districts to fund that," said Cullen. "Our overall goal to really fund the entire department is to reach 130 members at some point. We are working on that, we are getting a few more this year and hopefully we continue on that trend.”

Cullen said the staffing is a little less than ideal at the Point of Pines station, but added that it is fully operational every day.

City finance director Richard Viscay said one of the challenges of staffing the Point of Pines station is that the department doesn’t have as many firefighters as it needs, so the city is backfilling that station with overtime.

While there are only two new positions in the budget, Cullen said that with retirements and open positions, the department is looking to hire 10 firefighters to bring it to full staffing under the budget.

“Right now, we are facing deficit spending overtime until we get the manpower to staff that fully,” said Viscay. “Like the chief said, we are shooting for 130 firefighters, we are going up two this year ... as we increase personnel, we will drop that overtime line down.”

Argenzio also asked about the condition of the Freeman Street fire station, which is more than 100 years old.

“It is still operational, and it is our most important station in the city as far as location,” said Cullen. “We have to keep that viable.”

The fire chief said the public works department did have some engineers come down to the station to look at the main issue, which is the apparatus floor.

“Over the next two years, we will have to put a little bit of money into keeping it going,” said Cullen. “The long-range plan would be, ideally, to replace it somewhere in the area if we could do that; but there are some other options to put some money into it and rehab the station and keep it as is, just put some needed repairs into it. But that is very important to us and our operations.”

Congratulations to the Revere High School Class of 2026! RevereTV streamed the graduation live on YouTube and television, but it is now replaying on the Community Channel. If you missed your loved one or friend crossing the stage or just want to watch it again, tune in to Comcast channel 8 and 1072 daily through the next month, or find it on YouTube to repost or watch at your convenience.

On June 4th, 2026, The Willet apartment building's development group held a Ribbon Cutting Ceremony at its location, 13 Nahant Ave, Revere, MA. Mayor Patrick Keefe was there with Ward 2 Councillor Ira Novoselsky to talk about this new investment in the neighborhood. RevereTV recorded this quick ceremony and it is now playing on the Community Channel and YouTube. Watch now to check out one of Revere's newest smaller scale residential buildings.

Mayor Keefe and others were out to celebrate Derek's Barbershop for their fifteen years of operation in Revere and the ways in which they give back to the local community. This barbershop is on Park Ave. and has a new modern storefront. Derek's Barbershop is recognized for their commitment to serving Revere clientele and staying involved in giving back. During this ceremony, Mayor Keefe committed to organizing a back-to-school complimentary haircut event for Revere students at the end of the summer, so stay tuned for more information on that! Watch this recording now on YouTube and the Community Channel.

On "In the Loop," you'll be invited to the city's 3rd Annual Community Liaisons Resource Day on Friday, June 26th, from 12PM to 2PM at McMackin Veterans Memorial Park! (249 Broadway) Resource Day is a great opportunity to connect with over 40 local organizations offering housing assistance, health insurance, wellness, English classes, family support services, senior programs, food assistance, small business development, and more. Enjoy a free BBQ, raffles, and kids' activities. Everyone is welcome. Follow RevereTV on Facebook, YouTube, and Instagram or tune in to RTV on television for these announcements in five languages each week and to stay "In the Loop!"

Revere's Field of Play is underway! What better way to watch the FIFA World Cup this year than with your local community of friends and fans? Head to one of the city's many watch parties to celebrate and cheer on your favorite teams outside on the big screen. Last week, Mayor Keefe worked with RevereTV to produce a special introductory video that will be played at the start of each watch party this summer. Check the City of Revere's event calendar for the schedule of these community parties as part of "Field of Play" at revere.org.

Don't forget to tune in to RTV GOV for all of the city's meetings from the Council Chambers. Replays are scheduled to this channel after the meetings air live. All meetings are simultaneously streamed to YouTube and remain posted there to view immediately after airing. RTV GOV is channel 9 on Comcast and channels 13 and 613 on RCN.

All Ability Day at Revere Beach set for Aug. 15

By Journal Staff

The Revere Commission on Disabilities (COD) held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, June 9, via Zoom. On hand for the session were chair Ralph DeCicco, vice-chair Pauline Perno, Jason Barone-Cichocki, and Mario Grimanis.

Perno reported that a number of informational vendors and agencies have been contacted regarding their participation in the upcoming Third Annual All Ability Beach Day at Revere Beach, which is scheduled for Saturday, August 15, from 10 AM-2 PM. The Oak Island Bath House (entryway #36) at 462 Revere Beach Blvd., will serve as the gathering spot for participants.

DeCicco screen-shared the flyer that will be distributed to advertise the event for which accessible water and sand chairs will be provided by DCR. Those who wish to participate must register in advance, with the first 100 persons who register receiving a free lunch.

The All Ability Beach Day once again was made possible by a grant from Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. DeCicco also noted the assistance of State Rep. Jessica Giannino, the office of Mayor Patrick Keefe, DCR, and the Revere Parks and Rec. Dept.

DeCicco discussed the most recent meeting of the Commissions on Disabilities Alliance (CODA) that took place on June 3, which included the following items:

- The Brookline COD representative mentioned that the Brookline COD has completed a municipal accessible parking study, which marked accessible parking spots as either fully-accessible or having barriers such as trees, poles, bike racks, etc., causing an issue with non-compliance;
- The Melrose COD person mentioned that they are looking to partner with the Melrose schools' Special Education Department to create a mentorship program with area businesses that may want to be a part of this initiative;
- The representative from the Cambridge COD mentioned that they sponsored a program that was run by an outside company on water safety and swimming for children with intellectual disabilities and their families; and
- The Boston Commission on Disabilities Advisory Board will be sending a letter to Secretary of State Galvin's office regarding the accessible voting machines (Automark) being inadequate and the need for them to be updated with new technology.

DeCicco noted that DCR's Universal Access Program's (UAP) summer 2026 Adaptive Program schedule has been released. For general questions, contact UAP by email DCR.UniversalAccess@mass.gov or phone at (413) 461-7126 or visit their website for a list of all of the activities that will be available this summer throughout the state.

Perno concluded the meeting by reading the COD's monthly reminder: "The Commission on Disabilities office number is 781-286-8267. Residents can also call Revere 311 directly and speak to their staff Monday through Friday. They will answer most questions, but if they are unable to assist you or if you prefer to talk with the Commission directly, please ask to be transferred to the Commission on Disability's direct number. Please leave a detailed message, and we will respond to you shortly.

"As always, please don't hesitate to contact us if you would like to discuss or add something to our monthly meeting agenda. You can also let us know if you want to discuss any concerns. The commission is here to help and assist all residents with disabilities and their families in Revere.

The next meeting of the COD (via Zoom) will be held on Tuesday, August 11, at 6:00 PM.

of years, different funding sources to support the model that was launched a couple of years ago,” she said. “When grant funding started to take a different turn, as grant funding traditionally does, we changed our BHU style to match what the state was offering for grant funding.”

The program is still in effect with a co-response model, where the police department has mental health clinicians riding in patrol cars with officers.

“It is more of an immediate response than the follow-up model that we had done in the past,” LaVita said.

Mercurio asked if the police department would continue to look for additional grant funding for the follow-up program.

“We are still looking for grants,” said LaVita, but added that the department is also expanding its co-response model because it has been successful.

“As far as the follow-up goes, we are working with public health to try and make sure that no one falls through the cracks after that initial response,” said LaVi-

JUNETEENTH IS MORE SIGNIFICANT THAN EVER

Juneteenth, which has been a national holiday since 2021, marks the day when the Union Army entered the city of Galveston on June 19, 1865, and formally freed those who still were being enslaved in Texas.

As the Union Army advanced through the South in the final months of the Civil War, Confederate slave-owners in states such as Louisiana, Mississippi, and Arkansas forced tens of thousands of slaves to go to Texas, which was the only Southern state where the Union Army had not taken full control during the Civil War.

Until Major General Gordon Granger issued his order on June 19, more than 250,000 enslaved individuals in Texas had been unaware that they were free men, even though the Emancipation Proclamation had been issued more than two years earlier (on January 1, 1863) and the South had surrendered on April 9, 1865.

Juneteenth celebrations began as early as the following year and expanded over the decades across the country. However, they remained largely local celebrations until President Joe Biden signed into law the official observance of Juneteenth as a federal holiday.

Juneteenth serves to remind us of our nation's tragic past and of the hope for a better future, as often expressed by Dr. Martin Luther King: "The arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice."

However, that arc has reversed course in the past few months. The U.S. Supreme Court's recent evisceration of the 1965 Voting Rights Act (which had created Black-majority voting districts to ensure persons of color would be represented in Congress in the South), has turned back the clock, allowing for gross gerrymandering of Congressional districts that will largely eliminate Black representation.

In addition, many states, especially Texas, have enacted laws that have criminalized traditional voter registration efforts that sought to bring Blacks and Latinos into the political process. These new laws, which have resulted in the arrests of voting-rights activists, have cast a pall of fear that are significantly reducing Black and Latino voter registration in Southern states.

It is not an exaggeration to say that, thanks to the U.S. Supreme Court and Republican-dominated state legislatures in the Southern states, a 21st century version of Jim Crow (the term used for the post-Civil War laws that marginalized former slaves in the political process) is on the rise in the South.

So as we celebrate Juneteenth, let us resolve to restore the broken arc of the moral universe in order to ensure the full participation in our democracy by every American.

REVERE Through the Years

10 years ago
June 17, 2016
It's been 40 years since Eugene Doherty first donned his firefighter's turncoat and helmet. This past Sunday, June 12, Doherty officially retired from the Revere Fire Department with the rank of chief. Doherty, who is 64 years-old, is mandated to retire at age 65 as the fire chief because of state regulations.

The Redgate development company has made a proposal to develop the site of the former Shaw's/Cerretani's supermarket on the Revere Beach Parkway with a project that will include 241 residential units, with 75 percent of the units being one-bedrooms and the rest two-bedrooms spread throughout a six-story building, and a five-story hotel with 140 guest rooms.

While investigators continue to try to connect the death of 83-year-old Daniel Pepe, of East Boston to an attack of an elderly man three days later, State Police have arrested a Cambridge man with a lengthy record in connection with the latter crime. Michael Bruzzese, of Cambridge, formerly of Hingham, was arraigned in East Boston Municipal Court Friday on charges of assault and battery on an elderly person, unarmed robbery of a person over 60, breaking and entering into a vehicle in the daytime, and larceny over $250. According to prosecutors, Bruzzese is currently serving three years of probation for convictions on charges of possession of burglarious tools and two counts of malicious destruction of property over $250. During the arraignment, the court was told that, "Bruzzese allegedly approached the 67-year-old victim at the Belle Isle Marsh Reservation in East Boston on June 1 at approximately 1:30 p.m. and allegedly punched the victim, causing bruising the left side of his head, and stole the victim's car keys from his pocket." When the victim was able to return to his car, he found that it had been entered and approximately $250 to $300 had been stolen from his wallet inside the vehicle. After further investigation, State Police detectives placed the defendant's photo into a photo array, and the victim positively identified Bruzzese as the assailant.

OBITUARIES

Pastor Darren J. DiBartolomeo

He leaves behind a legacy of faith, compassion, and selfless service that will continue to impact lives for generations to come

Family and friends are respectfully invited to attend visiting hours today, Wednesday, June 17th from 4 to 8 p.m. in the Vertuccio Smith & Vazza Beechwood Home for Funerals, 262 Beach St., Revere for the untimely passing of Pastor Darren J. DiBartolomeo, of Lynnfield, formerly of Revere.

Darren was welcomed into glory on Friday, June 12th at the Lahey Hospital in Burlington. A Funeral Service will take place in the funeral home on Thursday, June 18th at 10 a.m. Internment will immediately follow in Puritan Lawn Memorial Park Cemetery, Peabody.

Darren was born on May 19, 1969 and was raised and educated in Revere. A proud member of the Revere High School Class of 1988, he went on to become an entrepreneur, founding Impressive Plumbing and Heating in Revere. Through hard work, integrity, and dedication, Darren built a successful business and earned the trust and respect of countless customers and colleagues.

In the mid-1990s, Darren met his best friend and soulmate, Cooki. What began with sweet messages sent by beeper and grand gestures—like carving enormous hearts into the sand at Nahant Beach—grew into a lifelong love story. The two married in 1999 and built a beautiful life together in Lynnfield, where they raised their family. They cherished watching sunsets over the lake behind their home, traveling together, and simply enjoying each others company. At the heart of their marriage was their shared faith and the time they devoted to praying together.

From an early age, Darren sought a personal relationship with his Savior, Jesus Christ. Following Christ's example, he dedicated his life to serving others with humility, compassion, and generosity. Answering God's call to ministry, Darren became a pastor and, in 2013, founded Still Waters Church, which began meeting at Bay Road Chapel in Revere's Point of Pines neighborhood. In 2019, the ministry expanded to the New Hampshire Seacoast with the opening of a second location in Seabrook.

Affectionately known as "PD"—short for Pastor Darren—he cared deeply for his congregation, but his ministry extended far beyond the walls of the church. He never missed an opportunity to share God's Word, whether preaching at Revere Beach alongside Caring Hearts Ministry, serving on the advisory board of Beauty from Ashes Ministry, or mentoring staff and residents at Living Hope Farms. Wherever there was a need, Darren was ready to serve.

One of the phrases most often heard from Darren was, "What can I do to help?" Even when invited simply to speak at a service or event, he would arrive early and ask how he could assist. Whether straightening chairs in the sanctuary, sweeping a floor, helping with setup, or quietly paying for someone's prescription or hotel stay, Darren served others without seeking recognition. His generosity was genuine, practical, and deeply rooted in his faith.

Darren's greatest joys in life included being "Papa" to his beloved grandchildren. He treasured every opportunity to spend time with them and created countless memories they will carry with them forever. Whether it was inviting them for special sleepovers, taking them to amusement parks, or simply heading out together for an ice cream, Darren made each moment meaningful. His grandchildren never doubted how deeply they were loved.

He delighted in their laughter, celebrated their accomplishments, and cherished the unique bond he shared with each of them. Being their Papa was a role he embraced with his whole heart, and one that brought him immeasurable happiness.

Loving God's people and sharing God's Word became the defining work of Darren's life. He was blessed to have his wife by his side in both business and ministry, and together they devoted their lives to serving others. He loved his congregation, treasured his family, and found great fulfillment in God's work. A devoted student of Scripture, a respected businessman, a loving husband and family man, and above all, a faithful servant of God, Pastor Darren leaves behind a legacy of faith, compassion, and selfless service that will continue to impact lives for generations to come.

The beloved husband of 26 years to Rosemary "Cooki" DiBartolomeo of Lynnfield, he was the loving father of Rennie A. DiFilippo and his wife, Jennifer of Kingston, NH, and Adam M. DiFilippo and his wife, Brandie of Hampton Falls, NH; The best papa to Aydin, Gabriella, Averi, Hailey, Cameron, Peyton, Sebastian, and Kaiden; the treasured son of the late Anthony A. and Millicent M. (Russell) DiBartolomeo; the dear brother of Thomas P. DiBartolomeo and his wife, Laurie of Winthrop, Andrew J. DiBartolomeo and his wife, Crystal of Boxford, and the late Daniel D. DiBartolomeo and his surviving wife, Jill of Malden. He is also the cherished brother-in-law of Lauragale D'Amico and her life partner, Tom DeSisto, Dorothy Donna Petrella and her husband, Peter and the late Andrew R. D'Amico, Jr. and his wife, Geraldine. He is also warmly survived by his canine companion, Bella, several nieces, nephews, friends, and extended family of his congregation.

In lieu of flowers, Cooki requests donations made to charities that focus on children with autism – such as Joyful Journeys or Aces for Autism – or Tunnels to Towers.

Judith A. Pastore

Eucharistic Minister, loving wife and mother

Family and friends attended visiting hours on Monday, June 15th in the Vertuccio Smith & Vazza Beechwood Home for Funerals, 262 Beach St. Revere for Judith A. "Judy" (Longo) Pastore who passed away peacefully at her home on Thursday, June 11th following a brief illness, she was 83 years old. A Funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Anthony of Padua Church, 250 Revere St., Revere and Interment followed in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

Judy was a proud native of Boston's West End, she was born on December 28, 1942 to her late parents, Angelo and Edith (Evans) Longo. She was the youngest of her two siblings raised in the West End. educated in Boston Public Schools and was part of the graduating Class of 1960. Judy later married the love of her life. John "Chuck" Pastore on November 17, 1963. The couple relocated to Revere where they raised their two children.

Judy was a loving and nurturing wife and mother. She provided a home filled with love, laughter and faith. Judy worked at IBM and then later at Blue Cross Blue Shield as a "Special Data Entry Professional". While at IBM she was highly awarded and recognized for her outstanding work. She enjoyed the later part of her career at Blue Cross Blue Shield spanning 25 years before retiring.

Judy was a devotee of Immaculate Conception Church and St. Anthony of Padua Church. She volunteered for many years and did whatever she could for her parish and the community. Judy ironed linens, counted mass collections, cooked for the resident priest, became a Eucharistic minister and would help anyone she could along the way. Judy's faith in God was something that she held most sacred to her soul.

Judy was a fabulous cook and enjoyed hosting all of the major holidays for her family and friends. She was also a second mother to many of her children's friends, which they all loved. She also enjoyed walking with her husband especially on Revere Beach and many trips to Disney World, but her favorite trip was to Italy, where she also met Pope John Paull II at the Vatican, a true highlight of her life.

Judy remained very close to all of her West End friends and would join them for luncheons and get-togethers. She loved to journey back to the West End and spending time at the Esplanade always reminded her of the good times she had growing up there.

Above all else, her family was most precious. She was most proud of her children and grandchildren. She enjoyed spending time with all of them and attending any of their events, whatever it was for school, or sports, just being together gave her so much happiness.

The beloved wife of 56 years of the late John C. "Chuck" Pastore, Sr., she was the loving mother of Lucy P. McCarthy and her husband, David of Lynnfield and John C. Pastore, Jr. and his wife, Karla of Wellesley and the cherished grandmother of Madelyn E. McCarthy and Liam V. McCarthy, both of Lynnfield, Cole D. Pastore and Chloe A. Pastore, both of Wellesley; the treasured sister of Lillian Raphael and her late husband, Curtis Raphael of Van Nuys, CA. and the late Arthur "Butch" Longo and his surviving wife, June Longo of Foxboro.

She is also lovingly survived by several nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made in Judy's name to the St. Anthony of Padua Church General Fund, 250 Revere St., Revere, MA 02151. For online condolences, please visit: www.vertuciosmithvazza.com.

Deborah King

Retired Special Needs Teachers Assistant

Deborah "Deb" King passed away on June 6, 2026 after a long fight with cancer. Though formally known as Deborah, she was lovingly known as Deb to her family and friends.

Deb was raised in Revere and was the daughter of the late Louis and Theresa (Raponi) King. She was a graduate of Revere High School, Class of 1972. Following high school, she furthered her education and became a dietary technician, which led her to begin working at Franciscan Children's Hospital in Brighton. She later changed career paths and became a teacher's assistant working and supporting special needs children in the Reading Public School System, a job she found very rewarding and dedicated herself to for over 15 years.

Deb enjoyed the simple things in life; watching Hawaii Five-O, a word search puzzle and a Diet Coke was sometimes all she needed to be content. She was talented in ceramics and was quite the artist. However, the time she treasured most was when she was surrounded by her family.

She was a devoted mother to Vanessa Page of Revere; the dear sister of Michael King and his wife, Karen King of Revere; cherished grandmother, who affectionately called her "Elmo" by Evan Richard, Isabella Goulart, Sophia Goulart and Christopher Carmichael; the adored aunt of Michael King and his wife, Lauren King of Revere and Stephanie Amaral and her husband, Manny Amaral of Reading; great aunt to Sean King, Deanna King, Riley King and Lucas Amaral.

Family and friends are invited to attend Visiting Hours at the Vertuccio Smith & Vazza, Beechwood Home for Funerals on Monday, June 22nd from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. A Funeral Service will be held in the Funeral Home at 1:30 p.m., followed by interment in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the American Cancer American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 6704, Hagerstown, MD 21741 or directly to the family by visiting the following link: <https://www.gofundme.com/f/honoring-deborah-marie-kings-memory>. Union Oyster House celebrates 200 years as America’s oldest operating restaurant

In 1826, before the Civil War, before the invention of the telephone, and before either the Boston Symphony Orchestra or the Boston Red Sox existed, Union Oyster House opened its doors. This August, this National Historic Landmark celebrates 200 years of continuous operation.

Located on Boston’s Freedom Trail, Union Oyster House offers guests a tangible connection to American history, culture, and traditions. Since opening, only minor renovations have been made to preserve the restaurant’s original design. It is internationally celebrated for its fresh seafood, timeless ambiance, and exceptional service. Signature dishes include New England classics like oysters on the halfshell, clam chowder, lobster, Boston baked beans, and cornbread.. The restaurant won North America’s Best Landmark Restaurant honors in 2020, 2024, and 2025.

Over the years, Union Oyster House has been owned by only four families: the Atwoods, Fitzgeralds, Greaveses, and the current proprietors, the Milanos. For owner Joseph Milano, this bicentennial anniversary represents far more than a successful business.

“It’s our responsibility and honor to uphold this piece of American history,” said Milano. “For 200 years, we have been creating memories and traditions for visitors across the world. Union Oyster House would not be where it is today without the love and support from our guests”.

Some of the more famous guests to dine at Union Oyster House over the decades have included presidents and politicians, royalty and diplomats, Hollywood legends, celebrated chefs, and sports icons. Notable visitors have included Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, Bill Clinton, Barack Obama, Queen Elizabeth II, Julia Child, Meryl Streep, Leonardo DiCaprio, and Steven Spielberg, among countless others who have passed through its historic doors over the last two centuries.

But it’s the families that return year after year to enjoy the classic recipes, warm hospitality, and 19th century American ambiance that make Union Oyster House a one-of-a kind dining experience..

“We wouldn’t have the restaurant without the support of these families,” Milano said. “I’ve had the pleasure of seeing kids turn into adults who then bring their kids. It’s very special.”

As America approaches its 250th birthday, Union Oyster House’s anniversary is a delicious reminder of Boston’s enduring role in shaping America. The restaurant’s continued popularity and longevity is an accomplishment only a handful of restaurants can claim.

For more information, visit Union Oyster House or reach out to Chris Haynes at CBH Communications.

the commissioners that the mayor's office had not received any requests for the extended hours and was opposed to enlarging the hours.

"It is critical for the city to have a well thought-out plan and the paramount concern always is public safety," said Burns. "But this bill was passed without enough time before the start of the World Cup...It is not prudent for the city to move forward with granting extensions until 3 AM for our licensed establishments and 'social consumption districts' because there has not been adequate time to create a comprehensive plan to ensure the safety of our residents, visitors, and property."

Revere Police Capt. Thomas Malone also spoke in opposition to the proposal. "We realize that 3:00 AM is only an hour extension, but with other nearby cities closing at 1:00 AM, if they do not extend their hours to 2:00 AM, then we could see people rushing here to drink for an extra two hours," said Malone.

Malone also noted that the department's "overlap shifts" presently cover the hours of 2:00 AM to 3:00 AM, which means that with officers leaving at 3:00 AM, there will be minimal manning after 3:00 AM when the bars will be emptying out.

"We already are going to be spread thin with the World Cup games and the upcoming Sandcastle Festival, and this proposal will exacerbate the problem," Malone added. "We've been planning for the World Cup since January, especially as to the watch parties. Our resources and plans have already been set. If we were to add this at the 11th hour, it would not be prudent. We would not be doing justice to the city in maintaining our goal of public safety."

Police Chief Maria LaVita also spoke briefly against the extension, emphasizing the points raised by Malone.

The Revere Fire Department (RFD) also chimed in. "We are opposed to any increase in hours because we believe it will cause an exponential increase in services for medicals, assaults, and serious motor vehicle accidents," said RFD Captain Mark Wolfgang.

"This clearly is something that the city is not prepared to take on," said Ocena. "Most of the matches will end by midnight and with the present closing hour, patrons and fans still will have plenty of time to celebrate until 2:00 AM."

"After looking at the times of the games, It is not necessary to extend the hours to 3:00 AM," added Monroy, who then made a motion, which was approved unanimously, to maintain the hours for both licensed establishments and public viewing spaces at 2:00 AM.

The board then considered allowing restaurants that presently may have a closing time earlier than 1:00 AM to stay open until 1:00 AM.

However, Capt. Malone also spoke against this proposal, as did Chief LaVita. Malone noted that even if the official closing time of these restaurants is 1:00 AM, it will present complications for the police depending on whether they serve alcohol.

Selevitch then presented a motion to keep all of the present licenses as they are, and his fellow members agreed.

FBI Boston warns drone operators of temporary flight restrictions during FIFA World Cup 2026

Planning to fly your drone in Massachusetts or Rhode Island during the FIFA World Cup 2026? Be aware that the government will establish temporary flight restrictions around FIFA World Cup 2026 stadiums, fan festivals, and other event locations. Flying a drone in a restricted zone is not only dangerous, but it is also a federal crime and can result in criminal fines up to $100,000, up to a year in federal prison, and seizure of the drone.

Temporary flight restrictions define a certain area of airspace where air travel—including drones and other unmanned aircraft systems (UAS)—is limited for a specific period of time. Restriction details include size, altitude, date, time, and the types of operations that are restricted or permitted. All pilots are required to adhere to the restrictions.

Seven of the FIFA World Cup 2026 matches will be played at Boston Stadium from June 13 through July 9. Unsafe or improper use of a drone during this time frame poses a physical hazard to other aircraft and to individuals on the ground. The temporary flight restrictions are intended to protect fans, players, and critical infrastructure, such as power lines and cell phone towers, from accidents and security threats. It is prohibited to fly a drone or UAS in and around FIFA World Cup 2026 venues. Additional temporary flight restrictions are expected over Fan Fest being held at City Hall Plaza, and portions of Providence and the Smithfield, RI.

The FBI is authorized by law to use counter-UAS capabilities to mitigate unauthorized drone activity within restricted airspace, while preserving evidence for potential prosecution. The FBI works with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to enforce temporary flight restrictions.

This is done by using federally authorized capabilities to detect, track, and assess unauthorized drone activity that could threaten aviation safety, critical infrastructure, or public safety. At select FIFA World Cup 2026 venues, the FBI is deploying counter-UAS protection teams to support state and local law enforcement, providing layered protection against unauthorized drones.

Before every flight, drone operators should check for active flight restrictions using an FAA-approved B4U-FLY service provider. A list of approved providers offering free airspace awareness tools for desktop and mobile devices is available at faa.gov/uas/getting_started/b4ufly. These tools provide real-time information on temporary flight restrictions, restricted airspace, and other advisories based on the operator’s location.

If you spot unsafe drone activity, report it immediately by calling 1-800-CALL-FBI. Together, let’s keep the skies—and the FIFA World Cup 2026—safe for everyone.

MALDEN CATHOLIC NEWS ANDS NOTES

MALDEN CATHOLIC NAMES MARK GARRITY VARSITY BOYS BASKETBALL HEAD COACH

Malden, Massachusetts – Athletic Director William Raycraft is pleased to announce the appointment of Mark Garrity as the next Head Coach of the Malden Catholic Varsity Boys Basketball program.

Garrity, who has served as the program's Interim Head Coach and Head Varsity Assistant, brings more than sixteen years of high school and collegiate coaching experience to the position. His extensive coaching background, commitment to student-athlete development, and deep understanding of the Malden Catholic basketball culture made him the clear choice to lead one of the state's premier basketball programs.

"Mark has been an integral part of our basketball program's success over the past several years," said Athletic Director William Raycraft. "His leadership, basketball knowledge, and ability to build meaningful relationships with our student-athletes have helped establish and sustain a championship culture. He understands what makes Malden Catholic special, and we are excited for him to lead our program into its next chapter."

Since joining the Malden Catholic coaching staff in 2020, Garrity has helped guide the Lancers to a remarkable 94-19 record as Head Varsity Assistant, including three state championships, one state finalist appearance, and two Catholic Conference championships. During that time, he played a key role in the development of numerous All-Scholastic players and helped eleven student-athletes continue their basketball careers at the collegiate level.

As Interim Head Coach during the 2025-26 season, Garrity led the Lancers to a 15-7 record, including an impressive 11-0 start and a No. 1 ranking in the Boston Herald in their first year in Division I. Under his leadership, the team earned multiple individual honors while continuing the program's tradition of excellence on and off the court.

Throughout his coaching career, Garrity has been associated with some of the most successful programs in Massachusetts. His experience includes coaching stints at Danvers High School, Fitchburg State University, Central Catholic High School, Middlesex Magic AAU, and Mass Rivals AAU. Through those programs, he has helped develop more than 50 student-athletes who have gone on to compete at the collegiate level.

"I am incredibly honored and grateful for the opportunity to serve as the Head Coach of Malden Catholic Basketball," said Garrity. "Having been part of this program's success and growth, I have developed a deep appreciation for the tradition, commitment, and culture that make Malden Catholic unique. I look forward to continuing to build strong relationships with our student-athletes, fostering a championship mindset, and helping our players reach their fullest potential both on and off the court. I am excited for the future of our program and thankful to Athletic Director William Raycraft and the administration for their confidence in me."

A former standout player at Somerville High School and collegiate athlete at Anna Maria College, Framingham State University, and Salem State University, Garrity combines a strong basketball background with a passion for mentorship, leadership, and player development.

The Malden Catholic community welcomes Coach Garrity and looks forward to the continued success of the Boys Basketball program under his leadership.

About Malden Catholic Athletics

Malden Catholic Athletics is committed to developing student-athletes of character through excellence in academics, athletics, leadership, and service. The Lancers compete in the Catholic Conference and are recognized as one of the premier athletic programs in Massachusetts.

Since 1932, Malden Catholic High School has shaped emerging leaders in our community, claiming a Nobel Laureate, a Senator, two ambassadors and countless community and business heads among its alumni. Annually, graduates attend some of the nation’s most renown universities including Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, University of Chicago, Georgetown, Cornell, Brown, Tufts, Carnegie Mellon, Duke, Notre Dame, Northeastern, Boston College and College of the Holy Cross. Foundational to student success is Malden Catholic’s codivisional model which offers the best of both worlds, single-gender academics during the day and integrated social and extracurricular opportunities after school. Malden Catholic is known in the community for its rigorous academics, SFX Scholars Program and award-winning STEM program. Malden Catholic curricula is designed to improve individual growth mindset, leadership principles and success outcomes along with integrating the Xaverian values of trust, humility, compassion, simplicity and zeal. <https://www.maldencatholic.org>.

MALDEN CATHOLIC ANNOUNCES SHARELL SANDERS AS NEW VARSITY GIRLS BASKETBALL HEAD COACH

Malden Catholic and William Raycraft, Athletic Director is proud to announce the hiring of Sharell Sanders as the new Head Coach of the Varsity Girls Basketball program.

Coach Sanders takes over for Jay Keane, who guided the Lancers through eight highly seasons that included consistence MIAA tournament appearances, multiple coach of the year accolades and brought the Lancers to the MIAA Division I State Tournament in the program’s first year competing at the Division I level. Under Keane’s leadership, the program also earned multiple conference all-star selections, and several athletes continued their academic and athletic careers in college.

Coach Sanders brings a strong background in student-athlete development, program leadership, and competitive basketball experience to the Lancers. She most recently served as the Head Coach of the Varsity Girls Basketball program at Medford High School, where she quickly established a culture centered on accountability, discipline, and team success. In her first season leading the program, Medford earned a playoff appearance and finished second in league standings.

Prior to Medford, Sanders served as an Assistant Varsity Girls Basketball Coach at St. Mary’s High School in Lynn, helping support one of the region’s respected girls basketball programs earning a total of six state championships as both a player and later as an assistant coach. Her coaching experience also includes AAU basketball, private player development instruction, and youth mentorship throughout the Greater Boston area.

In addition to her coaching background, Sanders currently serves as a Physical Education Teacher in Lynn and has extensive experience working with youth and families through residential and educational support services. Her leadership philosophy emphasizes academic accountability, strong relationships, personal growth, and building championship culture through daily habits and standards.

“Coach Sanders is an outstanding leader who brings passion, energy, and a deep commitment to developing student-athletes both on and off the court,” said Malden Catholic Athletic Director Bill Raycraft. “Her vision for building a competitive program rooted in accountability, teamwork, and character aligns perfectly with the mission and values of Malden Catholic. We are excited to welcome her to the Lancer family.”

Sanders, a former Division II collegiate basketball student-athlete, earned her Bachelor of Science in Sports Management from Caldwell University and later completed her MBA in Accounting from Southern New Hampshire University.

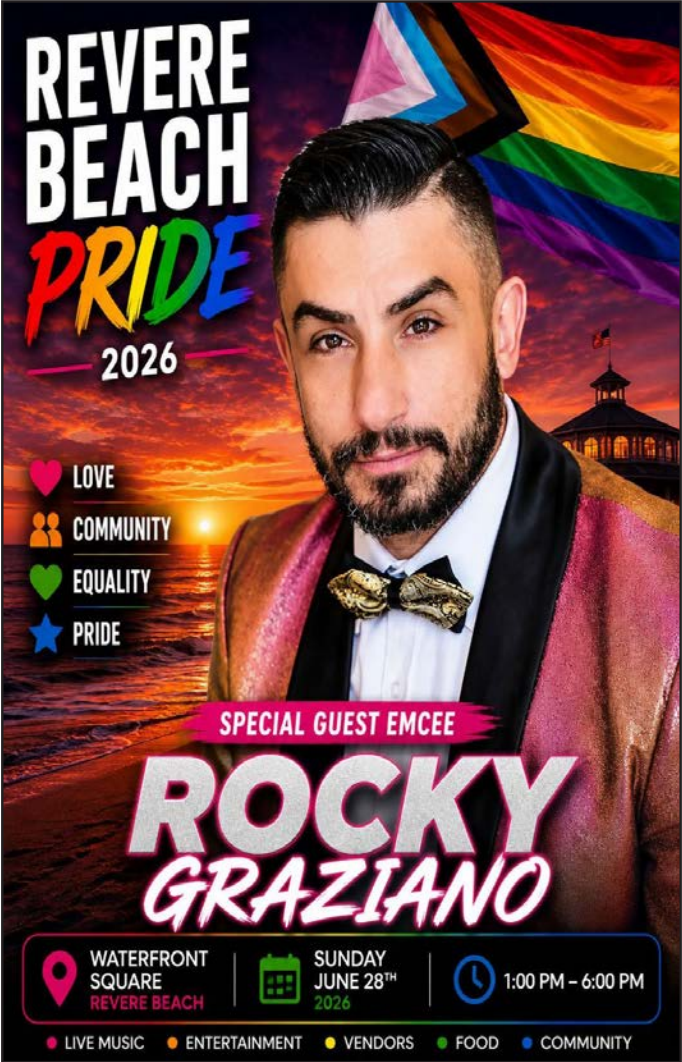

“I am incredibly excited and honored to join Malden Catholic as the next Varsity Girls Basketball Coach,” said Sanders. “Malden Catholic’s commitment to excellence, faith, and student development strongly aligns with my own values as a coach and educator. I look forward to building meaningful relationships with our student-athletes and helping create a program defined by hard work, accountability, competitive excellence, and pride in representing the Lancers both on and off the court.”

Coach Sanders will begin immediately as she prepares for the upcoming season and continues building a strong future for Malden Catholic Girls Basketball.

The city received good news this week when MDC officials announced that repairs to the sewer line break in Chelsea, which has resulted in millions of gallons of raw sewage being pumped daily into Chelsea Creek for the past year, finally will be completed this month. The raw sewage has caused health and other problems for residents of this city and Chelsea who live in proximity to the Creek. Residents vociferously protested the paint-peeling stench that existed last summer. State Senator Andrew P. Quigley successfully filed a bill that compensated local residents for damage to their homes and cars from the fumes.

The Baker Luncheonette, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Baker at 317 Broadway for the past 39 years, will be closing its doors this week.

City Manager Edward P. O'Toole has announced that unless donations for the Fourth of July festivities pick up shortly, the city’s annual celebration will have to be curtailed.

election. However, in the State Senate race, Chelsea attorney Joseph Melley defeated incumbent William R. Conley, also of Chelsea, in the Democratic primary. Revere Democrats favored local resident Joseph DelGrosso, but DelGrosso came in third district-wide. In the gubernatorial primary election, local Democrats favored incumbent Gov. Northeast Metro Tech recognizes the educators of tomorrow during Future Teacher Signing Day

Special to the Journal

Northeast Metro Tech recognized and encouraged the educators of tomorrow during Future Teacher Signing Day, aimed at celebrating those who understand the importance of the teaching profession.

Future Teacher Signing Day, held in late May, brought together 10 Northeast Metro Tech seniors who will pursue careers in education.

Admiration for their Northeast teachers, participation in the early childcare program, family history and babysitting jobs are among the reasons students said they decided to pursue careers in education, committing to a life of helping young people learn and grow.

"My mom and my aunt have always been in the field and I have always loved children and helping them learn and grow," said Brooke Austin.

Diamond Johnson said faculty and staff at Northeast Metro Tech made her want to pursue teaching, because they supported her with her as a learner and ensured that she was engaged with her entire class. Johnson said Maria Dunn, a dedicated Health Assisting instructor, was especially inspiring and motivating.

Several students, like Micayla Neville, were able to already gain hands-on experience by working in the Golden Knights Preschool, which is operated by students and staff in the Early Childhood Education program at Northeast Metro Tech.

"Through my shop, I learned how children develop social skills, confidence, and problem-solving abilities all through play," said Alexa Kepple. "I was able to apply what I learned in real situations, building my leadership and communication which will benefit me in my future career."

"Education can be a challenging but extremely rewarding career, and I applaud these students who have chosen to pursue it," said Superintendent David DiBarri. "I would also like to recognize the faculty and staff here at Northeast Metro Tech, who have helped to inspire these students."

The following students plan to pursue education as a career. Also listed is what they studied at Northeast Metro Tech, and what they will study in college.

NeighborHealth hosts successful Let's Get Movin' 5K to promote health and fitness

Special to the Times-Free Press

NeighborHealth, in partnership with the New Balance Foundation, hosted its 14th annual 5K for Fitness event on Saturday, June 6th, 2026, at East Boston's Memorial Park. The event brought together more than 1,000 people, including more than 900 runners and walkers, to promote healthy living through physical activity and nutrition education.

"Creating healthier communities requires more than great healthcare alone—it requires opportunities for people to stay active, connect with one another, and access the resources they need to stay healthy," said Jamie Hazard, President and Chief Executive Officer of NeighborHealth. "The Let's Get Movin' 5K embodies this vision, bringing people together in a fun, inclusive way, and reinforcing that wellness is something we can build together as a community."

The race-day schedule included a spirited warmup led by the Let's Get Movin' team, followed by the 5K through the Bremen Street Community Park accompanied by energizing DJ music. The first 250 registrants received free T-shirts, and all finishers were awarded medals. The top finishers in each age category were recognized with trophies, and a free raffle, sponsored by Rumba 97.7, concluded the event. More than a dozen community organizations joined the festivities to share resources, State Representative Adrian Madaro cheered on runners, and many community members expressed appreciation for the NeighborHealth program.

"Making physical activity part of your daily routine is one of the most important investments you can make in your health," said Dr. Allison Brown, Pediatrician and Medical Director of NeighborHealth's Let's Get Movin' program. "Regular movement not only improves physical fitness and reduces the risk of chronic disease, but it also supports mental well-being by reducing stress, improving mood, and boosting overall quality of life. I am so proud of all our Let's Get Movin' families and 5K participants for making time for wellness in their lives."

Let's Get Movin' is a family-centered program designed to support children and teens in building healthier habits through regular physical activity and improved nutrition. Created in response to the growing challenge of childhood obesity and its impact on local communities, the program integrates medical monitoring, movement, and nutrition education. Participants have access to no-cost training sessions, after-school and summer programming, field trips, community events, garden resources, cooking classes, and educational opportunities that empower both youth and caregivers to make lasting lifestyle changes.

NeighborHealth would like to thank its generous sponsors, in addition to the New Balance Foundation, for supporting this event: The Boston Athletic Association, BELKO Landscaping, Cataldo Ambulance, Planet Fitness, RTT No Speed Limit, Spinelli's Catering and the YMCA; as well as our in-kind sponsors: Rumba 97.7, Wegmans, Whole Foods, Shaw's, and the Boston Water and Sewer Commission.

THE ANNUAL OUTDOOR MASS AT GROTTO PARK IN BEACHMONT

Our Lady of Lourdes Parish has been closed for years, but her memory and the support of the local Beachmont residents will always remember and pray for their loved ones at the annual mass in Grotto Park.

Celebrated by Father Leonardo from the Immaculate Conception Church and organized by John Verrengia, this outdoor mass is open to any and all that want to take part in the celebration of mass.

Following the mass, a collation to all in attendance if offered and gives all a chance to meet with friends and neighbors, as well as meet new ones.

John Verrengia has organized this annual event in memory of the Our lady of Lourdes Parish, dedicated to the Blessed Mother. In Grotto Park stands a beautiful statue of her, the center focus of the annual mass in Beachmont. Shown with Michael Gorecki from Mike Minogue for Governor campaign, State Representative Jeff Turco, and Ward 1 Councillor Jimmy Mercurio.

Mayor Patrick Keefe, and former Revere School Committee member Michael Ferrante are shown with Beachmont residents, former Revere Superintendent and former School Committee member Carol Tye, Kathleen Heiser, and former Revere School Committee member Dan Maguire.

Ed Nazzaro prepares the Eucharist for the Mass.

Fr. Leonardo with John Verrengia and Ward 1 Revere City Councillor Jimmy Mercurio.

State Representative Jeff Turco with a reading during the Mass.

Ward 1 Vice Chair of the Revere School Committee Jacqueline Monterroso with Nicholas and Victor Monterroso.

In attendance in Grotto Park is Robert and Pricilla La Sala.

Pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church in Revere, Fr. Leonardo Moreria welcomes all to the annual celebration at Grotto Park.

The annual outdoor Mass at Grotto Park in Beachmont, next to the former Our Lady of Lourdes Church on Endicott Ave in the Beachmont section of Revere was filled last Sunday morning with residents and friends of the well-loved parish.

Capunay, the School Committee student representative and RHS Poet Laureate, led the Pledge of Allegiance and recited her original poem, Where Our Footsteps Meet, setting the tone for an evening reflecting on shared journeys and future possibilities.

Revere High School Principal Christopher Bowen challenged graduates to carry with them one of the lessons he believes defines the Revere experience: the importance of creating community wherever they go.

“Build community wherever you go,” Bowen told graduates. “The measure of your life will not simply be whether you found community. It will be whether you helped build it for someone else.”

Drawing inspiration from advice given by playwright and composer Lin-Manuel Miranda to students participating in Revere High School’s first musical production in more than three decades, Bowen reminded students of a message painted inside the school auditorium: “Remember to be a community every second you’re on stage.”

Bowen encouraged graduates to look beyond their accomplishments and recognize the countless individuals who contributed to their success, from family members and teachers to mentors, friends, and even those who challenged them along the way.

“Our society loves to recognize individual achievement,” Bowen said. “But none of us gets far alone. Every opportunity we have is shaped by relationships.”

CityLab Innovation High School Principal Dr. Stacey Mulligan highlighted a historic milestone for the district, recognizing the first group of students to attend CityLab from freshman year through graduation.

“This year, we celebrate CityLab’s very first cohort to attend CityLab from freshman year to graduation,” Mulligan said. “You are not just part of the first. You are the reason it exists.”

Mulligan reflected on Revere’s history as a city of firsts, from hosting America’s first public beach to its role in the American Revolution, drawing parallels between those milestones and CityLab’s emergence as Revere’s first innovation high school.

“Before there were traditions, before there was a roadmap, there was you,” she told graduates. “You built the culture. You created the energy. You defined what this school would stand for.”

Mayor Patrick Keefe also addressed graduates, encouraging them to embrace both empathy and perseverance as they move into the next chapter of their lives.

“Life can feel at times like a giant competition,” Keefe said. “I believe that the most powerful version of yourself is one that is both deeply empathetic and fiercely unrelenting.”

Keefe described empathy as a form of strength and intelligence, urging students to seek understanding even when confronted with different viewpoints and experiences.

“The world doesn’t need more people who are merely successful,” he said. “It needs more people who are kind, brave, and relentless in the pursuit of a better way.”

Student speakers echoed many of the evening’s themes.

Senior Class President Kepler Celamy reflected on the relationships that shaped his experience in Revere Public Schools, recalling teachers, counselors, advisors, and classmates who helped him find a sense of belonging.

“Success isn’t just about finding what you want to do,” Celamy said. “It’s about finding the people who help you become who you’re meant to be.”

Co-salutatorian Ethan Men, who will attend Harvard University in the fall, used stories about trying unfamiliar foods to encourage classmates to embrace uncertainty and take risks.

“You won’t know when you’re ready,” Men said. “It’s a leap of faith. That’s all it is.”

CityLab speaker Dulce Aguilar Cadenas reflected on helping build a school community from the ground up and the unique experiences that came with attending a new school.

“Completing our four years as CityLab students means more than just the achievement of completing high school,” Aguilar Cadenas said. “We’ve done much more than that by curating the experience for many other classes to come.”

Co-salutatorian Rose Cao delivered a heartfelt address focused on mental health, vulnerability, and the importance of seeking support.

“At the beginning of this year, I sought real mental health support,” Cao said. “After you take that first step, seek solace in your community. You don’t need to face anything alone.”

Cao urged classmates to prioritize their well-being and lean on trusted friends, family members, and mentors when facing challenges.

Valedictorian Adam Ashour celebrated the accomplishments of the Class of 2026, highlighting students’ success in academics, athletics, internships, early college programs, robotics, speech and debate, JROTC, and other extracurricular activities.

“We have directly competed against other public schools, charter schools, and private schools and prevailed,” Ashour said. “Revere High is on the map.”

Ashour encouraged graduates to take full advantage of future opportunities while remembering the educators and family members who helped them reach graduation day.

Following the student addresses, school leaders certified that members of the Class of 2026 had fulfilled all graduation requirements, and graduates crossed the stage to receive their diplomas. The ceremony concluded with a final acknowledgment of CityLab’s founding class and a celebratory dismissal from Bowen and Mulligan as families erupted into cheers.

For the graduates of Revere High School and CityLab Innovation High School, the evening marked the end of one chapter and the beginning of another. Yet throughout the ceremony, one message resonated above all others: success is strongest when built together.

As Bowen reminded graduates before they left the stadium, “The stage is yours now. Build community wherever you go.”

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

Kepler Celamy Class of 2026 President

Oh my goodness, this moment feels so surreal.

Graduates, I know you’re probably sick of me saying “What’s good?” But nothing beats those loud bells, the annoying intercom interruptions, the endless emails, or whatever else I may have spammed you with over the years. Soon, all of that is going to change because we’re officially done with high school.

As class president, I want to take a moment to reflect on the class that I have been blessed to be a part of.

From the moment we entered this building, this class was about bringing people together.

In 2022, when we first entered Revere High School and CityLab, the FIFA World Cup was taking place. Students were proudly representing their countries, cultures, and backgrounds. For a moment, our differences didn’t divide us—they connected us.

Students who may never have spoken to one another suddenly had something in common.

Whether you were cheering for Brazil, Morocco, Mexico, or another country, we all came together through our shared pride and passion.

That was just the beginning of our unity as a class.

I still remember Brazil versus Croatia in Mr. Vittorio’s class and the absolute chaos that followed when Brazil lost.

Looking back, though, I realize it wasn’t really about soccer.

It was about community.

I didn’t always have that sense of community.

When I moved to Revere in third grade, I struggled to fit in until I met one of the greatest teachers in Revere, Mrs. Knox.

Not only did she make me feel welcome at Whelan School, but she also inspired me to pursue my passion for wildlife.

Thank you so much, Mrs. Knox. I love you. You are a star in my Revere community.

Then middle school came, and I spent plenty of time in Mr. Pachinsky’s and Mrs. Kennedy’s offices—for all the wrong reasons.

As sixth grade was ending, COVID arrived, and Mr. Pachinsky and Mrs. Kennedy finally got some peace and quiet.

When I entered high school, I met my guidance counselor, Mrs. Chamberlain.

She asked me, “What do you want to be when you grow up?”

But instead of simply listening, she encouraged me to join the Outdoor Club led by Ms. Goldman, which helped me take the first steps toward that future.

That’s where I found my people.

That’s where I found my community.

And I know many of you found your people, too.

Some of you found them on athletic teams.

Some found them in classrooms.

Some found them in clubs and organizations.

These people shape who we are and who we will become.

I learned that success isn’t just about finding what you want to do.

It’s about finding the people who help you become who you’re meant to be.

I also want to recognize someone who supported the success of this class every step of the way: Mr. Bowen.

Mr. Bowen helped shape the spirit of this graduating class.

From helping us navigate conflicts to building connections among students, staff, and families, he created a space where community could thrive.

Thank you for your leadership, your dedication, and your belief in the students of Revere High School.

Please join me in giving him a round of applause.

I also want to thank our incredible Student Council adviser, Mrs. Tenzi.

She wasn’t just a teacher.

She wasn’t just a club adviser.

She was a pillar of our community.

She shared information, built relationships with students, and always showed up for us.

I am so thankful to have had her as our adviser.

Thank you for everything.

I couldn’t have done this without the support of our class officers—Emily, Samantha, Jade, and Ada.

These four amazing women helped not only me, but the entire Class of 2026 throughout our high school journey.

From bake sales to Haunted Hallways and everything in between, they worked tirelessly to make our class stronger.

Please give them a round of applause.

I know every one of you has teachers, staff members, and mentors who became part of your community.

When I think of mine, I think of Jalia Figueroa, Kathy Nuang, Brian Contreras Ortega, the nurses, the custodians, our JROTC instructors, and so many teachers and staff members who helped make Revere High School feel like home.

Thank you.

As a class, we demonstrated resilience, strength, and unity.

We navigated the aftermath of remote learning.

We showed up for one another during difficult moments.

We advocated for issues that mattered to us.

We participated in a senior prank that brought students and teachers to tears—literally.

And we gathered together at Senior Sunrise to reflect on how far we had come.

So, although this isn’t the RHS intercom and this isn’t another message in the senior group chat, I want to leave you with one final thought.

A strong community is the map that helps you remember where you started and gives you direction for the journey ahead.

I wish all of you the very best in the future.

May you always be surrounded by people who support your dreams and help you become the best version of yourself.

Congratulations, Class of 2026.

fer in silence, afraid of being labeled as weak, sensitive, or overly emotional.

At the beginning of this year, I sought professional mental health support.

Everyone says that taking the first step is the hardest part.

And they’re right.

But after you take that first step, seek comfort in your community.

It may be the family waiting for you at home after a difficult day.

It may be the friends who have stood beside you through every challenge.

These people can help lift you up.

You do not need to face your struggles alone.

After leaving here tonight,

Adam Ashour Class of 2026 Valedictorian

Fellow students, congratulations.

Now, I would end it there, but I’ve been told this speech needs to be a few minutes long.

So, to the proud families, esteemed faculty, friends, and everyone watching online, good evening and welcome.

I’ve had some people ask me why I won’t be packing my bags and traveling anywhere immediately after graduation.

The answer is simple:

The World Cup starts tomorrow.

But before that, we have so much to celebrate from our own lives.

By being here today, we’ve made our parents, caregivers, and guardians proud.

Look behind you. And yes, I mean literally look behind you.

The people sitting there are responsible for who you are today, what you stand for, and how you got here.

Personally, it is my mother, father, and brother who have shaped me and my upbringing.

For many of you, it’s the same.

So before anything else, let’s give a round of applause to our families.

However, it isn’t just our families who have helped us reach this moment.

Revere High School itself has played an enormous role.

And yes, Revere High School is an institution—an advanced one.

Let’s take a moment to think about what we’ve accomplished.

We’ve completed four years of classes.

Many of us have taken some of the most unique courses imaginable—from Ceramics to AP United States History to AP Physics.

At the same time, many of us worked jobs while attending school full-time.

Many of us completed internships.

Students from our class have worked in middle schools, trained at City Hall, and even helped patients at Massachusetts General Hospital.

The opportunities available to us didn’t happen by accident.

This school provided us with the time, the support, the extracurricular activities, the job opportunities, and the rigorous academic experiences that allowed us to grow.

We have competed directly against public schools, charter schools, and private schools—and we have succeeded.

From national competitions with our outstanding JROTC program to track athletes setting records, to students competing in speech and debate tournaments across the country, the Class of 2026 has left its mark.

I’d like to share a couple of personal examples.

I’ve had the opportunity to participate in international competitions through Harvard Model Congress, where Revere students have consistently excelled.

I’ve also been part of a robotics program that isn’t just one of the best in the region, or the state, or even the country.

It’s one of the best in the world.

Go Neutrons.

Many of us spent countless hours after school.

Some stayed for sports.

Some stayed for clubs.

Others stayed to work on projects, performances, competitions, or simply to get ahead academically.

For me, many of those hours were spent preparing for Mock Trial and other activities with teachers who constantly pushed us to do our best.

Because of all of these opportunities and accomplishments, we have helped make Revere a place worth celebrating.

So celebrate today.

Celebrate where you come from.

Because right now, you’re from Revere High School.

And Revere High School is on the map.

In fact, many of us spent so much time earning college credits that we practically became college students before graduating.

Early College students have earned substantial college credit.

Dual Enrollment students have done the same.

Personally, I’ve carried five student IDs at once:

Suffolk University.

Salem State University.

North Shore Community College.

Bunker Hill Community College.

And Revere High School.

Revere gave us the opportunity to learn alongside older, more experienced students while we were still in high school.

That’s something special.

So let this serve as a reminder:

Take advantage of every opportunity.

Use your time wisely.

Education and opportunity only matter if you’re willing to seize them.

This is Revere High School.

This is where we come from.

And this is a place we can all be proud of.

Today, thank the people who helped get you here.

Thank the mentors who guided you through opportunities and challenges.

Thank the teachers who pushed you to excel in mathematics, science, writing, language, advocacy, and leadership.

Thank the educators who believed in you before you believed in yourself.

And most importantly, thank the caregivers, guardians, and family members who helped shape the people you’ve become.

For me, that means my mother, my father, and my brother.

For you, it may be someone different.

But all of us have people who helped make this day possible.

So thank them.

Now, how do I end this?

Oh, I know.

Congratulations, Class of 2026.

We did it.

Rose Cao Class of 2026 Co-Salutatorian

Greetings, Class of 2026.

Hello friends, family, faculty, and most importantly, my fellow graduates.

Congratulations.

We made it.

For the past month, I’ve been scrolling through TikTok, hoping to gather inspiration for this speech.

I’ve watched graduation speeches from celebrities, Revere High School alumni, and countless others who offered optimistic messages about the future.

I searched for an inspirational message to share with all of you today.

But I struggled.

My feed was filled with videos of war, families separated by immigration enforcement, and countless other tragedies unfolding around the world.

At the same time, the mental health crisis continues to grow.

And for many of us, these last four years have not been easy.

My freshman year was the first time in my life that I couldn’t envision a future for myself beyond high school.

It wasn’t because I didn’t want to go to college.

It was because I had reached a point where I simply couldn’t see beyond the challenges in front of me.

People often say that when you hit rock bottom, the only way to go is up.

But when you’re there, “up” can feel impossible.

Statistics tell us that one in five students in the United States seriously considers suicide, and nearly half of all adolescents will experience a mental health disorder at some point during their youth.

The frightening reality is that you never know who is part of those statistics.

It could be the person sitting to your left.

It could be the person sitting to your right.

All of us carry struggles that others cannot always see.

The stigma surrounding mental health often creates a cage that forces people to repress their emotions and suf-

Coast Collaborative graduates celebrate second chances and new beginnings

For many students, graduation is the end of a journey. But for the graduates of Revere High School’s Coast Collaborative, it meant something much more powerful: perseverance, resilience, and the guts to keep going when the traditional path no longer felt possible.

Coast Collaborative celebrated its Class of 2026 graduation, honoring students who earned their diplomas overcoming major personal, academic, and life challenges. The alternative pathway program, located at Revere High School, serves students best served outside the traditional classroom environment. Coast gives students the second chance they may not get in a traditional high school setting, with individualized instruction, flexible scheduling and intensive support.

It provides a small, supportive environment with a shortened school day and personalized learning on the APEX online platform. Students work at their own pace with a team that includes a school adjustment counselor, special education teacher and paraprofessional.

Graduate Jefferson Morales Umana dealt with anxiety that sometimes made it feel impossible to complete high school. “Anxiety was a daily part of my life in late 2023,” he told fellow graduates and family members during the ceremony. It impacted my friendships, relationships, grades, and physical and mental health.

As his problems increased, Jefferson started missing school and losing ground academically. He never thought he'd make it to graduation day. That changed when he joined Coast Collaborative in November 2024.

“The program was better than I expected, and it became one of my favorite places very quickly,” he said. It was just what I needed. “I was happy, excited, and comfortable.

With the help of Coast staff and a new confidence in himself, Jefferson was able to find his academic and personal footing again. He credited the program’s teachers and support staff with helping him regain his self-belief and encouraging him to take risks he used to avoid.

The most important lesson that he told his classmates was not to let anxiety make your decisions for you. “If there could be something I could give to you all, it's never to let anxiety make your decisions for you," he said. “You are more than what your mind tells you.”

Graduate fellow Daniela Zelaya Najarro shared her story of perseverance through family sacrifice and determination. She spoke partly in Spanish to honor her parents' journey and reflected on the challenges that nearly derailed her path to graduation.

Her parents came to the United States from everything they knew in search of a better life for their family and a brighter future. Their sacrifices were one of the motivating factors in her own educational journey. “I carry not only my story, but theirs as well,” she said.

remember to reach out when you encounter life’s inevitable hardships.

Sometimes, it only takes one hand reaching out to help guide someone toward the light.

One of my favorite characters, Tony Stark, once said: “It’s an imperfect world, but it’s the only one we’ve got.”

So as you leave here today, I ask you to take care of our imperfect world.

The world does not heal overnight.

It is built through countless acts of kindness, empathy, and respect.

Find your community.

Reach out for help when you need it.

Find your people.

And let them find you.

But most importantly, take care of yourself.

Your health comes first.

Never settle for less than you deserve, and never remain in an environment that does not value you.

There is a place for everyone.

I could not be more grateful for the people who helped me through my own journey.

Thank you to my parents for always reminding me to take care of myself, no matter how ambitious I became.

To my older brother, Joseph, thank you for being my first best friend.

To my younger brothers, John and Vincent, thank you for pushing me to become a better student and a better person.

Thank you to Josh for being not just a teacher, but a mentor and trusted adult for so many students.

Thank you to Ms. Goldman for believing in me when I struggled to believe in myself.

Thank you to Mrs. Tenzi for teaching us how to have productive and meaningful discussions.

Thank you to Ms. Samansky for teaching me to take ownership of my education.

Thank you to Ms. Cao for reviewing my countless drafts and always providing thoughtful feedback.

Thank you to Mr. Castello for helping me bring this speech to life.

And thank you to everyone who helped create spaces where students could celebrate their identities and cultures.

Finally, thank you to my friends and everyone in this audience who, often without realizing it, became part of the reason I chose to seek help.

Because of you, we will continue making memories, exploring Boston, and sharing our lives together for many years to come.

Congratulations, Class of 2026.

We’ve all made new friends.

And we’ve all stepped outside our comfort zones.

While this marks the end of our high school careers, it also marks a beginning.

The beginning of our growth as independent individuals.

But I can assure you of one thing:

The learning doesn’t stop here.

The growing doesn’t stop here.

We will continue to learn and grow for the rest of our lives.

And that journey begins now.

Many of us will be moving away from family.

Many will be living on our own for the first time.

Some will attend college.

Others will enter the workforce.

And with these new experiences will come new feelings—doubt, stress, anxiety, and uncertainty.

At some point, you’ll ask yourself:

“Will I know when I’m ready?”

“How will I know when I’m ready?”

“When will I know when I’m ready?”

I want to tell you something important:

You won’t.

It’s a leap of faith.

That’s all it is.

A leap of faith.

You may have heard those words before, but let me tell you what they really mean.

Be a risk-taker.

Because it is the hard

Dulce Aguilar Cadenas

CityLab High School Class of 2026

Welcome to everyone here to see our graduating class and their accomplishments.

For those who may not know, my name is Dulce Aguilar Cadenas. I’m a part of the CityLab High School graduating class.

When I applied to cityLab, the thought of standing up here would’ve never crossed my mind. I would’ve rejected the idea.

I’m glad the people I’ve met here have helped me become much more outgoing.

This “non-traditional high school” experience is nothing like I thought it’d be; Especially when your orientation summer program consists of painting the bulletin boards in classrooms in the middle of renovation.

I did not think I’d get stuck outside a Starbucks for my first ELO, where I met my best friend, as well as most of the people I’d spend the rest of high school with.

I also didn’t expect to then spend my last two years riding the orange line to college every day, exploring Boston during gap periods, and proofreading each other’s essays before we printed them out for our professor.

I know I already graduated in January, but standing here makes it feel much more real.

I’d like to acknowledge the students who worked on our murals at the beginning of freshman year, adding color to the memories of our cityLab experience. I will miss walking past our STEAM mural, even if it was while being a few minutes late to class.

I want to thank every teacher who made the experience I will look back on. I will always be very proud of those who made our school traditions possible, especially that first Halloween movie night.

I’m so grateful for all the clubs I’ve been able to experience, and the teachers who recommended I join any clubs at all.

Most importantly, I’d like to thank Asahina Sensei. I don’t think I’ve ever loved a class as much as I’ve loved yours.

It didn’t just give me knowledge of another language, but a very close-knit friend group as well. You’ve taught me something priceless.

I’m amazed at the impact of everything that has led to the school we have today. I’m proud of everyone representing us today, and everyone who participated, even if they are not a part of cityLab anymore.

Completing our four years as cityLab students means more than just the achievement of completing high school. We’ve done much more than that by curating that experience for many other classes to come, and I hope our impact will be long lasting. Thank you things in life that force you to grow.

It is hard to learn something new.

It is hard to talk to someone you don’t know.

And it is definitely hard to try, try, and try again.

It’s even harder when you fail, fail, and fail again.

The truth is that it may never get easier.

The uncertainty may never completely disappear.

But if you spend your life waiting for the perfect day, you’ll be waiting forever.

So take that leap of faith.

In that moment, it may feel like your body is moving on its own.

Jump at opportunities to help people.

Jump at the chance to meet someone new.

And always jump at the chance to try a new food.

Thank you, everyone, and have a great day.

FINAL REMARKS TO CLASS OF 2026

Chris Bowen Revere High School Principal

Graduates,

When many of you were ninth graders, Revere High School staged its first musical in more than 30 years, In the Heights. Before opening night, composer, producer, and actor Lin-Manuel Miranda recorded a message for the cast.

Of all the advice he could have offered, the message he chose was simple:

“Remember to be a community every second you’re on stage.”

That message was painted on a mural in the entrance to our auditorium, where it remains today. I think about those words every time I walk into that section of the building.

And tonight, as you prepare to leave Revere Public Schools, I want to offer you a version of that same challenge:

Build community wherever you go.

Even though tonight is about celebrating you and your accomplishments, for a moment I want you to pull yourself from the center of this story.

Think about the people who made those accomplishments possible.

The people who stayed after school for you. The people who checked in on you. The people who challenged you. The people who sacrificed for you, advocated for you, and believed in you when you weren’t sure you believed in yourself.

At the same time, think about the people who didn’t want you to succeed, who worked against your goals, and who placed obstacles in your path.

The truth is that every individual success story is also a community story.

Our society loves to recognize individual achievement. We tell stories about determination, hard work, perseverance, and grit. And those things matter. No one can take away the accomplishments you have earned.

But none of us gets far alone.

Every opportunity we have is shaped by relationships. Every accomplishment rests on a foundation built by people who invested their time, energy, wisdom, care, and love into our lives.

Even when success comes in spite of others’ actions, there is still a community story to be told.

If you look closely, many of the people who shaped your story were not standing at the center of attention. They were working quietly in the background. They were the people who listened, checked in, and encouraged you.

Even those who challenged you or worked against you are part of your story. They taught you that influence and importance are not always the same thing.

When people hear the word community, they often think about a place—a city, a neighborhood, or a school.

But community is not a place.

Community is something we build.

We build it through thousands of small choices every day:

Listening instead of dismissing.

Helping instead of ignoring.

Advocating instead of remaining silent.

We build it when we make room for people who might otherwise feel invisible.

Tonight, I challenge you to measure your life not by how much belonging you find, but by how much belonging you create for others.

Who will have an opportunity because you advocated for them?

Who might you be overlooking?

Whose story have you not yet taken the time to understand?

One of the great lessons I hope being a member of the Revere community has taught you is that wisdom is not always found at the center of the room.

Often, it is found in the voices that are easiest to overlook.

The moment we believe we have nothing left to learn from another person is often the moment we stop growing ourselves.

The measure of your life will not simply be whether you found community.

It will be whether you helped build it for someone else.

Especially for those who are most different from you and those who are most often overlooked.

Tonight, you’ll be stepping across one stage and onto many others.

Some of those stages will be classrooms.

Some will be workplaces.

Some will be neighborhoods, families, organizations, and communities that do not yet know your name.

When you arrive there, don’t wait for someone else to create the kind of community you hope to be part of.

Build it.

Be the person who reaches out first.

Be the person who listens.

Be the person who advocates.

Be the person who helps others along the way.

And when you’re unsure what leadership the moment requires, I hope you’ll remember the words painted on the wall of our auditorium.

The same words that greeted you as ninth graders.

The same words that still greet us today:

“Remember to be a community every second you’re on stage.”

Class of 2026, the stage is yours now.

Build community wherever you go.

Congratulations.

Patrick Keefe Mayor of Revere

Good Evening

Friends, families, faculty, and — most importantly — the Class of 2026.

I try each year to deliver a message that not only has an impact, but is memorable so that, years down the road, you can reflect on something more meaningful than just a “good luck” on the next chapter of your life. I feel this responsibility as a parent and as your Mayor.

My message to you is simple, yet very complex. Life can feel at times like a giant competition. We are told that to win, you must be the strongest, the loudest, the smartest, and even the most guarded. We are told empathy is a “soft skill,” or even a sign of weakness, something to set aside when it’s time to get down to business.

I’m here to argue the opposite. I believe that the most powerful version of yourself is the one that is both deeply empathetic and fiercely unrelenting.

To be empathetic is not just about being “nice.” True empathy is a form of deep intelligence. It is the discipline required to look at someone whose life, politics, or struggles are entirely different from your own and say, “I see you. I want to understand you and want to be understood. In a world that thrives on snap judgments and “us versus them” mentalities, choosing to understand someone is a radical act of strength. It is the bridge that allows us to solve problems that others say are impossible.

But empathy without action is just a feeling. And that is where being tenacious comes in.

Life is going to give you a thousand reasons to “throw in the towel” and walk away, give up and give in. There will be moments when your kindness is mistaken for weakness, or when your vision is met with silence. In those moments, you must have an iron will. Being unrelenting means that once you have used your empathy to identify a problem—whether it’s an injustice in your community or a hurdle in your career—you do not stop until you’ve moved the needle.

Think of the leaders who changed the world. They weren’t just “tough.” They were moved by the plight

Dr. Stacey Mulligan CityLab Principal

Good evening CityLab and RHS families,

Graduation is more than a ceremony—it is a moment filled with pride, reflection, and possibility. It is a celebration of the City of Revere’s most precious gift—its children—and the journeys that have brought them to this milestone. Each year, we gather in this stadium to honor a graduating class, but this year carries something even deeper.

This year, we celebrate CityLab’s very first cohort to attend CityLab from freshman year to graduation.

The City of Revere has always taken pride in being “first.”

It is home to Revere Beach, opened in 1896 as the first public beach in the United States—a place created so that everyone, regardless of background or circumstance, could stand at the water’s edge and feel that they belonged.

Revere was also the site of the Battle of Chelsea Creek in 1775, recognized as the first naval engagement of the American Revolution—a moment when ordinary people stepped forward and shaped the course of history.

We often call ourselves the “first city north of Boston,” but being first has never just been about location. It has always been about courage—the courage to lead, to build, and to create something that did not exist before.

And yet, our history also asks us to remember more. The Rumney Marsh Burial Ground holds the graves of 16 formerly enslaved Black individuals—lives that remind us that progress is not simple, and that the work of building a more just and inclusive community belongs to each of us.

And today, we add another “first” to the story of Revere—CityLab, the first innovation high school in this city.

To our graduates: you are not just part of this first—you are the reason it exists.

Before there were traditions, before there was a roadmap, there was you. You walked into something new and uncertain, and you made it real. You built the culture. You created the energy. You defined what this school would stand for.

That is not easy work. That is brave work.

Years from now, when people talk about CityLab, they will talk about you—the class that started it all.

So wherever your path leads, carry this with you: you know how to begin. You know how to lead. You know how to build something from nothing.

That is your power.

And to the families—thank you. Thank you for trusting us, for believing in a vision that did not yet exist, and for taking a chance on something new. You took a leap of faith—not just on this school, but on me—and I am deeply grateful. CityLab would not be what it is without your courage and your partnership.

And now, it is my honor to recognize the students who made this history real—the founding graduating class of CityLab. CityLab’s first, forever—as I call your name, ly scheduled to graduate in 2025, but when things didn’t go according to plan, she began to wonder if she should continue to pursue her diploma. She was not a quitter, so she joined Coast Collaborative in May 2025.

“Coast gave me a second chance and that second chance changed my life,” she said.

Daniella is a high school graduate today, and she has already completed her first semester at Bunker Hill Community College studying nursing.

In her talk, she stressed that success is not how fast a person can get to a goal, but being able to keep moving forward despite setbacks.

A memory that stood out from her time in the program was a four-mile hike in Lynn Woods. While she said she was by no means an enthusiastic hiker, the experience became a metaphor for her educational journey.

“Although the trail seems tiring and uncertain, you continue to put one foot in front of the other,” she said. This is what Coast taught me.

The two students thanked the Coast staff members who had helped them through difficult times in their lives. Their stories shared a common thread: success is rarely a straight line, and sometimes the most meaningful achievements come after unexpected detours.

The Coast Collaborative was designed for students who are in extraordinary circumstances that have made it impossible for them to be successful in a traditional school environment. Through personalized instruction, family outreach, and collaboration with support providers, the program helps students overcome obstacles and stay connected to their education.

For this year’s graduates, Coast has been more than an alternative route to a diploma. It offered hope, reassurance, and an opportunity to envisage a future that had once seemed out of reach.

The graduates, while receiving their diplomas, took with them lessons learned

- from hardships faced, proof that with the right support and determination, second chances can produce amazing results.

CLASS OF 2026 GRADUATION

RPS honors 105 graduates at fifth annual Seal of Biliteracy Ceremony

More than 100 graduating seniors were recognized for their linguistic and cultural achievements as Revere Public Schools (RPS) celebrated its fifth annual Seal of Biliteracy Awards Ceremony, honoring 105 members of the Class of 2026 for demonstrating proficiency in English and one or more additional languages.

Held before students, families, educators, and community leaders, the ceremony highlighted the diversity that defines Revere and the important role multilingualism plays in students' academic success, cultural identity, and future opportunities.

Director of English Learner and World Language Programs Jennifer LaBollita welcomed attendees and reflected on the significance of the awards, noting that students were recognized for proficiency in languages including Albanian, Bosnian, French, Moroccan Arabic, Modern Standard Arabic, Nepali, Portuguese, and Spanish in addition to English. Students also completed written reflections in English and their additional language or languages, many of which were published in the district's annual multilingual anthology.

"This is truly a moment for all of us to celebrate," LaBollita said as she praised students for maintaining and developing their multilingual skills while honoring their cultural heritage.

Many of the student essays described helping family members navigate daily life, serving as translators in their communities, and overcoming challenges associated with immigration and language acquisition.

Representing the City of Revere, Chief of Staff Claudia Correa congratulated students and families while emphasizing the value of bilingualism in an increasingly interconnected world.

"The ability to speak two or more languages is like living and experiencing different worlds and cultures," Correa said. She also recognized the often-overlooked role many multilingual students play as interpreters and translators for their families, helping navigate schools, medical appointments, financial institutions, and other important services.

"Thank you for taking on that task," she told students. "I only ask that you continue to do it and carry it out with great love."

Assistant Superintendent for Equity and Inclusion Dr. Lourenço Garcia echoed those sentiments, describing bilingualism as a source of strength and leadership rather than an obstacle.

"The Seal of Biliteracy is much more than an award," Garcia said. "It is about identity, perseverance, culture, and voice."

Garcia praised families as students' first teachers and acknowledged the sacrifices many made to provide educational opportunities for their children. He encouraged students to embrace their languages and cultural identities as they move forward into college, careers, and adulthood.

"Never allow anyone to make you feel that you must leave your culture behind to succeed," Garcia said. "Your culture is part of your greatness. It's part of your uniqueness."

One of the highlights of the evening was a series of student presentations drawn from essays published in the district's multilingual anthology.

Among them was Revere High School senior Jaleeyah Figueroa Capunay, who spoke about using her Spanish and English language skills while volunteering as a teacher's aide at the Revere Community School. She described helping adult English learners develop vocabulary, pronunciation, and reading comprehension while encouraging them to remain confident throughout the learning process.

Senior Rania Hamdani, reflected on earning the Seal of Biliteracy in both Modern Standard Arabic and Moroccan Arabic. She explained how maintaining fluency in Arabic while excelling academically in English helped shape her identity and strengthened her connection to her family, culture, and community.

Another student speaker shared how bilingualism allows her to translate church services for an English-speaking congregant, helping create connections and ensuring everyone feels welcome and included.

Student presenter Mariam Aboutoui, described speaking five languages—Moroccan Arabic, Modern Standard Arabic, French, Spanish, and English—and how each language serves as a bridge connecting different parts of her life and heritage. She explained that multilingualism has enabled her to communicate across cultures and confidently navigate new environments.

Throughout the ceremony, speakers returned to a common theme: multilingualism is not simply an academic achievement but a reflection of students' resilience, family histories, and cultural pride.

The event also celebrated the publication of the district's annual multilingual anthology, which features student reflections on bilingualism, identity, immigration, family, and belonging. District leaders encouraged attendees to read the collection, describing it as a powerful testament to the voices and experiences of Revere's students.

As the ceremony moved into the presentation of awards, students were recognized for achieving varying levels of language proficiency, beginning with the Revere Public Schools Biliteracy Attainment Award, presented to students who demonstrated intermediate fluency in English and an additional language.

For Revere Public Schools, the evening served as both a celebration of academic accomplishment and a recognition of the cultural richness that continues to shape the district and the broader community.

With 105 graduates earning biliteracy distinctions this year, district leaders emphasized that the ability to communicate across languages and cultures will remain one of the Class of 2026's greatest strengths as they pursue their futures beyond Revere.

World tour of potato salad

By Penny & Ed Cherubino

If your potato salad experience has been from a deli or made with mayo, we have some alternatives for you. We’re a no-mayo household, which has allowed us to discover the many styles of potato salads that exist in other corners of world cuisine.

The great American writer Laurie Colwin devoted a chapter to potato salad in her book “Home Cooking.” She began with her belief that there is no such thing as a bad potato salad, “So long as the potatoes are not undercooked ...”

Colwin also had good advice on selecting potatoes for salads. She found that waxy potatoes like our popular red-skinned varieties don’t absorb as much dressing and are best when you want a salad, “delicately coated.” And mealier potatoes, like russets, soak up dressing for a creamier result.

Vinaigrette Potato Salads

Thinking vinaigrette rather than mayonnaise is very traditional. In Fannie Merritt Farmer’s “The Original Boston Cooking School Cook Book 1896,” there are five potato salad recipes, all sans mayonnaise. We turned to contemporary authors we follow for particular cuisines to find their version of this popular dish.

For Greek options, we rely on Diane Kochilas, who offered one that combines the crunch of smashed potatoes with traditional Greek flavors and a herby yogurt dressing. Another recipe was for an Ikarian salad featuring cucumbers, onions, and fresh oregano, topped with feta and olive oil.

Peru is famous for its potatoes and for Papas a la Huancaína, with a cheese sauce that can be made with ingredients from any grocery store.

One of the most colorful and tempting offerings

Our honey mustard roasted potato salad with ham, pickles, carrots, fennel, and celery can be served warm or cold.

came from Turkish YouTube vlog Refika’s Kitchen. Her “Perfect Potato Salad” has tossed, crispy, air-fried potatoes with caramelized peanuts and fresh cilantro, finished with a sauce filled with Asian flavors.

Warm Potato Salads

German potato salad is served warm. Here, diced bacon and onion are sautéed in a skillet, and the cooked potatoes are tossed into the pan and coated with the bacon fat, soft onion, and bacon. It’s seasoned with cider vinegar, salt, and pepper. Some cooks add a bit of beef broth to make it moist- er and creamier.

The Mediterranean Dish YouTube channel served up Tuna and Potato Salad, Mediterranean-Style Mustard Potato Salad, and Batata Harra (Middle Eastern Spicy Potatoes), all of which can be served warm.

Tastier and Healthier Options

Switching to dressings other than mayo can add more nutrition to this summer staple. Adding vegetables can help you meet your five-a-day goal. The additions we saw from other places add texture, color, and flavor to what is sometimes a pale, bland dish.

Thinking about your choice of sauce or dressing can also make it safer to leave it on a table or in the refrigerator longer, although we still suggest keeping the serving temperature within the safe zone.

Refrigerating the salad before serving will allow the flavors to blend and convert the fiber in your potatoes from regular starch to resistant starch. Johns Hopkins explains, “Resistant starch is a carbohydrate that resists digestion in the small intestine and ferments in the large intestine. As the fibers ferment, they act as a prebiotic and feed the good bacteria in the gut.”

With all these benefits, we’ve adopted the practice of trying new potato salad recipes and creating our own versions with the ingredients we like best. The photo below shows our new favorite: a roasted potato salad with a honey mustard dressing. Ed is mad about that particular condiment.
